Wit 'N' Wisdom

By JACK WITTENMEIER

Spectator Sports Editor

Dean Thompson's theme was responsibility and, from what we've seen of the content of his speech (part of which we're relaying to you), his words should have been the tastiest item on the Wittenmeier Pick Congress Hotel menu that day.

THOMPSON warned that while the public will indulge a decline of ethical standards among public officials, businessmen etc., it "will not condone or tolerate even the appearance of evil in college athletic programs."

Fortunately, athletic scandals in any arena of American sports have been few and far between.

The fabled Black Sox episode (easily this country's worst closet "skeleton") resulted in the immedate conclusion of several promising careers.

COLLEGE basketball was tainted three decades later when three Kentucky U. players admitted shaving points—again ending in the culmination of the guilty parties' careers.

Wally Butts' big libel collection from the Saturday Evening Post after a printed charge of "fix" still didn't remove the taint completely from his name.

JIMMY BROWN'S court escapades over the past two years have done little to endear him to more fans, even when the courts decided "not guilty."

But the decline in the popularity of boxing in this country (via departure of the "All-American image" and close ties with big time gambling) sells Dean Thompson's point best.

The sporting public — which still clings to athletics as one of the few remaining "shining examples" for their sons and grandsons — refuses to swallow anything less than the "up 'n up."

THIS IS why this same public is negligent — from the Mosquito League, right on up — for failure to demand the same on any field of athletic combat.

In Dean Thompson's words, "the young athlete for whom admission requirements are forgotten, who is given scholarships, whose regular fees are waived or paid by someone else, who is given, under the table, aid while in college . . . to encourage him to play for . . . old Alma Mater will . . . assume that he should sell out to the highest bidder in business or politics.

"The least he will expect will be that he should enjoy the fruits of other men's labors without effort on his part."

THE DEAN'S words brought to mind a coaching friend of ours who recently looked back over a 50-50 wrestling season and a poor track mark.

The coach had run a tight ship and a number of athletes (including several of the squad's best) didn't measure up to training and practice regulations.

They were cut and, in their absence, the team fared poorly.

"SURE, I'D have liked to kept them," the coach remarked. "Nobody likes to lose. But I'm afraid I'd do the same thing again if I had to."

A member of the coaches' squad was quick to pat him on the back for the action, even though it meant a losing season—one that could never be reversed again.

We would not be foolish enough to suggest that sporting scandals will not pop up now and then.

BUT NEITHER would we be pessimistic enough to suggest that they won't be few and far between — as long as there are both coaches and athletes remaining (as above) who both recognize and observe the responsibilities entrusted to them.

Kette, Kline To Stage Show At N'West Gardens

Local artists Dean Kette and Ray Kline will stage a two-man show July 9-10 at Independence Square in Northwest Gardens.

Kline's work is impressionistic, capturing movement through distortion and reshaped organization.

More than 50 of their works will be on display each day from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Northwest Gardens, North Star-rd and Northwest-blvd.

MAVERICK

With Muddy Shoes

By RICHARD L. PAUGH

One of outdoor Ohio's biggest riddles in this complex life is the many faceted problem of strip mining.

It is a true Jekyll and Hyde situation with the bad features readily apparent and the benefits more difficult to find.

DRIVE OUT east or south from Zanesville some quiet afternoon and get in practice for your first trip to the moon. Few places else on earth show such a barren landscape, so depressing or lifeless.

Great mounds of subsoil and broken rock are heaped everywhere. Whole hills have been leveled and replaced by deep gashes or cut in half by the giant earth movers, leaving high walls of rubble.

PAUGH

To the casual observer, this land has been violated to the last magnitude, shorn of its past and beaten of everything needed for a future. It has reached a point of no return.

THE HILLS of Eastern Ohio and Western Pennsylvania are laced with veins of shallow soft coal deposits. In order to harvest this natural resource, it is necessary to scrape off the thin skin of soil off the top of the coal and thereby lies the rub.

A deep coal mine has only one or two holes to mark the digging below but strip-mining takes all before it, leaving the earth's raw flesh behind.

To stand on a hilltop and look across hundreds of acres of strip-mined land brings tears to the eyes of many outdoorsmen. But there is a reverse side to the coin.

THE VERY lands that are honeycombed with rich coal deposits are the lands that—for the most part — are useless for any type of farming. As the settlers moved in 200 years ago, they became the first of many to rob the poor soil of its few good qualities.

They cut every tree and turned the thin top soil under, leaving yellow subsoil for future generations to eke out a living as best they could.

As a result, those Eastern Ohio hill lands are now redundant with what we now term Appalachian poverty. Farms are abandoned, towns are in the near-ghost status.

INTO THIS already barren picture the stripminers stepped and offered to buy the lands that no one else wanted, bringing with them jobs for the people who would work. This is the one way in which the coal companies have done the area a lot of good.

In recent years, under the watchful eye of the Ohio Reclamation Association, the larger companies grade, replant and re-seed the lands after they have finished with them.

They have researched and found that there are some grasses that will grow in the poor subsoil. They have planted hundreds of thousands of black locust and certain varieties of peach trees on the gradual slopes.

INSTEAD of sheer abandonment, the coalers now grade the slopes, leaving many ponds between the rises. They stock the ponds with bass, bluegills and channel cats. On several occasions, they have deeded the replanted lands to conservation clubs free of charge.

At 10 a.m. two weeks ago today a small group of men gathered at the office of the Broken Arrow Coal Company, a subsidiary of the giant Peabody Coal Company.

They witnessed another such gift to the sportsmen of Ohio. Eighty-eight acres were donated to the Clintonville Conservation Club of Columbus to use as they wished.

IT'S A LONG slow fight to respectability but Eastern Ohio will make it. The lands that were violated before the reclamation laws were passed are still a scar on the face of Ohio. Most were worked by uncaring, independent operators who have long since passed on to stripmines of another nature.

But we know now that the apathy is gone. People on all levels have an eye cocked on the future.

Youths Charged In Incident With School Teacher

Delinquency charges were filed in Juvenile Court June 21 against Richard Myers, 15, 338 Crestview-rd and Jeffrey Patterson, 16, 358 Tulane-rd.

They were arrested following an incident at the home of their English teacher when a third youth, Roger Bush, 14, 333 Iswald-rd, was wounded by a rifle shot.

Police say the teacher, Diane Turner, 34, 484 Stinchcomb-rd, took a blackjack from Myers during the last week of school at Crestview Junior High. The youths tried to get it back. A tenant, Andre Medawar, 29, fired a rifle.

Mewawar pleaded not guilty. His case is continued to July 18. Myers and Patterson are released to their parents, pending formal hearing.

WASHINGTON CALLING by MARQUIS CHILDS

WASHINGTON — When Under Secretary of State George Ball leaves the government in the early fall, the view from the top on Viet Nam will be unanimous. The departure of the one dissenter is the climax of a quiet drama unique in the Kennedy-Johnson era.

It has been no secret in Washington that for at least three years Ball has consistently opposed in the private councils of government the escalation of the war. In public he has been completely loyal to the Administration. While their views have often been diametrically opposed, Ball and Secretary of State Dean Rusk share a mutual respect that is the basis for their friendship.

The Under Secretary's leaving has no relation to his opposition to Viet Nam policy. He is going because having worked the 12-hour day and s n-day week for five and a half years, he is bone tired. His relationship with the President is friendly with Johnson speaking up frequently in National Security Council meetings to say, "Let's hear George's point of view."

The unanimity of the view at the top is a fact of life at what seems a critical juncture for the Administration. For there is every evidence that opinion in the country is fragmenting, as doubts spread in a dozen different directions.

Seldom if ever has any foreign entanglement in the nation's life generated so much controversy. By comparison, the Korean war, until the later phase, was accepted more or less passively. The Viet Nam War is generating an ever-expanding literature from observers and analysts here at home and abroad. Week after week the volume increases, and the great preponderance is critical of the American position.

A remarkable series of articles in the Paris newspaper, Le Monde, written by Robert Guillain, who has spent 30 years in Asia, examines the current American stance and finds it virtually hopeless insofar as any possibility remains of winning the Vietnamese people to our side.

On another level is Phillip L. Geyelin's book, "Lyndon B. Johnson and the World," which is being widely read here. Although it covers the whole range of the Johnson foreign policy, inevitably it centers on Viet Nam. The question Geyelin raises is whether consensus is a sufficient guide in such a perilous passage as Viet Nam, with the ever-looming threat of a wider war.

To the expanding library on Viet Nam Bernard Fall has contributed several volumes out of his long background in both North and South Viet Nam. These are men with not merely opinions but authoritative knowledge. There is no evidence, however, that any of this penetrates the circle of advisers who shape Viet Nam policy. That circle is hermetically closed.

White House aides indicate that the President is not in the least interested in talking to any writer or commentator on Viet Nam, the President talks with a great many people about what is for him a constant source of anguished concern. But he talks as a persuader. He talks as he did when he was majority leader in the Senate and his goal was to win and hold a majority.

Johnson inherited the dilemma of Viet Nam, and at what point he might have found a way out his critics seldom say. He also inherited the advisers who shaped the initial Viet Nam policy under President Kennedy, and he has clung to them with a grip that at times resembles that of a drowning man.

It is because the advice of the Under Secretary of State has been contrary to the top-level consensus that his departure means more than a mere shift in the foreign policy hierarchy. Short of some opening for new ideas, for exchange of opinion that may be contrary to the consensus, the blind alley is likely to have no exit. — Copyright 1966 by United Features.

Farm Workers Seek Support In Western Vineyard Strike

A California woman is in Ohio to obtain support for the National Farm Workers Association.

She is Miss Ida Cousini, representing the 4,500 NFWA members who are striking for union recognition and $1.40 an hour against the vineyards in the Delano, Calif., area.

Since the strike, which began last September, the grape ranch operators have fallen back on immigrant labor, much of which has been imported from Saudi Arabia.

According to Miss Cousini, the success of their boycott against Schenley Distillers products (the company operates a 3800-acre ranch in the area), which ended with union recognition, has led to their current boycott against those of Digiorgo, which markets Tree-Sweet Juices and S&W canned goods.

CROQUET WAS NEVER LIKE THIS

Where's Mom? At Hockey Game, Natch

By The Spectator's
JANE ROBINSON

Ho-hum.

Ice hockey is coming to Columbus and so what?

That was my reaction learning the Checkers will call the Capital City home.

Not particularly sports-minded (my sons even had to struggle through Little League without me) the very idea of ice hockey left me as cold as the goalie's feet.

But after a breakfast session with the owners and star player-manager of the Checkers, I began to see such an attitude would make me a social outcast among my own sex.

Without the gentler sex, box office receipts would plummet. Some 65 of every hundred seats at a rink are filled by women.

Why?

The consensus seems to be that ice hockey is one of the roughest games going, and that from the time she leaves the cradle until she totters into an old ladies' home, the female of the species becomes increasingly more appreciative of mild mayhem.

Baseball and basketball just don't have it as far as the majority of women are concerned — they are not contact sports and the casualty rate is unimpressive.

Football begins to ring a bell with the thrill-seeking creatures called women, but from a stadium, the spectators are a little far-removed from the action.

But apparently hockey has just what a lot of females are looking for: fast action and the vicarious anguish of seeing their hero take it in the face with a flying puck or a brandished stick.

"Moe" Bartoli, player-manager of the Checkers, described his season last year as a "10-stitch year," but explained a "50-stitch year" is closer to par for the course.

It's a game where being tough can pay off, and penalties don't kick a player out of the game for more than a matter of minutes.

With this set-up, the he-man image is easy to maintain and the feminine fans buy it.

It looks as if when the season opens the end of October, the sweet old ladies in lavender and lace, in whose life there has been a vacuum since pro-wrestling tapered off have a treat coming their way.

With bull-fighting banned in perpetuity in Columbus it's high time something was done for the adrenalin systems of our female population.

HAYTCHER SAYS STATE NO HELP

Federal Aid Sought By Suburbs

By The Spectator's
BOB TENENBAUM

The president of the Franklin County Mayor's Council feels that suburbs are going to have to turn more and more to the federal government to meet their ever-growing needs.

Whitehall's Paul Haytcher, serving his first term as mayor of the eastern suburb, told The Spectator that "local tax revenues are so limited, and the state is doing so little, that federal government is the only place to turn."

"Of course, I can only speak for Whitehall officially," he said in an interview, "but other suburbs in the county have contacted me to see what we are doing. We must come to the realization that what we want to do can't be done on our own."

Haytcher has put his words into action in Whitehall. The city is about to hire a planner to work out a master plan that will be used as the basis for applying for federal funds for open spaces and community improvement.

The plan is modest but it's the first step down the road. Initially, the city will ask for approximately $12,000 as the federal government's two-thirds share of the planning costs. The city will have to pay only about $5,000.

The plan is on a two-year basis, with the first year devoted to studies of open space plans, neighborhood improvement and an updating of the 1961 Whitehall master plan that, Haytcher said, "just sat on the shelf."

The second year will consist of planning for a new building code, commercial development and capital improvements.

Whitehall decided to turn to the federal government only a short time ago. Haytcher feels it should have been done "long ago."

"The problem is simple," Haytcher said. "The state legislature gives us only two ways to go outside of normal real estate taxes — we can have a city income tax or an admissions tax, which most cities have dropped because it is unwieldy."

WHITEHALL'S HAYTCHER
"State Won't Help"

Whitehall has a city income tax which is expected to bring in $632,000 in 1967. But property taxes brought only $61,000 into the city treasurer last year and the city has virtually no other source of major income.

"To put it simply," Haytcher said, "the state offers us nothing. If it weren't for our income tax we wouldn't have enough money to run the city.

"We most probably wouldn't go to the federal government if the state would meet our needs—but it's not doing it."

Federal aid is not new in Franklin County. Columbus has used it extensively, par-

At Christmas time in 1894 Dr. George Courtright who moved to Ashville after the Civil War received a gift from the Rev. Adam W. Wagnalls, co-founder of the publishing firm of Funk & Wagnalls.

It was an unabridged dictionary inscribed, "To Dr. Courtright of Lithopolis, Ohio, in grateful commemoration for professional courtesy, as a slight token from the Reverend Adam W. Wagnalls of 1869. Xmas, 1894. W.W."

Dunloe $10,000 Below Estimate

Dawson-Evans Construction Co. of Columbus is the apparent low bidder for the general contract to build the 16-room elementary school on the Dunloe site in Blacklick Estates.

According to Phillip Williams, superintendent of the Madison Local School District, the Dawson-Evans bid is for $219,615 and includes site improvement.

The fact that the figures quoted for site improvement were unusually low will allow the new facility to be built for approximately $10,000 below the estimates of Van Buren, Blackburn & Associates, the district's architects.

Modern Plumbing Co.'s bid of $92,800 and Berl's electric, Inc.'s bid of $40,070 are apparently low for mechanical and electrical respectively.

Costs figure at $14.90 a square foot, Williams reported, which is considerably higher than that for the identical Asbury School built three years ago at $12.02 a square foot.

This increase is the result of spiraling building costs and is 10 cents less than anticipated.

The bids will be awarded at the regular meeting scheduled in room 112 at Groveport-Madison School, Monday, July 11.

At that time the board will consider the alternates that were included in the specifications. These include terrazo in the corridors instead of a composition tile, pre-formed concrete slabs around the upper level of the building and air conditioning for the office area and two classrooms.

Williams explained that the two classrooms that may be air-conditioned will be the ones that are used for summer school and that can be thrown together for a public meeting area.

Plans for the 14-room elementary proposed for the Herderick site (just north of Harbor-dr and Asbury Heights), are coming along well and soon will be ready for advertising. These bids will be opened in September.

Moth Walks

The moth hikes of Metropolitan parks will be continued this month with one scheduled at Darby Creek Friday, July 8 and another at Blendon Wood Friday, July 15. Both will begin at about dusk at 8:30 p.m.

Participants will meet the naturalist at the trading posts and follow the trails which have been baited with a fragrant mixture of syrup, molasses and mashed fruits.

Although a three-inch wolf spider seen at Blendon Woods last month was considered an unusual highlight, insects that can be counted on to make an appearance are Camel crickets, roaches, beatles, crane flies, ants and a variety of moths.

HIKES RATE

Richard I. Eidson, president of First Federal Savings and Loan Association has announced a dividend rate of five percent annually on six-month savings certificates issued in the amount of $5,000 and additional multiples of $1,000. According to Eidson, 5.02 percent can be realized if quarterly dividends remain on deposit. Funds may be withdrawn at any time with the balance earning four and one-half percent compounded quarterly.

Lake Of Four Seasons Open At Hide-A-Way Hills

A crowd estimated at 500 attended the dedication ceremonies and grand opening of the new Lake of the Four Seasons Sunday at Hide-A-Way Hills' year-round resort located 5½ miles south of Lancaster off Route 33.

Following the invocation by the Rev. George Evans of Columbus, host J. W. (Wally) McGough, president of Hide-A-Way Hills, introduced the dedication speakers, Daniel C. Armbruster, chief of the Ohio Division of Wildlife and Richard E. Middtn, executive assistant to the director of the Department of Natural Resources. Also in attendance were mayors from Lancaster, Bremen, Logan, Athens and Sugar Grove. Gov. James A. Rhodes and Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner of Columbus sent congratulatory messages.

Following the dedication speeches, Sharon Phillian of Delaware, Miss Heart of Ohio, was crowned Miss Lake of the Four Seasons by F. M. (Don) Donelson, chairman of the board of Hide-A-Way Hills.

The gathering was then treated to a colorful 45-minute speedboat regattta on the new lake and luncheon was served for visiting dignitaries.

The new Lake of the Four Seasons is a 120-acre body of water, boasting 4½ miles of shoreline and providing access for 195 spacious waterfront lots.

The new lake joins four sister lakes at the $8 million Hide-A-Way resort which provides boating and fishing in summer, ice skating and hockey in winter. The lakes are stocked and wild ducks abound.

The watershed for the new lake emanates from 1,683 acres of Hocking Hills. The lake is a 588,100,000 gallon water playground — enough to service the entire city of Columbus and its suburbs for seven days.

The dam, constructed at a cost exceeding $500,000, is 1,110 feet long, 540 feet wide at its base, and 47 feet above normal ground level at its highest point.

Facilities at Hide-A-Way Hills include an 8,000 square foot, air-conditioned lodge, a golf course, Olympic size swimming pool, a one-half mile illuminated ski tow and trail plus snow making equipment and facilities for 18 other outdoor sports including tennis, volleyball, archery and horseback riding.

Lawn and Garden SECTION

JOYCE LOUGHMAN, EDITOR

If your gardening motto, like mine, is "the least All Papers Garden Page — Thoughts of an amateur ..rm amount of work is the best" then start an herb garden. A 12 month project can be had, by simply having a favorite few in pots on a sunny window.

Most herbs may have the seed sown directly in the garden in the spring. When planting seeds for new plants to bring in for the kitchen window, try to get them in the soil by mid-summer. By fall, the plants should be well established in the pots and boxes in which they will grow during the winter.

Herbs are not particular about whether their soil is rich or poor. In fact, rich soil will produce abundant foliage but the fragrance and flavor will be poor. A real switch isn't it, t have a friendly plant for a change?

Some herbs will thrive happily from season to season in the same pot. Others will become crowded and will have to be repotted. Some, like trragon, do best if you repot and divide every six months. A special thought on what to do with your herbs when they need to be divided or when yu take leaf cuttings and they root.

Pot some church or school bazaars.ordobe

Pot some for gifts for that favrite friend or as donations for the church or school baaars. And extra enjoyment can come from giving herbs to someone in the hospital. Not only are they lovely to look at but fragrant and fun to nibble.

Here are some of the herbs which will grow well indoors. Anise certainly brings new interest to foods, especially to sa'ads. Basil epecially good with fresh or stewed tomatnes. The dainty cucumber-flavored leaves of Burnet is attractive for the tall, cool drinks that you serve for bridge club. Chervil with its fine anise-flavored leaves do something special for soups. A clump of chives in the kitchen is a joy.

There is no need to relate the delight of fresh mint in mid-December. Choose any of the 40 varities. Terragon, thyme, sage, rose geranium, rosemary, parsley, lemon balm or lavender . . . collect them all and enjoy lazy gardening!

WILLIAM S. WHITE: On Big Question In Viet Nam

WHITE

WASHINGTON — The mortal issue in South Viet Nam has now demonstrably narrowed down to a single real question: Will the people of the United States stand firm against Communist aggression, now that it is in sober fact a losing aggression militarily, until the assailants can be forced to enter honorable peace arrangements?

The interconnected question is this: Will a handful of pacifist-minded Senators — the Fulbrights, the Robert Kennedys and so on — continue, however good the motives of their endless "dissent," to give the Communists hope that the will of the great American majority will indeed falter at last?

The plain reality is that this war against Communist aggression cannot now be lost on the actual firing line. For proof, the most important fact is that the rainy season May-October Red offensive, which every year before this has all but cut South Viet Nam in two, has this year been effectively halted before it could begin.

A second important fact is in the now-lost attempt of the Buddhist politico-clerical extremists to overthrow Premier Nguyen Cao Ky. That they were defeated is significant, of course. But it is even more meaningful that they tried it at all.

Why? Because as power-seekers the prize — control of South Viet Nam — was for the first time of genuine value. Why genuine? Because for the first time it was plain that to have political control of South Viet Nam would mean something; that South Viet Nam was not going to fall to Communist conquest.

And if the Communists have passed the point of no return in purely military terms, they have also passed it in Asian political terms. All of Asia except that part of it already in the Red Chinese grip is accepting now the bottom reality that South Viet Nam's rescue from attack is indeed the salvation of all the rest.

One illustration of this is in a recent speech by the leftist Singapore Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew which has had little or no publicity here. In a talk before a Socialist club in Singapore, Lee said bluntly that whatever their ideologies, the "little fishes" in Asia would be swallowed one by one if the United States allowed South Viet Nam to fall into Red China's hands.

"Do you believe," he went on, "that the Indians are stooges and lackeys of the Americans? Do you believe that Pakistan is a lackey of the Americans? They are friends of China. Then there are the Burmese. They are the best neutralists in Asia. How is it that none of them has really said, 'This is a crime against humanity committed by the Americans'?"

They have not said it, Lee went on, for the simple reason that they know the Communist attack on South Viet Nam must not be allowed to be repeated if there is to be any safety left in all Asia. — Copyright 1966 by United Features.

BARRY GOLDWATER: Money's Not A Dirty Word

GOLDWATER

Among the commencement addresses I've read since the end of the school year is a theme that rings a bell for me—an alarm bell. The theme goes something like this:

Young men and women going out in the world must not think of money or material things. They must seek "serenity." They must dedicate their lives to "serving humanity," to "serving the state," to "helping the people," to "being great human beings rather than merely rich ones."

Taken in full context, the statements say that it is immoral to work for yourself, but moral to work for someone else. They say it is not "profoundly moral" to work for a profit, but that it is profoundly moral to work in a public service that is paid for by the work of someone else.

There is in many of these addlepated statements a deliberate attempt to make money appear to be immoral — unless it is "public" money.

Let's get this straight. Money is neither moral nor immoral. It is not endowed with virtue or evil. It is a convenient way of keeping track of work done. The morality and the immorality of money concerns the manner in which it is obtained.

In my view it is profoundly moral to work for money. It is the way most men decently maintain their dignity and provide for their needs.

It is profoundly immoral to be made to work for nothing, to be forced to work without return, whether that force is applied in the name of some profoundly moral cause or in the name of naked slavery.

In a free society, of course, a man should be free to work for whatever reason he wants and for whatever reward he can negotiate. Youngsters leaving school are free to "serve the people" if they want. The reward to them may be better than money — a good feeling or something.

The profoundly moral question of our time is simply whether it is moral to compel some men to work extra hard in order to pay for the plans, programs, policies, even the whims of others. Is it moral to force labor from some men, give them no direct return and then justify the spending on the basis of "public good."

Just who is "the public?" Doesn't it include the people who make the money as well as those who want to spend it?

I hope that all the young people who have heard so many vague attacks against money and the private men who make it — and who make it mean something — will think about these things after they have taken off their caps and gowns and rolled up their sleeves. — Copyright 1966, Los Angeles Times.

THE SPECTATOR

OHIO'S LARGEST WEEKLY NEWSPAPER

"I have sworn upon the altar of God eternal hostility against every form of tyranny over the mind of man."—Thomas Jefferson

Robert Burdock, Publisher — Don R. Bucknam, Advertising Director — R. H. Rogers, Business Manager

Columbus, Ohio, Wednesday, July 6, 1966

Chamber Stands Tall

The Columbus Chamber of Commerce justly holds a lofty status in this community, earned from years of service.

But it seems to The Spectator that the Chamber stands particularly tall after last week's action in presenting its Distinguished Community Service Award to Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner.

But for the Chamber to risk having the award misinterpreted as a political endorsement was a chance that only men of real understanding and vision would take. Naturally, there must have been dissension within the Chamber's own ranks.

The leadership of the Chamber is to be congratulated for setting aside such considerations and honoring the man for his works.

This is the kind of wisdom that makes the Chamber great as a community force and gives real substance to its award, an award which in some cities amounts only to an annual recognition of members of its own establishment.

The mayor took his bows gracefully.

Now the Columbus Chamber can deservedly take its own.

An Ill Wind

The fiery crash of a gasoline tank truck last week on I-71 created some pretty tangled traffic jams on the north side of Columbus.

It pointed up dramatically the urgent need for another north freeway, such as the Olentangy parkway which barely won approval of Columbus voters in May.

The Spectator, which strongly supported passage of the Olentangy project, wonders here in print how wide the margin of approval would have been had the crash occurred several days before the election.

Anyone for another referendum?

The Gandy

By The Spectator's
TED BEARDSHEAR

Summer always brings to mind gandy dancin' . . . picks, spike mauls, forks, bars and shovels.

The old time section crew of the railroad when they laid track by hand, drove spikes by hand . . . the section before mechanization.

BEARDSHEAR

About 20 years ago, a tow-headed boy lied about his age. He said he'd be 18 on June 10 and was ready to go to work. On June 11 they handed him a fork and told him to "fork stones." He was 16 years and one day old.

Three hours later, the sun, and the work had beaten that boy to a mindless, sweating lump. He was sick enough to die but not sick enough to quit. By some miracle, he survived that first day, the first week and the first month.

It was not an easy life. The boy was green enough to become the brunt of the rough humor of the rest of the crew.

But there were compensations. It was satisfying to the boy to hold his own, if only just barely, with a group of men.

And there were the rewards of labor itself. The appreciation of seeing a job well done, the savoring of shade and a cool drink of water, the luxury of an early morning stretch that tingled to wakefulness every muscle in the body, and the quiet pride in the efficiency of one's own hands.

Back there on the section, every man was convinced it was his work and his effort that made possible the running engines and cars that punctuated each day's effort.

"Without us, they'd never run," they would say.

The gandys didn't talk about music, literature or art. But they were expert in women, beer and brawling. They couldn't discourse on the vagaries of philosophy because they didn't need to know about them. They had their own simple way of life.

Summer brings to mind that long ribbon of shimmering track, the smell of limestone dust and creosote, the feel of a smooth shovel on a calloused pair of hands.

Summer brings to mind cool breezes, flowing sweat and torrid heat.

And more. Summer recalls the season when a boy learned what it meant to become a man.

They Said It

"Two states, New York and California, are t[ry] new approach to combat the grow[ing] lency by the general public to ig[nore] crime being committed instead of trying to prevent it and apprehend a criminal or help a law enforcement officer do his job. Recently California made its first payment under its 'Good Samaritan' law. It compensates private citizens for injury or damage suffered while trying to prevent a crime, apprehend a criminal or help a law enforcement officer."—Thompson Falls (Mont.) Ledger.

"— But I Wouldn't Want To Live Here"

MARQUIS CHILDS: More In Dark Corners

WASHINGTON — How narrowly wholesale tragedy was averted in Mississippi can never be known with precision. Between the violent bigotry of the whites and the long pent-up frustration of the Negroes the lines between sullen order and outright slaughter were paper thin.

The man who would have borne the blame for disaster. Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach, kept an anxious watch over the weekend until the big rally at Jackson, the state capital, was ended. Critics and not alone on the left of the civil rights movement, increasingly complained that in Mississippi Katzenbach failed to use the tools provided in the Federal Voting Rights Act of 1965 to register Negro voters.

CHILDS

The Attorney General confronts in Mississippi a sovereign power in Sen. James Eastland. That power extends far beyond his fiefdom of Sunflower County to the Senate of the United States and his chairmanship of the Judiciary Committee with obstruction if not outright veto over the appointments of Federal judges and other aspects of the judicial and law enforcement machinery.

Katzenbach can, therefore, reply that in the face of such a sovereign power he has no choice but to proceed with all deliberate caution lest open warfare with Eastland be the result. The question is how far his writ runs. And that same question has arisen in even more embarrassing form in another area.

When Solicitor General Thurgood Marshall went before the Supreme Court, acting on the instructions of the Attorney General, to confess that a listening device had been placed in the hotel suite of Fred B. Black, Jr., convicted of income tax evasion, he opened the door a crack into a dark malodorous room. In this extraordinary confession Marshall said that the device was planted without authority from the Attorney General.

If Black can get his conviction reversed because of the illicit wire tap, then Robert G. (Bobby) Baker, charged with theft and evasion, stands a chance of getting off on the same ground. Baker's attorneys allege "massive wire tapping" was the basis for the indictment.

Under the obscure laws restricting both wire tapping of electronic communications and eavesdropping through planted bugs an area of Byzantine intrigue has seen every shred of privacy stripped away. Associates of one of the most prominent civil rights leaders are convinced that his hotel room in Washington was bugged by the FBI on the evening of the great march on the Lincoln Memorial in August, 1963.

No one involved will admit this. Newsmen, however, were told that they could hear the tapes and FBI agents have talked about what they revealed.

Katzenbach has declined to talk about wire tapping or bugging pending a hearing in August on the Baker case. Spokesmen at the Justice Department will say only that neither electronic eavesdropping, which is less restricted legally, nor wire tapping of telephones has gone on for the past year. The era of wholesale tapping began in 1961 in Las Vegas, Nev., when a series of taps were placed on the phones in big-time gamblers' offices and hotel rooms. Baker was at least indirectly involved in the Las Vegas investigation.

Here again where authority lies is the plaguing issue for the Attorney General. The late Robert H. Jackson, after he had left the Attorney General's office and gone to the Supreme Court, once said that no Attorney General in his memory had exercised control over J. Edgar Hoover, the director of the FBI. This private admission bore out the impression that, solidly entrenched with Congress and a master of the art of public appeal, Hoover was a law unto himself.

If Katzenbach has put an end to eavesdropping and wire tapping, except in cases involving national security, that should be put on the public record. A lot more light is needed in that dark malodorous room. — Copyright, 1966, by United Features.

Letters To The Editor

A Perfect Cover?

To The Spectator:

The biggest joke is to witness a "TV editorial" while the station itself is a captive of the enigmatic New York City entrepreneurs actively inflaming racial disturbances in the South while either ignoring or furnishing sparse coverage to similar occurrences in the North.

The very nature of the futile war of attrition we are now entrapped in has provided the paradoxical situation whereby the Administration — while piously calling for unity — is actually encouraging racial anarchy.

Thus, dictatorial powers may be invoked without a formal declaration of war. Viewed in cold print away from the propagandistic TV, President Johnson's actions appear incredible. First assuring us that "we are in Viet Nam to contain communism" he now urges expanded trade with the Soviet bloc.

Since Kremlin satellites vainly wooed with American generosity and even our allies supply war material to Hanoi prolonging that conflict it must be presumed that our involvement has other implications.

It provides a perfect "cover" to impose higher taxes and also abet lawless elements to provoke racial violence. In plain words one segment of our populace has been handed the privilege of inciting disorders while those attempting to defend themselves are threatened with federal persecution and the enactment of additional repressive legislation.

OSCAR LAPIROW

Letters for publication must bear the writer's name and address. The editors, at their discretion, may permit use of initials or pseudonyms if this is requested for a good reason. In general, preference will be given to writers willing to take responsibility for their views. Letters should be kept as short as possible. All letters are subject to editing.

Likes Paper

To The Spectator:

I want to tell you how much I enjoy the various columns of your paper — different from those in daily papers. Glad you even have a regular one for us bowlers with good news besides plain scores.

Your paper is getting better and better.

P.S.: I work in Columbus and read my boss' copy. Wish we could get it at home.

Wants Cleanup

To The Spectator:

A chain drive-in restaurant distributes literature asking its customers to help them be "good neighbors" by refraining from honking horns, squealing brakes, etc. That's an excellent idea, but why do Columbus citizens leave such a drive-in and strive for the title of "Litterbug of the year"? For two blocks in four directions, area residents awaken each morning to lawns resembling Times Square after New Year's Eve. Literally hundreds of paper bags, paper napkins, paper cups and paper boxes litter the area. If the customers are determined to be slobs, would it not be good public relations for the company benefiting by all this business to send out an employe on a clean-up jaunt?

A Disgusted South Sider.

TO SERVE

Chaplain (1st Lt.) Don M. Dawson has been added to the Protestant chaplain staff at Lockbourne Air Force Base. Chaplain Dawson, a 29-year-old Indiana native, received a direct commission in the Air Force May 6. He previously served as associate pastor of the First Church of God in Charleston, W. Va. He and his wife, Joyce, live on the base. He enjoys handball and swimming in his spare time.

Attendance Good At Lockbourne

Summer Bible School of Lockbourne and Shadeville Methodist Churches were well attended in spite of the heat.

Mrs. Helen Gloyd has returned to her home from her son, Paul's, since her illness there.

Mrs. Stella Peters and Mrs. Clarabelle Myers spent Thursday to Sunday in Cleveland, visiting Mrs. Myra Sherman Schuster, formerly of Lockbourne.

Mr. and Mrs. George Delong have moved from the Forshey property to their son's home in Groveport.

The Tattmans of McArthur were Monday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Knece.

Mrs. Fannie Dill and Mr. and Mrs. Gene Dill visited Mrs. Doris Cook last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Kissell of Newark spent Sunday evening with his mother, Mrs. Lottie Kissell.

Groveport Methodist On Summer Schedule

Groveport Presbyterian Church is operating on a revised schedule for the rest of the summer.

Worship services will be held each Sunday at 9:30 a.m. with a story hour set for children at the same time.

Church officials said they designed the schedule to meet the needs of worshipers with busy summer schedules.

Stiner Guest Pro

Charles Stiner, Lockbourne AFB golf pro, will match his shots with contestants in the 15th annual "Beat the Pro" tourney at the South Golf Range Saturday.

The tourney is an annual money-raising project of the Nightingale Cottage which accommodates convalescing babies and children under 16.

LET'S NOT BE LITTERBUGS

Mayor Bob Baer knows a good deal when he sees one, and the offer of the Groveport Businessmen's Association to place trash cans with flip lids throughout the business section of the village was accepted with alacrity. Standing in the truck distributing the cans are, from the left, Dick Hamler, Berman Thompson and Jim Young. On the street are, from the left, Louis Haines, Tom Hughes, Mayor Baer, Wes Murray and Wilson Richardson.

Central Savings Hikes Interest On All Savings

Central Savings and Loan Co. is now paying 4½ percent on passbook savings and five percent on certificates of deposit.

Walter F. Heer, Sr., president of the firm, said, "The present policy of most financial institutions is away from the small saver and in the direction of the large investor. We are trying to encourage thrift across the board."

Present holders of bonus certificates will receive the extra interest rate at the end of the present period.

Central Savings and Loan offices are located at 46 E. Gay-st, 4258 N. High-st, 4200 Shoppers-ln, and in the Berwick Plaza Shopping Center.

GARDEN BOOKSHELF

"The Joy of Geraniums" by Helen Van Pelt Wilson, published by M. Barrows and Co., N.Y., describes all of the geraniums that are too seldom seen. A book for every geranium collector or for those who would like to start.

"Consider the Lilies," by Alfred Martin, published by Charles Tuttle, Rutland, Vt. A wonderful title but certainly misleading. A marvelous book on Japanese flower arranging including arrangements for special occasions such as Christmas, Easter and Valentine's Day with illustrations and diagrams.

"The Miniature Rose Book," by Margaret E. Pinney, published by Van Nostrand, Princeton, N. J.

Have you ever wished for roses that you could raise either inside or out? Miniature roses are the perfect answer and this newest book on the subject gives names, descriptions, care and culture.

OCTA PICKS WINNERS

The play excerpt competition featured at this conference gave eight community theatre groups a chance to display 15 minute excerpts from one of their outstanding plays of the season.

Carolyn Lane, regional representative for OCTA, announced the following winners: first place, Gallery Players of the Jewish Center with "The Glass Menagerie," second place went to Columbus Players Club for "A View From the Bridge." The Ohio State University's Stadium Theatre with "Mr. Roberts" won third place.

The Best Actress Award went to Edye Mendelson for her performance in "A View From the Bridge." The Best Actor Award was presented to Leo Bininger for his portrayal of Doc in "Mr. Roberts."

New Fun At Cedar Point

New is the keyword at Cedar Point, located at Sandusky, O., on Lake Erie. Since 1959 $11 million has been invested, including $1½ million this year, for new rides, new restaurants and new buildings. In fact, everything is new at Cedar Point.

One of the most modern amusement parks in the country, it offers a variety of summer fun. There is a wonderful, clean bathing beach. A remodeled hotel with 275 additional rooms equipped with air-conditioning and television is situated in the middle of the park. If dancing and music interest you, there's a beautiful ballroom with a parade of name bands scheduled for the summer.

A new parking lot has been constructed and completely blacktopped to park 10,000 cars. Twenty-four trams were purchased from the World's Fair to carry you from your car to the park.

If you are inclined to look at pretty girls and like lots of excitement, the finals of the Miss Ohio Pageant will be held at the fun spot beginning July 11 through July 16. This is always an interesting and colorful event to attend. If you can't make it for the Miss Ohio Pageant, be sure and visit Cedar Point some time during the season, because every weekend there is fun and excitement at this popular playground on the shores of Lake Erie.

Virginia Woolf At Palace

"Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" starring husband and wife, Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton, is currently showing at RKO Palace theater. Miss Taylor is seen in one of her many tearful moods in the picture. The Warner Brothers' production is produced by Ernest Lehman and directed by Mike Nichols.

Coventry Inn Plans To Open Third Facility

Plans for a third Coventry Inn to be located at 433 S. Hamilton-rd, were announced today by Sam Fountas, president of Coventry Inn, Inc. The new steak house, identified by its familiar English Tudor exterior, will open the latter part of August.

"This is a continuation of our expansion program which began in 1964 when we first introduced the $1.85 top sirloin steak dinner in Columbus," said Fountas. "The new restaurant will be called the Coventry 'Round Table' and will accommodate 600 persons."

With the addition of the new facilities on Hamilton-rd, the Coventry Inn steak houses are now one of the fastest growing restaurant chains in Central Ohio. The first restaurant opened in October, 1964, at 1991 Riverside-dr. It is operated by Nick Moraitis, vice president of Coventry Inn, Inc.

Last December, another Coventry Inn was opened at 810 E. Dublin-Granville-rd.

IN & AROUND TOWN

EDITED BY ROLAND SUNKER

A guide to performers and performances in the Columbus area this week

A New Stage For Pritchard

Talented Ted Pritchard, a Columbus resident since 1961, is on lease from the stages of Columbus. Currently at Stratford, Conn., for the Champlain Shakespeare Festival where he will appear in three plays, "Hamlet," "Henry VI, Part I," and a Shakespeare comedy. A point of interest is that Ted applied and was auditioned by tape recording.

Ted has portrayed many roles while performing for different theater groups. He has appeared in productions for Players Club, Gallery Players, Otterbein College, Kenley Players and POG.

Some of the roles he has portrayed are Hildy Johnson the star reporter in "Front Page." He stopped the show in a dance scene from "Milk and Honey." At Players Club he was the "love-interest" role in "Once Upon a Mattress," and also appeared in "Becket." He also portrayed "Eric" in "Mary, Mary" at Playhouse on-the-Green.

When Ted returns to Columbus in September he will then prepare for OSU's tour of "Stop the World" as Little Chap. Touring for two months, the company will include Iceland and Greenland as part of the tour.

Columbus theater goers are enthusiastic about Ted Pritchard's success as an actor and will surely applaud his return to the local stage.

Bowling A Go-Go

Besides offering 50 lanes with the latest equipment Lincoln Village Lanes has several "added attractions." There are 10 billiard tables, a snack bar and the beautiful C'est Bon cocktail lounge. For those who have never visited the C'est Bon lounge, there is an exciting experience in store for you. It is one of the most colorful and imaginatively decorated spots in the area. The decor is modern French, and it gives the room a distinctive air.

Showcase Brightens Screen

Continental Showcase, seen every Saturday over the CBS Network (Channel 10) is a new and refreshing program. A summer replacement for Jackie Gleason, this show, in my opinion, is far better than many of the variety shows broadcast during the regular winter season.

The basic idea of the show is to showcase talent in Europe to American viewers. Hence, we have a chance to see something new and different. But, more than this, the program has one of the finest collection of singers, dancers and comedians of any variety programs produced in the US. These are real artists who are simply loaded with good, solid entertainment ability.

Production wise, Continental Showcase is not put together like most of the typical variety shows. There are elaborate production numbers. The photography is exciting, and at times breath-taking. In fact, from a visual standpoint, this show was more like a movie than a TV presentation.

Not only entertaining, Continental Showcase is educational and interesting. You are shown many sights of the continent, as well as ususual tidbits about life in Europe. In one of the first programs, the band that plays for the changing of the guards at Buckingham Palace was shown playing some swinging Dixieland jazz.

Hosted by Jim Backus, Continental Showcase could very well be another summer replacement that will develop into a regular fall and winter show.

And So It Grows . . .

When watering your lawn, wet the soil to a depth of six to eight inches. Ohio State University Extension specialists say it's better to water deep rather than sprinkle lightly more often.

Frequent light sprinklings encourage the growth of weeds and make the turf even more susceptible to drouth and heat injury. You can expect to water bluegrass lawns during drouth periods every week to 10 days. Try not to apply water any faster than the soil will absorb it.

If you didn't get a pre-emergence crabgrass killer on your lawn, you can still use a post-emergence control such as DMA or AMA. Your lawn may require from two to six applications. Follow the manufacturer's recommended rates.

Keep after those insects that get on your tomato plants. Usually a general purpose garden spray or dust applied every seven to 10 days will do the trick. Here are some common tomato pests:

CUTWORMS are smooth, soft-bodied caterpillars that vary in color from gray to brown or black. Control below-ground cutworms by adding aldrin, dieldrin, or chlordane to the top three inches of soil. Control cutworms that feed at the soil level with sprays or dusts containing dieldrin, aldrin or sevin applied around the base of the plant. Control climbing cutworms that feed on the leaves with TDE or sevin.

FLEA BEETLES are small black jumping beetles that eat small round holes in the leaves. Control them with dieldrin, methoxychlor, sevin or rotenone.

HORNWORMS are green worms three to four inches long with diagonal lines on the side and a horn on the posterior end. They feed on leaves. Control with TDE or sevin.

FRUITWORMS are greenish-brown worms, usually about one and one-half inches long, and have light stripes along the sides and back. They burrow into the fruits. Control by collecting and destroying infested tomatoes, or apply TDE or sevin when first fruit sets.

Be sure to follow exact instructions on the label for all insecticides.

You'll want to get rid of mushrooms, toadstools and puffballs in your lawn, especially if children or pets play in the area. Some of these growths are poisonous and others are foul smelling.

Some materials you can use to control them are Calo-clor, Calo-cure, Panogen turf spray, Thimer, Phenyl Mercury or Tersan OM. These fungicides are only temporary controls.

Arranging cut flowers is more than just putting them in water. Try your hand at some special arrangements. If you need some help, imitate arrangements you find in magazines or pictures.

Here are some hints:

– Cut stems of varying lengths.

Gather materials which have one thing in common color, kind, size, shape, texture. Mixtures of a number of different things are difficult to arrange.

If only one kind of flower is selected, use different stages of development—tight buds, half open buds, and full-blown flowers.

Suburbs–

ticularly in the area of urban renewal. But Haytcher believes Whitehall is blazing a new trail among suburbs.

"We've got to do something," Haytecher said. "We've got to know which way we are growing. And so do all the other suburbs."

Physician–

Dr. Courtright's residence which was razed in 1960 to make way for the Wagnalls addition.

Dr. Courtright who served as a surgeon major during the Civil War, practiced for many years in the area with a history written in 1912 listing him as one of the three doctors in Lithopolis, along with Dr. Edward Roller who is still actively practicing in spite of his age.

THE SPECTATOR SUPPLEMENT

GOLF GEAR TO BE PARADED

Top Women Golfers To Compete Here

By The Spectator's
MARIANNE TOMLINSON

Ladies . . . mark your calendar now for July 14, 15, 16 and 17th and plan to head for Stoney Creek Country Club. There you'll see the best female golfers in the United States, swinging like the professionals they are during the second annual Lady Carling Open.

There you'll see a profusion of golf fashions worn by the "Lady Pro's," local amateur golfers (who will be paired with the LPGA members) and even by the gallery.

You'll see everything from Marilyn Smith's skirts to Patty Berg's support stockings . . .

Marilyn Smith advocates femininity on the golf course and wears lovely soft pastel colors. Sometimes a blouse . . . sometimes a Cashmere sweater (even on a hot day) . . . but always a skirt. She also accessorizes in typical golfing fashion) and wears earrings and a pin. The ones I remember best from last year were tailored and a combination of pearl and gold.

Regarding Patty Berg's support stockings . . . I guess if we'd been tramping the golf links as long as she has we'd find them practical too. As a matter of fact, if you have any leg problems at all, try some of the new support stockings . . . they feel and look great these days.

The slickest fashion I noted during last year's initial Lady Carling Open at Walnut Hills was worn by Louise Suggs. I hesitate to mention it; but play was cancelled on one day when the rains came. . . more accurately, I should say, the lightning came (play is not stopped for rain but, according to PGA rules, at the first sign of lightning, players are permitted to head for the clubhouse).

Louise came in looking smart (as usual since she designs golf fashions for a leading company) but more importantly . . . dry. Her shorts fascinated me so I asked her if her company was marketing them. As it turned out, a friend had made them for her . . . and you could do the same thing. They were made of soft, translucent plastic on a regular bermuda shorts pattern. They were cut larger of course because they are slipped on over the sunny-day shorts and usually in a hurry. They had a Velcro closing (the kind you just press together) on one side. Slits had been left in the other seam to get to tees, etc., in the regular golfing pockets.

Golfing raingear . . . which we hope won't be needed during this year's tourney . . . is attractive as well as practical and you can find lots of variety in the Country Club Pro Shops and department store sporting sections.

In the same areas you can find lots of practical golf fashions from head to toe.

Golf hats designed to shade your eyes . . . protect your coiffure from the sun . . . keep your hair out of your eyes . . . and add a feminine topping to the sometimes masculine look of shirt and shorts.

Many golf shirts are roomy to facilitate the proper swing. Shorts have pockets . . . pockets . . . for all the necessities of the game and sometimes they come with a little tabs on the belt or pocket to hold extra tees.

Even socks are designed for practicality. They are abbreviated and generally they have little round balls of yarn at the back (as a neophyte I threatened to cut off until I learned they are there for a purpose) . . . they are designed to keep the socks from riding down into the shoes as you stride along.

Golf shoes have one prime requisite . . . cleats . . . to get a good grip on "terra firma". Sometimes though . . . the terra is not so firma . . . and your beautiful white shoes get muddy and grass stained. The answer . . . buy shoes made of washable calf or Corfam, the man-made leather by DuPont.

During the Lady Carling Open, the official committee, the marshals and the scorekeepers will also look smart. All I'll tell you about their outfits is that they are a handsome combination of Carling colors . . . Red, Black and White . . . for further fashion details I suggest you go see for yourself.

You know, it really doesn't matter whether you are personally interested in golf (or golf fashions) or not to enjoy this tournament . . . if you love excitement and competition . . . if you want to see some really astounding golf . . . plan on seeing the nation's topmost lady golfers and their local counterparts in the Lady Carling Open at Stoney Creek . . . July 14th through the 17th.

City National Unveils Plans For New 'Bankamericard'

City National Bank has unveiled plans to join the Bank of America credit card system with a new "all-purpose" Bankamericard.

City National President John C. McCoy said that the credit card concept brings a great new shopping and banking convenience to this area.

Chairman Everett D. Reese said, "Credit cards have the potential of combining both the checking account and installment loan functions of a bank with the shopping and bill-paying ease not available before. It's a giant step by our bank in offering a new customer service."

Bankamericard differs from the conventional "travel-and-entertainment" cards which have been in use for several years, McCoy pointed out

Although a definite introduction date has not yet been set, the card should make an appearance within a few months, Chairman Reese stated.

McCoy noted that City National plans to have at least 100,000 card-holders and up to 3,000 merchants from the Central Ohio area participating in the plan.

"We expect to have the card honored almost everywhere to buy almost anything," McCoy said.

'Salesmanship' Looms As Checkers First Big Job

By JACK WITTENMEIER

"We've got a tremendous educational process before us. Some people think all you've got to do is open the doors and everybody will rush in. But things just don't happen that way."

This was Frank Gallagher talking — the new Columbus Checkers general manager stating his realization of the big job ahead, that of selling big-time hockey to a largely unfamiliar Columbus sporting audience.

BUT GALLAGHER won't be alone in this major salesmanship task. He'll be flanked by the Brothers Schmelzer — Ray and Jerry — and a pair of Clevelanders who transformed a hope to bring hockey to the Capital City into reality in 14 busy months.

"Columbus is the fastest growing city in Ohio," said Ray. "But more important Columbus has a degree of dynamics which is probably obvious only when you look in from the outside."

The International Hockey League Checkers, who open Oct. 21 vs. Dayton on the Coliseum ice, promised to be colorful — all the way from their newly-hired player-coach "Moe" Bartoli right down to their checkerboard uniforms.

BARTOLI (proper first name Edward) has an 11-year backlog of ice experience, led the IHL in scoring ('62-'63 season at Minneapolis) and still holds a seasonal mark in "hat tricks" (three goals in one game) for a single season.

Soft-spoken, Moe apparently lets his hockey do the talking for him.

"We'll have an aggressive young team with lots of enthusiasm," says Bartoli. "These players (average age 21) come out of the Junior Ontario Hockey League ready to play. They all want to make the big leagues.

"WE CAN'T let ourselves get behind the eight ball this first season. We've got to make the playoffs (top four)."

Bartoli's aggressive club ought to be to the new skipper's liking. Moe paced the Eastern Hockey League and the IHL two years running in time spent in the penalty box.

It's possible that the Checkers could take their lumps in the early going since the local entry will be facing vet-loaded member teams.

BUT AS Bartoli says, "Youth prevails. We can go a long way."

Presently, the Checkers have a six-man roster, all drafted from the IHL. Fourteen players (six start a game) will be dressed for the opener.

The Checkers' affiliation with the parent Chicago Black Hawks can be likened in many degrees to the baseball Jets' working agreement with the NL Pirates.

COLUMBUS figures to be the Hawks' number two "farm club" with St. Louis number one. There doesn't appear to be any scarcity of available talent with 70,000 players registered in the U.S.

And the "piracy" of budding young stars during a title drive — long associated with baseball relationships— is largely removed from hockey.

"It's possible that a good player will be called up for a few games (generally when the Checkers are idle) but he isn't taken for the whole season," one local official offered.

CITY OFFICIALS, overjoyed over the landing of both pro-basketball and hockey in one year, are now directing their efforts toward the newly organized United States Professional Football League.

All new league cities will be announced by Sept. 1.

The addition of pro athletic teams to the Columbus sporting agenda is paramount to drawing more business concerns locally, city officials feel.

"WE'VE RUN into several major concerns who very plainly tell us their junior executives simply don't want to live in Columbus because the city lacks well-rounded sports excitement," one official commented.

How exciting is hockey?

Exciting enough to provide sellout crows at 97 percent of all pro-hockey games. "Show me another major sport which can boast of that kind of attendance," beams GM Gallagher.

MAYOR Sensenbrenner, who atterded Bartoli's breakfast introduction to the press last week, commented, "All you've got to do is have a winning team."

But owner Ray Schmelzer isn't distressed by Ohio fandom's unfortunate desertion of the loser, pointing to hockey's similarity to pro football, a top drawer everywhere.

"Both are fast, contact games," Ray relates, "and unlike baseball 50 percent of hockey strategy cannot be automatic, making for a more exciting, spontaneous sport.

But right now Ray, Jerry and company would be pleased to see the "SRO" sign hanging often from the Coliseum entrances this fall (that would be about 6500 per game).

Incidentally, ticket prices will be $3.50, $3, $2.50 and $1.50 with season tickets (36 home games) going at $110, $99 and $85.

THE INGREDIENTS are there — a sizzling hockey puck traveling at 110 m.p.h. and instant stitching right at rinkside in case of injury (we're told there are a few).

But right now the need is for salesmanship and Gallagher and the Schmelzer Brothers aren't letting much grass grow under their feet in that capacity.

Gallagher hopes to organize a league for youngsters with a minimum of six teams (Checker players serving as coaches, the Coliseum ice providing the site).

"WE ALSO hope to offer free skating after the games to fans who bring along their skates," Gallagher added.

Additional promotional plans include televising of several home games ("if we can stay away from national TV conflictions") and an educational session for the press prior to the opener.

It appears the Checker management will leave few doors unopened in the quest to indoctrinate local fandom on their game.

"WE HAVE a color film on hockey we're willing to show anyone, any time," Ray Schmelzer concluded. "Get four ladies together for tea, and we'll show it."

Hens, Braves Here, Close Home Stand

The Columbus Jets, their exciting brand of baseball reflected in increased attendance figures this season, wrap up home stand number seven this weekend.

Toledo's Mud Hens complete a three-game series tonight (8 p.m.) in the visitors' dugout, yielding to Richmond — the Braves invading for three night games (8 p.m.) through Saturday.

Friday will be "Grandview Little League" and "Columbus Forge and Iron Night" at the Stadium.

Following Saturday's game, the Jets journey to Jacksonville and Richmond on a southern swing before returning home a week from Saturday to open a three-day four-game series with the Suns.

Cordle-For-McCualsky At B-H; Decola Stays Full-Time At St. Mary

The Columbus Public Schools announced that Monroe "Moe" Cordle, pilot of Walnut Ridge's District baseball co-champs this past spring and assistant basketball mentor, will be head cage tutor at Brookhaven High.

CORDLE WILL replace Don McCualsky, who will take a resourse teaching position in the Department of Health and Physical Education at the Board of Education's downtown office.

Cordle and McCualsky had been at their respective schools since 1962 and had both served together at one time as coaches at Barrett Junior High.

IT WAS also learned this week that Ray DeCola, head football, basketball and track mentor at St. Mary, will not coach at the new Wehrle High School this fall as had been originally announced.

DeCola, who was to have directed grid activities at both schools (St. Mary and Wehrle) this fall, will limit himself to coaching duties at St. Mary this coming season.

Original plans called for DeCola to handle both reserve duties at Wehrle (has only freshmen and sophomores) and varsity duties at St. Mary (juniors and seniors).

Elsewhere, the Hamilton Local School Board was scheduled to meet last night to consider 1966-67 coaching contracts.

THE NAME most widely circulated as possible Ranger football coach this fall has been that of Bill McProuty, head grid mentor at Carroll High last year.

North-Side Veteran Tells Clintonville Women Of War

Allan Sandburg hung his head when the last slide flashed on the screen. It was a picture of two trucks loaded with the coffins of American GIs. "This will end when the politicians stop interfering," he said.

Sandburg is an ensign in the Naval Reserve and has just recently returned from one year's tour of duty in Saigon, Viet Nam. He was the featured speaker at the Clintonville Women's Club last Tuesday.

At Taa Son Nhut airport where he was stationed, Sandburg was supervisor of construction and chief designer for an intelligence center in Saigon. He has had extensive intelligence training and in his first months in Viet Nam, Sandburg's work was highly classified

In those first months, Sandburg was on duty 12 hours every day, seven days a week. He said that most of the men have similar schedules.

Sandburg was recently bivouacked at the Hotel Victoria in Cholon, the Chinese sector of Saigon. While he was in his seventh-floor room, a Viet Cong bomb exploded below him, smashing the building and injuring him. He received the Purple Heart commendation.

Male visitors at the Women's Club gave Sandburg a small ovation when he told them that women in Viet Nam do 90 per cent of all manual labor. He said that the Vietnamese women do nearly all of the road work including driving the heavy machinery and trucks.

The ensign said that the new television stations were largely responsible for recent propaganda successes. He said that many South Vietnamese watch each night as their soldiers chase the "evil" Viet Cong into the jungle and annihilate them via the magic screen.

Ensign Sandburg is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sandburg, 4229 Olentangy-rd. He attended Ohio University and is working on a degree in industrial design.

Northland Features Army Combat Exhibit

The U. S. Army's "think factory" will be on display for a week beginning today at Northland Shopping Center at Morse and Karl-rds.

The "think factory" is a mobile van telling the story of the U. S. Army Combat Development Command (USACDC) and depicts the command's main mission — providing the Army Chief of Staff with information on organization and equipping of an army.

The exhibit is entitled "Today's Vision — Tomorrow's Victory." It features a control panel which visitors can operate to try their hand at military tactics. It is embellished with motion pictures, color slides and animated panels.

The exhibit was produced by the U. S. Army Exhibit Unit at Cameron Station, Va.

Also on the Northland agenda this week is tomorrow night's segment of a series of summer concerts, this one featuring the chorus of the Columbus Chapter of Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America.

The concerts are held each Thursday evening. Organ recitals are staged every Friday.

NEW SERIES

Fr. Raymond Bauschard, pastor of St. Mary Magdalene Church, S. Roys and Wicklow, announces that a new series of Miraculous Medal Novena services has begun. The services will continue for nine weeks. Fr. Patrick Byrne, assistant pastor ta St. Ladislas Church, will be the guest preacher.

OSU Professors Will Travel To Purdue Seminar

Two North Side residents are among three Ohio State University professors who will attend a four-day symposium on "Application of the Sciences in Marketing Management" at Purdue University July 12-15.

Making the trip will be James F. Engle, 1945 N. Devon-rd, and Louis W. Stern, 1785 North West Court F.

The school is sponsored by Purdue's Herman C. Krannert Graduate School of Industrial Administration.

Long Promotes Good Driving

The latest innovation in Chet Long's long-running campaign to promote good driving habits was unveiled recently on his 7 p.m. "Looking With Long" newscast on Channel 10.

In conjunction with his current safety awareness plan, in which viewers are urged to send in license numbers of motorists they observe driving in a particularly careful and courteous manner, Long is now offering colorful and cheerful "Tip o' the Hat" bumper stickers to both nominees and the persons nominating them.

The self-adhesive stickers are round, measure 4½ inches in diameter, and are printed in an eye-catching combination of dark blue, green, chartreuse, black, white and flesh color. Depicted is a smiling cartoon character reminiscent of a happy Irish leprechaun peering over a wreath of laurel and deftly tipping his bright top hat to the world at large.

No advertising or lettering of any kind appears on the patch. "This little fellow says all he has to say with just that cheery tip of his hat," says Long. "And we hope that infectious grin of his peering back from Central Ohio car bumpers starts an epidemic of courteous, careful driving."

Buckeye Ups Interest Rate

An increase to five percent annually earned in six months on Savings Certificates of $10,000 and over has been announced by the Buckeye Federal Savings and Loan Association.

Although the dividend rate for certificates of $1,000 to $9,000 remains at four and three-quarters percent, they now need only to be on deposit for six months to earn the annual rate.

The action was taken by the board of directors, according to William S. Guthrie, president, after changes in the Home Loan Bank Board regulations announced recently.

ARE NEW BSA OFFICERS

Youth Corps Give Incentive To Delinquents, Needy

Excerpted from the WRFD Commentator

Under Ward Barritt and a staff of young counselors, Columbus' Youth Corps program now has about 840 youngstérs from 16 to 20.

The program's aims are clear: encourage dropouts to get back into school and deter potential dropouts form leaving school. The method is even simpler: get full-time and part-time jobs for the young people and make them continue their education as a condition for keeping the jobs.

"Basically I guess you could say we're paying them to go to school," mused Barritt, "but don't let anyone kid you that they don't work for their pay—and in useful jobs."

To qualify for the Youth Corps one must be poor, income averaging less than $3,100 a year for a family of four. Past offenses against society do not eliminate a person from the Corps. About 10 percent of Columbus' enrollees have prior convictions for such offenses as auto theft, breaking and entering, truancy, and incorrigibility.

"I actually try to recruit kids who've had trouble with the law," says counselor Lindsay Johnson, "because they return a fuller value to society if they can be turned back to the straight and narrow."

Johnson oversees some 80 Youth Corpsmen employed mainly at City Hall and the Police Department. He leans heavily on the assistance of policewoman Catherine Phillips, mother of three and a former juvenile worker herself, who shepherds 31 Corpsmen now assigned to jobs in the department.

Mrs. Phillips admits that the Department approached the idea with misgivings: "At first, many people here had their doubts about the program . . . and we had some confusion until we weeded out a few who couldn't fit into the discipline here."

Despite the notable achievements of the Youth Corps, the program is not entirely free of defects. In Columbus, director Barritt said the main difficulties were in finding out-of-school boys and encourging them to enroll in NYC, motivating youngsters whose attitudes toward work are very negative, and maintaining close and continuous contacts between the 800-plus Corpsmen and the 10 counselors.

Youth Opportunity Centers, under the U.S. Department of Labor, now place Corpsmen in available jobs. Some observers forsee a marked slow-down in the tempo of Youth Corps as a result of anticipated federal cutbacks in anti-poverty spending. Others belive that Youth Corps appropriation will not be slashed, although they don't look for substantial increases.

In any case, the program is not expected to expand perceptibly during the next fiscal year, despite its demonstrated worth and its obvious need. In Ohio alone, where 9533 youngsters are now enrolled in NYC, about 25,000 more are conservatively figured to be in need of this kind of help.

Unfortunately, some persons close to the program predict that the Corps will be cut instead of expanded in order to achieve the more desirable counselor-Corpsman ratio. In short, the same amount of money will be used to serve fewer young people.

Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz still maintains that the size of the program will be substantially increased. In the same breath, however, he implicitly invokes several standards of austerity for the program.

"Stern priority," he insists, "will be given to those projects which hit the hard cases hardest, to those which reach the poorest poor." Does this mean that the modestly poor will not be reached? Wirtz does not say.

With the topographical map complete for the site of the Eastland Vocational School on Hamilton-rd just south of Williams-rd, the architects are at the drawing boards and the District School Board is studying applications for the postion of Eastland superintendent. According to Tom Quick, Franklin County superintendent, it is anticipated the post will be filled by the end of the month. Mrs. Rosena Risley of Whitehall has been named secretary for the new vocational district. A hearing on the tentative budget already approved by the board is slated for noon, Monday, July 18, in Quick's court house office.

GALLO CITES NATIONAL TREND

"No-New-Tax" Policy Backfires

FRANK P. GALLO

By WALTER TAYLOR

Upper Arlington officials see the overwhelming defeat of their charter amendment calling for a three mill property tax increase as a symbol of a national trend that could seriously alter government expenditures on all levels.

The amendment was beaten by a margin of better than seven to three and the north-Columbus suburb stands to sink to a lower government level than other area municipalities over which Arlington residents usually claim to tower.

The Arlington amendment was supposed to provide for the training and uniforming of nine additional firemen and eight additional policemen. It also called for adjustments and an operative budget for maintenance of existing equipment. Instead the city will continue to utilize men and equipment geared to a community of three-quarters the size of Arlington.

The average growth of Arlington is approximately 2000 per year and in 10 years, the equipment and men will be so outmoded as to be ridiculous, says Col. Frank P. Gallo, Upper Arlington safety director. In addition, Gallo says, the existing budget calls for police and firemen salaries equally ridiculous.

As it stands now, Arlington police and firemen are salaried far below Columbus employes and the situation is even worse than it appears on paper. While a Columbus fireman earns almost one hundred dollars more a month, he also works 16 hours a week less. With the Arlington departments on the merit system, a man must show he deserves a raise in pay and is not paid in accordance with experience or seniority. In other words, a twenty-year, fire-department veteran could conceivably be making base pay if his work is not of an outstanding nature. A Columbus fireman is paid $620 after four and one-half years regardless of his accomplishments "above and beyond the call of duty." This figure represents the maximum of an Arlington Fire Captain.

Gallo said that many of the fire and police department staff have taken civil service examinations and are on the Columbus waiting list. These men will leave Arlington to join the Columbus departments as vacancies occur. "Who can blame them?" Gallo says.

And the ironic thing is that Arlington residents are not over-taxed now. In a report issued by Citizens' Research, Inc., a non-political Columbus organization, it was disclosed that of 14 Ohio cities of comparable size, Upper Arlington ranks 11 in property tax rates. Six of these cities have income taxes; Arlington has none. Considering this additional tax, the equivalent total shows Upper Arlington last on the list.

What is the problem? Gallo says. Governor Rhodes' "no-new tax" policies represent the national sentiment. "People everywhere are opposed to higher taxes of any kind, regardless of how important they are to the gov-

Don Vansant Returns To Hamilton

METHODIST YOUTH OUT TO HELP

Do you have any used clothing or small repairable household items you can spare? The Methodist Youth Fellowship of the Obetz church has taken up the cause of Good Will Industries and is looking for other MYF groups in the South Suburban area to join them in their campaign to help the handicapped. At the new collection center on Groveport-pk in Obetz the first contributors were from the left, Patti Johnson, Kathy Brintlinger, Darlene Howdyshell and Bobbin Benson. From the left, to the back, are Richard Ash of Good Will and the Rev. Charles Titko of the Obetz and Walnut Hills Methodist Churches.

Don Vansant, veteran of eight years as principal of Hamilton Township High School, is back after two years' exile.

He was employed this week on a three-year contract, but it still won't be exactly like old times.

He will serve as principal of the junior high and John Ruehling, hired last spring for this job, will step up to the senior high principalship, also on a three-year contract. (Financially speaking there is little difference in the posts, with only a $500 gap between the two five-figure salaries).

A new position, that of junior high librarian, was filled with the employment of Mrs. Howard Baughman from the Mentor system. She is the wife of the new athletic director and dean of boys (See sports story).

Among the several resignations accepted at Monday's board meeting was that of Richard Bomhard who served as president of the Teachers' Association last year. He is leaving to accept a position in vocational math.

The board accepted the proposed budget of $1,567,600 for 1967. This is roughly $150,000 over last year's expenditure. This is attributed largely to increased personnel employed to staff the new classrooms opening this fall and lighten the student load carried by teachers last year.

With an alacrity surprising for a group that has stalled for months on a summer recreation program, the board authorized no more than $1,000 to be spent for supervision of the teenage program recently initiated by the Girl Scouts and already well off the ground.

Centered in the cafeteria, the varied activities are scheduled from noon until 5 p.m. every day except Sunday, from 6:30 until 9:30 p.m. on Mondays and Thursdays and on Friday from 7:30 until 10:30 p.m. a dance is held.

It was reported that during the first two weeks of operation, almost one-third of the students not living on Base used the facilities.

At the nudging of Superintendent John Savel the board took a second look at the three-year contract it signed last spring with Encyclopedia Britannica.

Through the contract a film library which Savel claimed would be unique in the state in its scope would be built up.

Objecting to exhausting the school's Title III funds for a lone project but reluctant to break a contract, the board directed the administration to negotiate with Britannica. It is believed the company may be willing to let the school fulfill its contract with purchases other than film.

The meeting, the first regular one since Savel has taken over, was marked by only one executive session which had convened before the 7:30 p.m. open session. Although it extended 45 minutes overtime, it was in pleasant contrast to the routine last spring. Then the audience was left hours at a time to cool its respective heels while board business was discussed behind closed doors.

MORE TEACHERS MEAN MORE $$'S AT MADISON

Money matters occupied Madison Local School Board as it adopted its 1967 budget and agreed to invest the lion's share of the $1,180,000 construction bond funds in certificates of deposit.

The general fund was set at $1,629,000, a figure almost $100,000 higher than last year. Increased instructional expense caused by the employment of 14 additional teachers demanded by inceased enrollment accounts for the largest share of this expense.

The inactive funds will be invested with the Huntington National Bank which will pay four percent on 30-day certificates, four and one-half percent on 90-day certificates and five percent on all deposits left six months.

Phil Williams, superintendent, recommended to the board that the architects be instructed to proceed with plans for a building to house the central office area.

Informal estimates indicate a modest building utilizing a concrete slab flooring and block construction can be built for about $10 a square foot or in the neighborhood of $35,000.

It will be located just north of the new junior high building on Hamilton-rd. If the proposal goes through without any hitches, the office building should be ready for occupancy by the first of the year.

Consideration will be given to moving the present offices temporarily into the junior high to relieve the congestion in the senior high building in Groveport proper.

The clerk was authorized to advertise for bids on bus insurance, gasoline and milk. These contracts are let annually.

Although preliminary plans for the elementary building proposed for the Herderick site are completed, no decision has been made concerning its naming.

Williams explained that it is probable the school will be named after the street which it will face, but that developer Bill Davis has not completed his street patterns.

As the junior high nears completion, the board moved to take "letterhead bids" for the seeding and "back yard" grading needed to complete the site improvement.

Other business included the employment of six teachers.

Joseph Silva of McClure, O., has accepted the post. He has five years teaching experience and received his master's from Ball State University in 1965.

With the exception of the obvious changes inherent to the opening of a junior high, only one change in attendance area has been made for next year.

During the 1966-67 term, students from the Glen Haven will attend Asbury rather than Brice as in the past.

Who's Behind Move To Push Land Grab?

The move afoot to amend the Ohio Code to make political boundaries and those of school districts one and the same is no secret.

Almost anyone concerned with school affairs is aware the proposal for such legislation will be on the agenda when the General Assembly convenes next year.

But the matter of exactly who will sponsor the bill is a hush-hush subject.

Last year the pressure came out of Toledo, fronted by Lucas County Democrats.

Although the bill got no place fast, it is reported similar legislation to be introduced next year has mustered considerable strength with Dr. Harold Eibling of Columbus Public Schools joining the lobby.

According to Paul Walker, State School Board member, the success of such an amendment can "destroy" many excellent school systems.

Obviously alarmed at the "cannbalistic" threat to school districts dependent upon taxes paid by industry annexed to adjacent cities for municipal purposes only, he maintains that "Bigness does not mean quality."

Walker believes that out-of-date criteria in evaluating requests by municipalities to absorb school districts following annexation has led to difficulty.

When land is annexed, it is up to the State Board of Education to determine whether that land shall also be removed from the tax duplicate of the school district. For a number of years, the controversy was at a minimum with the board making judgment simply on the grounds of whether such a loss would impose hardship upon the outlying district.

Generally, the policy was that the district should not be asked to reduce its valuation unless it was relieved of the responsibility of educating a compensating number of pupils.

However, Walker states, the rapidly changing use of land has altered the picture.

"What may be a field of barley today," he said, "is often slated for a shopping center or an extensive subdivision tomorrow."

The uncertainty involved has led rural districts to become increasingly reluctant to see potentially valuable property swallowed by an adjacent municipality.

Claiming the instability of boundares faced by the smaller districts prohibits intelligent and long-range planning, Walker added that he considers any planning

H-T Ok's 4 Coaching Changes

Three coaching changes and the final approval of William McProuty as new football coach (see story on sports page) completed Hamilton Township's '66-'67 athletic line-up this week.

McProuty was also named head track coach, replacing Ray O'Dell, and Wes Mirick, assistant grid mentor last year, replaces Dario Gatti as varsity wrestling coach.

The other change was the approval of Elmo Kalmer as head tennis coach, replacing Marvin Metersky.

Savel Enthusiastically Plunges Into New Job

John Savel, Hamilton Local School District's new superintendent, has tackled his new job with an astonishing enthusiasm.

His enthusiasm is both amazing and infectious in an age where too often the apparent slogan is "Play it cool."

Stating he believes that past differences in opinions in the district have sprung from lack of communication, he stressed that he pictures students, the administration, faculty and personnel and people of the township as all members of the same team.

"We're all going to travel in the same direction," he exclaimed, "and that is toward the development of the total child"

While conceding he comes from districts where producing winning teams are SOP and that he hopes to see the athletic program revitalized, he is emphatic this will not be accomplished at the expense of the academic program.

We've a fine program here, and I propose to make it even better with increased attention to the curriculum needs of our particular student body.

In addition to maointaining an open-door policy in the superintendent's office Savel plans to set up lines of communication in which every individual will know his job and what is expected of him.

He envisions a committee made up of PTA presidents, president of the Teachers Association, the president and vice-president of the school board and the administrative personnel that can act as "an escape valve" to let off steam before molehills develop mountainous proportions.

With at least two regular meetings a year, he added that a special meeting can be called at anytime by any member by giving the clerk two weeks' notice.

Asked about the separation of junior and senior high schools as adopted this spring by the board upon recommendation of D'Alan Huff, former superintendent, Savel stated that he will give the program his complete cooperation.

"Not until the end of the year can it be fully evaluated and a decision made on its merits," he added, indicating his attitude at this point is one of complete neutrality.

The new superintendent also believes that utmost utilization of school facilities is essential.

"These buildings should be open to any type of educational endeavor," Savel said. He explained he sees the high school as the focal point of a wide range of activities, coordinated to contribute to the child's growth—mentally, physically and psychologically.

Taxes—

ernment," Gallo said.

Ohio Finance Director Richard L. Krabach said last week that the people of Ohio don't want any new taxes and they won't accept any.

Gallo said this statement is foolish. "How dependable can our present system be when we have to depend on other cities to furnish fire, police, and ambulance service in emergency cases? Now, if our one emergency squad is being utilized, we have to call Grandview or Clinton Township, or maybe even Columbus for aid. This is carrying the 'no-new-tax' thing a little too far."

Gallo cited a solution to the financial problem facing Arlington and other Ohio cities. He said that the lost revenue in classified or intangible taxes is staggering. Arlington residents paid almost $600,000 in investment taxes last year and received only $23,000 back. "An Ohio law calls for libraries to get first call on intangible taxes," Gallo said. "By the time we get a share, there's nothing left but the scraps. Our people are content to pay taxes to everyone but the city where they live."

Says Gallo, "We'll do the best we can with what we have."

SS Office Sets New Hours For Thursdays

Robert B. Youmans, district manager of the Social Security Administration, has announced the Columbus office will be open Thursdays from 8:45 a.m. to 9 p.m., effective immediately.

During the rest of the week regular hours from 8:45 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. will be in effect.

Evening hours are for the convenience of working people who cannot come into the office during daytime hours.

Garden Club Slates Meet

The Highland Garden Club will meet for a Sandwich and Salad Luncheon at 10 a.m. Monday, July 18, at Westgate Shelter House.

Mrs. T. L. Chase will be chairman for the day's business meeting. Program will be handled by Mrs. Carl Rucker. Mrs. Harold Elliot, member of Belle Flower Garden Club, will be in charge of a Workshop in Flower Arranging.

Hostesses will be Mrs. Ray Hauntz, Mrs. D. H. Lathum, Mrs. A. C. Allen, Mrs. C. C. Munro and Mrs. Howard Thompson.

Land—

less than 10 years in advance ill-founded.

"After all," he said, "the children in the next decade will be living in the 21st century."

Refusing to concede that any school district is too small as long as it does a good job of educating the student, Walker does believe that the mammoth school districts become unmanageable.

"The students lose their identity and are lost," he added, pointing out that the major metropolitan cities of the nation either have or are in the process of decentralizing their administrations.

He laments not only the size of some districts, but the number of students assigned to one teacher.

"We'd do ourselves a favor," he emphasizes, "if we'd worry less about increased teacher salaries and more about teacher load."

Walker feels that teachers in a field requiring close grading (English, for example) are incapable of "doing a job" with more than 125 students. (Many have a pupil load between 175 and 200).

Opinion is sharply divided as to the fate of the proposed legislation.

The opponents, at least publicly, claim they have little to fear.

Those wishing to expand the big city districts at the expense of the outlying ones think the rural areas are whistling in the dark, and it's merely a matter of time till political and school district boundaries will match.

One thing, however, is certain. The fur is bound to fly.

The issue should not be overlooked.

Stripped of their wealth that usually lies close to the cities, how are the non-metropolitan school systems going to provide even a second-rate education for those students from remote areas that the cities couldn't care less about?

HOWARD BAUGHMAN

AT HAMILTON TWP.

Baughman Named AD; McProuty Grid Coach

Hamilton Township High School added two new members to its athletic "team" this week with the appointment of William McProuty as head football coach and Howard Baughman as athletic director.

Baughman, who brings 29 years of experience in athletics to H-T, has coached "every sport but golf" at five Ohio high schools and two colleges.

INCLUDED in Baughman's list of former coaching assignments are Cleveland Heights, Canton, Portsmouth and Mentor (Ohio) the later his most recent address.

Baughman also served at both John Carroll University in Cleveland and Muhlenberg College in Pennsylvania.

The new Hamilton athletic director will be in charge of both Senior and Junior High programs but will not serve in any coaching capacity at either school.

BAUGHMAN will also serve in a newly-created capacity—that of Hamilton's "Dean of Boys."

This position encompasses supervision of after-school athletic procedures and increased emphasis on testing and guidance.

McProuty, who attended Potomac State and Concord Colleges and the University of Maryland, had previously coached at six other high schools in Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia before coming to Hamilton Township as an assistant ('64 season).

Father of four children and a "Green Beret" captain in the Reserves, McProuty has tutored football, basketball, baseball and track during his coaching career.

McPROUTY replaces Dario Gatti at the Ranger grid helm. H-T, plagued with injuries and a light turnout last season, finished 2-6.

Teenager Pulls 15 Lb. Muskie From Scioto

Stephen Held, 17, of 3000 Westwick-rd, landed a 15 pound, two ounce muskie in the Scioto River below Greenlawn dam at 5:30 a.m. Sunday.

The Village Bait Store, which reported the catch, said the fish measured 37½ inches in length with a 17 inch girth.

Young Held took his prize with an eight pound test line.

The catch is to be photographed by state conservation officials.

Reeves' No-Hitter, Bad Hop Net Two Merchant Victories

The South Side Merchants have charged back into contention in the '66 Eastern Pony - Grad League title chase with a pair of recent victories.

Merchant ace Eddie Reeves fired a no-hitter, knocking in a pair of runs himself with two hits, as the South Side nine downed Licking Heights, 11-0.

EARLIER, the Merchants went 11 innings to down Reynoldsburg Civitan, 1-0, in a fine pitcher's duel.

Reeves, who fanned 13 L-H hitters narrowly missed a perfect game when an enemy batter reached base on an error with two out in the final frame.

OTIS ROSS and Reynoldsburg's Steve Pinnick hooked up in a scoreless mound deadlock until the Merchants pushed across a tally in the fourth extra frame.

Ross, who went the first 10 innings (fanned 12, allowed two hits), singled to lead off the 11th. Two sacrifice attempts failed but Ronnie Marshall, who collected two of the five Merchant safeties off Pinnick, lashed a hit to right field—the ball taking a wild hop, bounding past the fielder and allowing the runner to score.

Pinnick fanned 12 batsmen and collected one of the two hits off Ross (shortstop Snyder got the other).

The Merchants now stand 8-3 in Pony-Grad play.

WILLIAM S. WHITE: Johnson Snubs Lefties

WHITE

WASHINGTON—President Johnson's decision to grasp the nettle of manifest necessity and simple duty and so bomb the long-privileged sanctuaries of the Communist aggressors in North Viet Nam is dividing the men from the boys.

To be sure, the most extreme among the peace-at-any-pricers here are now escalating their endless screeches into screams of rage and into denunciations of their own country so ugly and little as hardly to bear hearing or reading.

But these are now, at any rate, screams in which their inherent hatred of any user, in any administration, of honorable power against totalitarianism can no longer be masked.

The lefties in England — and not for the first time — are, in fact, far madder at this government than is Britain's Prime Minister Harold Wilson and are trumpeting up a degree of British displeasure he himself does not feel. It is the usual story that any stick is good enough to beat a dog with — the dog of American policy in Viet Nam.

As to the situation here at home, the President's anguished acceptance of the irreducible obligations of national honor and national necessity is itself enormously healthy. He has spent almost as much strength seeking to placate the lefties here as he has spent in attempting to open any kind of decent peace negotiation with a Communist invader who has contemptuously rejected every American proposal that did not mean our surrender in advance.

The meaning of the bombing, and of the speech in Omaha in which he made it plain that aggression cannot expect to go on partly unpunished, is simply that he will never surrender to the home lefties any more than to the invaders of South Viet Nam.

They have no real policy for Viet Nam except the policy of cut and run. They have no policy toward the President other than a policy of political threats as bellicose as their stance toward the Communist assailants has been soft and forgiving. Because he reads the opinion polls assiduously and assiduously seeks consensus where he can, they supposed that he could be scared out of Viet Nam , just as others once thought they could scare Harry Truman out of his Greece-Turkey line of resistance to Communist expansionism.

Again they have misread their man. On domestic affairs, Mr. Truman was amply "political" and so is Mr. Johnson. But in the somber crisis of this world neither is pushable beyond a fixed point. In Greece-Turkey Mr. Truman's unshakable position was that he was elected President and that there could be only one President at a time. In Viet Nam that is Mr. Johnson's position. It is a posture that Mr. Truman and another President named Dwight Eisenhower totally join; and not all the doctrinaire yammering now going on will alter it one whit.

BARRY GOLDWATER: Military Advice Unheeded?

GOLDWATER

For the second time in less than a month the Johnson-McNamara administration is at odds with its military commanders. And it has been revealed that it is not above flatly misleading the public over questions of national defense.

First, the Army Chief of Staff, Gen. Harold Johnson, testified that the Joint Chiefs of Staff had urged President Johnson to call up the reserves three times—the spring and fall of 1965 and again early this year. They were turned down each time.

I feel strongly that the President's refusal to call up reserve forces and to rely instead upon the unsound and highly ineffective system of drafing schoolboys was motivated by political considerations. On the other hand, to give the President his due, his stated reason, that such a call-up would send "shivers and tremors" through the rest of the world, is unquestionably true.

Just to hit that one another lick, however, I question his judgment as to whether the world needs such shivers and tremors. This is not a time for complacency anywhere in the world. A renewed sense of mission, unity and dedication — which might be helped by admitting that we are at war — could be just the ticket.

More to the point, on this matter of squabbling with the military, is the pattern of disagreement that is developing. We learned recently that the Joint Chiefs disagree flatly with the McNamara-Johnson decision to abandon manned bombers and put all our defense eggs in the single and still bug-filled basket of missiles.

There is disagreement on defense against missiles. McNamara, in effect, says we either can't afford or don't need it. President Johnson has virtually slammed the door on the development of any defenses in the reaches of space where, for all we know, Soviet scientists are developing advanced weaponry day by day.

We have every right to ask whether the McNamara-Johnson power structure ever listens to military advice or whether it has simply decided to let our defenses drop over the next few years.

On the question of misleading the public, the evidence is as pointed. The Senate hearings have now revealed that when Secretary McNamara refuted claims of military shortages by stating we have 16 combat-ready divisions, he was far from frank. We now learn that we would have such a force only if the reserves were called up — a possibility which McNamara and his boss already had precluded.

Recall also that he claimed we were not short of ammo — at a time when we were buying back surplus bombs at a huge premium because we needed them so badly.

Perhaps one of these days we'll get the whole truth. I, for one, will keep pressing for it.

It's Bean Time Again

There's no event during the year dearer to the heart of a Hilltopper than the annual Bean Dinner, sponsored by the Hilltop Business Association.

The two day affair opened yesterday at Westgate Park and continues through 10 p.m. today.

It's the business association's way of saying thank you to its patrons with two tons of free beans, ham and crackers, plus a varied program of entertainment, music, fun and games.

All the oldtimers on the Hilltop will be there and it's a great chance for newcomers to get acquainted and to join in on this grand tradition which has helped the Hilltop maintain a proud community identification throughout changing times.

The Meddlers

Every neighborhood and every community has its meddlers.

These are chiefly persons who don't have enough to do to keep them busy and can afford the time to keep their meddlesome fingers in the affairs of their neighbors and the orderly progression of elected representative government.

The misguided meddlers The Spectator has in mind are not those sincere individuals who give of their time and energies to promote and support good causes. Rather those "againers" who really stand for nothing and are opposed to everything, who place personal interest far in front of community interest. Solo they are a nuisance. Organized they are a menace.

Two outstanding examples of recent organized meddlers are the Save the Scenic Valley Committee and the Watch Arlington Club. The tree-watchers have jeopardized construction of the vital Olentangy Parkway project and the Arlington tax watchers are taking dubious bows for depriving that well-to-do suburb of the most essential of safety services.

Happily, the meddlers win a few battles, but they seldom win the wars.

Roads To Ruin

Upper Arlington voters have shown the same short-sightedness that is the hallmark of the present state administration's "no new taxes" policy.

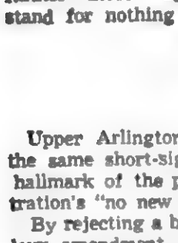
By rejecting a badly needed three-mill levy amendment, voters of the suburb have handcuffed suburban city officials, the police and fire departments.

The few dollars residents saved by resisting the need for added taxes will surely be lost in higher insurance rates and potentially greater property values reflected in areas where quality of municipal services is high.

The state of Ohio is similarly suffering. While hundreds of thousands of tax dollars are being wasted in a drive to promote the "Wonderful World of Ohio," the essential needs of the public are being ignored.

Upper Arlington and state of Ohio are only putting off the day of reckoning and the longer delayed the bigger the bite will be.

Bless 'em All



By The Spectator's
TED BEARDSHEAR

God bless the neurotic.

Without him, most of the advancements of civilization would not have occurred.

If mental health is defined as living in harmony with the status quo, then the malcontent would fall under the definition of mental illness.

And if everyone was content with the status quo, civilization would stand still.

BEARDSHEAR

It has become popular to ridicule the neurotic. His state of dissatisfaction is demonstrably painful but this fact is lost in the belittling.

Taking pot shots at the neurotic is as stylish as the bear baiting of years ago.

Yet from this group comes the ideas that somehow make a lasting change in the future of society.

One can imagine a psychiatrist talking Henry Ford out of his obsession with mechanized transportation. The psychiatrist would make every attempt to help Henry "adjust" to the fact of the horse and buggy.

Similarly, Alexander the Great's favorite skull jockey would have told him how grandiose was his plan to conquer the world.

And Columbus' head shrinker would have drummed into Columbus' head that the world was flat and that was a fact of life he'd just have to live with.

Most of the world's major breakthroughs would have wound up as so much empty talk in a modern medicine man's office if the science we now revere was extant in those times.

Which is not to belittle the very real work that has been and is being done by these men.

It is more to point out that the world has a place for the malcontent, the dissatisfied and the neurotic.

In fact, these people have a better record of contributing than the people who would "cure" them.

They Said It

"We go along with the philosophy that the man who earns the money is more entitled to spend it than the politicians in Washington . . . or some other seat of government where entrenched office holders sitting in positions of power and authority adhere to the theory of the late Harry Hopkins who said the policy of government in power was to 'tax and tax and spend and spend and elect and elect'." Thomasville, Ga., Times-Enterprise.

"Where Did You Get The Idea You Have Anything To Say About It?"

MARQUIS CHILDS: Governors' Illusion

LOS ANGELES—As 50 governors offer their wares this meeting of the Governors' Conference in a Congressional election year was bound to boil over with political speculation. And attention was sure to center on one of their number — George Romney of Michigan — on whom the Republican lightning in 1968 may strike.

CHILDS

The host at the conference, California's Gov. Edmund C. (Pat) Brown, running scared for re-election for a third term, is already making overtures to former Mayor of San Francisco George Christopher whom Ronald Reagan overwhelmed.

While California Republicans spurned a moderate for a conservative, three Western Republican governors speak for the other wing of the party. They are Mark Hatfield of Oregan, running for a Senate seat with a good chance to win, Daniel J. Evans of Washington and Robert E. Smylie of Idaho who in the past has taken the lead in trying to reshape his party in a more moderate image. Evans, who purged the extreme right-wingers, is rated a conspicuous hope for the future. Along with Romney theirs is the prevailing voice at the conference.

As a setting for the conference the new Century Plaza Hotel is a pleasure dome of unparalleled luxury. With seven restaurants, a ballroom seating 2,400 diners, fountains, swimming pool, an 18-hole golf course, each room with color television, the Century Plaza bills itself as "the world's most beautiful hotel." Designed by architect Minoru Yamasaki, the 800-room hotel is a graceful arc with each room having an outside view.

For the big-city governors, each struggling with the ever-more urgent threat of mushrooming urbanism and the attendant problems of crime, deteriorating slums, rising costs for basic services that fall short of needs, Los Angeles is an object lesson in the dramatic contract of affluence and poverty.

Fifteen miles away, not far from downtown Los Angeles, is the Negro ghetto of Watts. An explosion of violence last August cost 34 lives and property valued at $40,000,000. A study just issued by the California Department of Labor says economic conditions in Watts are even worse than before last year's riots. High unemployment, low income for those who do work, substandard housing—all have worsened in the year since the rebellion. The purchasing power of Negro families dropped $400 a year between 1960 and 1965 although in the same period the income of white families rose markedly.

For the governors concerned with whether Federal money will be available to rebuild the cities and whether a Federal tax increase is certain to come next year with the rising cost of the Viet Nam war, Watts is a human document.

Beset as the governors are by every kind of pressure, one can hardly begrudge them their hour to the sun. They can enjoy the illusion of affluence at the plush hotel while the conference lasts. ((Copyright, 1966, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Is For VD Education

To The Spectator:

Five years ago as a teacher in a rural West Virginia school I, at the request of my principal, provided my female students with basic information concerning the problem of venereal disease. The reaction of some of the parents was similar to that to be expected if I had advocated their entering the White Slavery market.

Today, after Public Health authorities alerted the public to a VD rate reaching epidemic proportions in 1963 the alarm is ringing again. The latest 30-day report of cases of infectious syphilis shows an increase of more than 50 percent over a like period last year.

My understanding is that some parents of teenagers are still objecting to the schools giving their children the sex education they are not getting at home. Venereal disease rates traditionally spiral during war times. This is an appeal to overprotective adults to realize venereal disease can be as damaging as an enemy bullet and education is the teenager's best shield.

Likes Coverage

To The Editor:

I wish to compliment The Spectator on its complete and accurate coverage of the Morse-rd controversy thus far. Your efforts toward informing Columbus on the issues in this matter are greatly appreciated by Beechwold citizens.

I feel that by informing the public on the situation, it will have a great effect on the final decision by city planners. If other media devoted as much effort to such local issues, the city would profit greatly.

Keep up the good work.

EDITED BY ROLAND SUNKER

A guide to performers and performances in the Columbus area this week

Max's Has Delightful Duo

Old favorites are back again at Max's Steak House. Phyllis and Richard, a sophisticated duo, are enjoyable to eye as well as to the ear. This group is restful and relaxing. It is not a loud, driving act. Their music, in plain, simple words, is pretty. They realize the importance of sticking to the melody in a song. Phyllis and Richard arrange their music in a solid down to earth style. Sprightly rhythms add zest and personality to their tunes.

Of course it takes more than good arrangements and ideas to build an act. It takes talent. Phyllis and Richard rate an A in this category. Phyllis has a rich, full voice. However, as is true with many lounge acts, at times she seems to let down. This is probably due to boredom. But when she sings, she sings up a storm. You and everyone else will listen. Richard, the pianist, half the duo, blends in well with the mood and style of Phyllis. When they team up on vocals, some pleasing and tasty sounds are served to the customers at Max's Steak House.

The musical menu also offers some pleasant keyboard artistry by Richard. Having no unique or individual style, Richard keeps the mood of the duo by playing lilting, easy listening music.

This is not a group for rock and roll fans. But, if you desire good music, this is the duo for you. Their repertoire consists of commercial tunes of today and yesterday. Some of the songs they play were hit tunes of many years ago that one seldom hears today. How many of you remember "Elmer's Tune"? This is just one example of the oldies they dig up.

Phyllis and Richard are entertaining. It is not a dynamic duo that will stand you on your ear. But this is one two-some you'll enjoy. They are at Max's Steak House every night playing during the dinner hours and through the night for those who enjoy good food and good entertainment.

19th Hole Is Par 4

A brand new cocktail lounge has opened on the East Side of town. It is called the Par 4 and caters to the golfers. However, one will find the "galleries" packed with non-golfers who are interested in being spectators at the popular 19th hole. In fact, the Par 4 is becoming so popular that it's not surprising if you make it there from your favorite golf course with an eagle.

All legal beverages are served as well as authentic Italian pizza, which is included in their carry-out service. The best part of the Par 4 lounge are the caddies. There are two of them, Bertha, a personable young gal who mixes your favorite beverage during the day, and Jody, charming, voluptuous individual, is on duty at night.

Located at 4601 E. Broad-st, the George Zane operated Par-4 is a completely remodeled, intimate cocktail lounge. The "pro," Jess Posey, is the host. Jean invites all of his old friends to stop in and see him between 10 a.m. and 1 a.m.

NEW PLAY AT STADIUM

By next September some 300 performances of Robert Anderson's new play, "The Days Between," will have been presented by some 50 college, community and resident theatre members of American Playwrights Theatre. The same show is currently having its Central Ohio premiere at the Stadium Theatre through Saturday, July 16.

American Playwrights Theatre, with its national headquarters at Ohio State, brings distinguished new plays by established playwrights to the national audience before they are produced on Broadway. APT has 151 members including many of the leading university and community theatres from 40 states.

Robert Anderson, the author of "The Days Between" has also written "Tea and Sympathy," "All Summer Long," and "Silent Night, Lonely Night," for Broadway.

He has recently written the screenplay of "The Sand Pebbles" which Fox Movie Studios will shoot this fall. "The Nun's Story," which starred Audrey Hepburn, is another movie written by Anderson. For this one he was nominated for an Academy Award. He is now writing "The Night of the Generals" for Sam Spiegel, to be made in Paris and Berlin this fall.

"The Days Between" is a sensitive and compelling study of a marriage. It looks honestly at love and loss and the struggle to achieve maturity and understanding.

The female lead in the show is played by Carol Clinger. Carol is an old hand at Stadium Theatre, being in the very first production in the history of the summer playhouse. Carol also played the female lead in the show, "The Male Animal." She was also in the last play of the first season. All of this was accomplished when attending OSU from 1947 to 1950. Carol now makes her home in Cincinnati where she does directing for community theatres and appears in several TV commercials.

The male lead in "The Days Between" is Jack Murdock. Jack is a graduate of OSU in theatre, has also appeared in previous Stadium productions. He worked as a local TV producer-director before turning professional. He has worked in many shows in Hollywood and on the road.

IS COMMANDER

General Gordon, portrayed by Charlton Heston, inspects the defenses of the city of Khartoum on the Nile in "Khartoum," a United Artist release in Cinerama. "Khartoum" is now playing at Grand Cinerama.

FOR EASY LISTENIN'

Phyllis and Richard playing music for dining or just plain, easy listening are currently working at the ever popular Max's Steak House. Phyllis handles the vocal chores and cocktail drums, while partner Richard teams up on piano and joins in on vocals.

THE SPECTATOR SUPPLEMENT

Marianne Surveys New York Fashion Scene

By MARIANNE TOMLINSON

New York — A generous portion of fashion was served the fashion editors in New York Sunday, July 10, the opening day of the American Designers showings. But this was just the first course.

Leading creators of American Fashion will be showing their newest collections to members of the press . . . newspapers, magazines, radio and television . . . through Friday, July 15.

Most important event of the day was when Eleanor Lambert, press director of the American Designer Showings presented her fashion forecast for 1966. She likened the creations of the American Designers to the works of famous artists.

She maintains that our designers many times are inspired by painters and today are using fabric just as an artist uses paint and clay. Miss Lambert (in a beautifully organized slide presentation) likened America's newest fashions to the various schools of art . . . from Grandma Moses, a folk artist to Jackson Pollack, whose more modern technique many times is to drip paint in patterns onto a canvas on the floor.

Many other schools of artistic expression were covered, simply to emphasize the fact that the artist (and in this case, the American Fashion Designer) becomes an inventive, searching, daring, self-expressing creature and that high fashion is not lightly "come by."

How will these influences show up all over the country? Watch and you'll see . . .

Silhouettes are basic . . . Actually five "artists tools" with which each designer has expressed his highly individual point of view. They are: the shift (newly front fitted), the smock (newly narrowed and sometimes with the yoke on a slant), the tent, the tube and the toga. Under the designers' hands they emerge in as many "schools" of contemporary fashion as you find in modern art.

Rich, undiluted colors, as they come from the tube are on every designers palette and purple is the biggest color adventure the designers have discovered this season. Grey, in all tones from platinum to oxford will be good and for after-five, silver lame is being more widely used than gold. White is no longer merely a summer color, it now is worn all year round.

Fabrics are firm in wool or blends and soft and flowing in silk crepe, chiffon and sheer wool crepe. The last, particularly in black, is great for evening fashions.

Most evening fashions are luminous. In fact, so glittery they make you dizzy . . . almost. Evident are beads and sequins of every size and even pieces of mirror have been mounted on fabric to reflect the light.

Bell, and other sleeve shapes, are important in both daytime and evening wear. And for late day . . . when sleeves come in, necklines go down. Very seldom will you see a completely covered-up look for festive occasions.

Next "go round" for necklines (Miss Lambert predicted) will be the V-neck.

Look for stripes . . . stripes . . . stripes, going up and down and crosswise and also forming patterns like a giant chevron. H tunics are in practically every designers collection. Tunic dresses, suits, coats and late-day attire.

One last important fact, American designers refuse to be militant about where a dress stops. They leave it to the wearer. Skirt lengths vary from a hahd span above the knee, for the very daring, to just below. They keep the focus on long legs and nimble feet by playing up the monotone of pale or textured stockings with matching shoes.

Judging by the forcast (which merely whetted the appetite of the fashion editors) the upcoming collections by the artists of American fashion should be delectable. One thing is certain, there's an abundance of good fashion in the fall harvest. What you prefer depends on your own taste.

THEY ARE STILL TALKING ABOUT THE DAY 10,000 PEOPLE CAME TO GROVEPORT

No one quite believed the "Big Parade" in Groveport until last Monday when its floats, marching bands, equestrians, bikes, antique cars, and strictly 1966 beauties rolled, marched and rode along the parade route. At the left is one who relied on shank's mare to get him from the school house to the festivities on Hamilton-rd. In the upper center picture is one of the floats which was animated from the word "Go-Go." Below, from the left, is Mayor Bob Baer who played host with free lemonade for the hundreds of spectators who viewed the parade from his lawn and two of his guests, Mayor Mike Miller of Canal Winchester and Bill Minor, former Groveport mayor. The pioneer woman, dutifully following her husband's covered wagon, ready with her shotgun, is Mrs. Fred Roeger of Shannon-rd.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR:

Businessmen Grateful

To The Spectator:

The Groveport Businessmen's Association wishes to take this opportunity to thank the people who so overwhelmingly supported the Fourth of July Celebration. Without the tremendous response, its success would have been impossible.

We also want to thank the Lions Club, the co-sponsors, for the members' cooperation and the police departments of Groveport, Hamilton Township and Obetz which did a splendid job in keeping the parade route open.

The committees and neighborhoods who worked so hard and came up with so many terrific ideas are also to be congratulated.

The huge success is due to a community effort of which all can be proud.

The community, united and working for a common goal, proves that Groveport and Madison Township are second to none.

Let's keep up this community spirit of togetherness in the tradition of our heritage.

Start your plans now for next year's celebration. July 4, 1967 is just around the corner.

Groveport Businessmen's Association
James D. Young, President

So Long, Jack

Jack Rumora, principal of Hamilton Local High School for the past two years, will not be around the township or Canal Winchester where he has made his home. He has resigned his position effective July 31, to accept the superintendency of the Rolling Hills School District in Guernsey County. Other resignations recently accepted are those of Miss Jackie Warner at Obetz, Mrs. JoAnn Schwartz and iss Linda Anagoston of Central, Mrs. Joyce Frye of the high school, and Mrs. Ellen MacGregor and Mrs. Sandra Plummer of the elementary staff.

Church Group Still Needs Used Clothing

Mr. and Mrs. William Skeen are announcing the birth of a son born Wednesday, July 6. Bill is in the service and is stationed in Louisiana. Mrs. Skeen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ringhiser of Obetz.

Mr. and Mrs. Hambrick and family, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Smith and Alan enjoyed a weekend cruise on the Ohio and Kanawha Rivers.

The Obetz Chr... Women's Fellowship ... still collecting good, u... ...hing and nylon hose ... are stocked in the supply room for emergencies in the community and when there is an over supply they are taken to the State School. They also collect coffee cans with plastic lids, aluminum pie pans and any sewing materials for the State School. Contact Joy Barr, 491-2191 or Ruth Borden, 491-8141 and they will gladly pick up any items you have. Magazines are also needed.

ALVIN BOWLING'S teachers and family know that a hearing world will never adjust to a person with whom they cannot communicate. Thus they struggle to give the profoundly deaf child the key to the world around him—a degree of hearing and intelligible speech. The new verbo-tonal system developed at Ohio State University and to be adopted in a third of Columbus deaf classes next year promises to unlock the door that has blocked so many from a normal life. Early evaluation of the program directed by Dr. John W. Black, Regents Professor, with Dr. Courtney Stromsta of OSU and James Card, supervisor of deaf education in Columbus Public Schools, indicates two-fold benefits. It will help not only lead the deaf child to improved hearing but help him to vercome high-pitched monotone characteristic of unhearing. Alvin, 1403 Gault, is shown with a teacher supplementing signals the Verbo-tonal units being built in Ohio State University speech laboratories with sight and touch.

Knights Of Columbus Plan Knight-Of-The-Year Dance

The ninth annual Knight-of-the-Year Dance, sponsored by the Knights of Columbus in Greater Columbus, will be held Saturday at Valley Dale, 1590 Sunbury-rd.

Highlight of the annual affair is announcement of the Greater Columbus Knight-of-the-Year, chosen from the nine councils with 2,100 members in the area.

Chuck Selby's band and Anne Young's vocals will provide music. Arrangements for the dance are being handled by Mr. and Mrs. James P. Rose of Marian Council. Rose is past grand knight of the Columbus Council.

The Council will hold a fourth degree knights meeting on Thursday, July 21, at Assumption Council, 4611 Glenmawr-av, at 8:30 p.m. Marian Council meets tonight at 4213 E. Main-st for exemplification of the first degree.

The Columbus General Assembly of the Fourth Degree recently elected new officers. They are:

Mowing your lawn too often reduces the vigor of the grass plants. Rather than mowing on a schedule, once or twice a week, mow when the lawn has grown one-half inch.

New Approach To Old Problem Can Smash 'Sound Barrier'

By JANE ROBINSON

Giving a profoundly deaf child a conventional hearing aid and expecting him to break the "sound barrier" separating him from the world is frustrating.

It's as frustrating as attempting ti summon a normal child with an ultra sonic whistle tailored to canine auditory perception.

Persons handicapped by inner ear damage just don't "read" sounds in the middle and high frequencies and amplification of such tones merely "turns up the static."

These conclusions, first introduced locally by a Yugoslavian professor and now adopted by an Ohio State research team and the Columbus Board of Education promises to bring help for the deaf out of the horse and buggy stage.

During the next three years, the pilot program initiated at Kingswood Elementary last year will be expanded to involve the 18 classes in Columbus devoted to the special education demanded by the deaf child.

Each student will be fitted with electronic equipment that will filter out the sounds unintelligible to him and blow up the low-pitched sounds that can become meaningful.

The new concept (regarded with frank skepticism when Prof. Petar Guberina of the University of Zagreb in Yugoslavia visited OSU in 1964) has even received blessing of Uncle Sam with the award of a $61,953 grant.

Dr. Courtney Stromsta co-director of the program, explained that Guberina was armed more with "results that documentation."

In the West, although results are the ultimate goal, researchers refuse to go out on a limb and adopo a new concept until each step of the way is backed up by fact.

Stromsta, however, was intrigued by Prof. Guberina's tape recordings of the speech attainments of the allegedly congenitally deaf. He immediately began the painstaking-research that sold the OSU Research Foundation, Columbus Public Schools and the U.S. Department of Education.

The verbo-tonal system is a far cry from the education offered to the deaf only a generation ago—that of the sign language that still left the unhearing isolated from the hearing world.

The next step, still in effect last year for the 150 children enrolled locally except at Kingswood, was sound amplification (at least speech rhythm was interpretated through the vibrations registered), coupled with intensive training in lip reading.

Even the potential of the new verbo-tonal approach holds out no "deaf and mute today, hear and speak tomorrow" to the deaf and their families.

Those unfamiliar with the problem find it difficult to grasp the multitude of problems involved in educating a child who has never heard his own voice or the honk of a horn, the ring of a telephone, the crackle of fire or a mother's warning cry.

He lives in a world that has been compared to a gigantic television tube with the sound turned off.

Dr. Stromsta believes at last the sound may come on for these youngsters whose principal key to their environment has been sight.

MAVERICK

With Muddy Shoes

By RICHARD L. PAUGH

2Having ecaped out2)ET

Having camped out under almost all conceivable conditions for 30 years, I am a firm believer in fresh air all night.

To take a wife and three children along on a camping trip that would be 2,700 miles long (knowing none of them had camped their first night) is another matter. I was hesitant to say the least.

NOT WANTING to drag a heavy travel trailer all those miles and not quite up to pitching a tent in a different location every night, I did the only thing I could do. I conferred with a camping expert on how best to travel.

THE EXPERT I chose was Doug Miranda, owner of the Family Camper Store in Columbus. He could write a big book on camping and not use the same word twice. I consider him Mr. Camper of Ohio.

FAUGH

After outlining my problem to Doug, we got down to the facts at hand. I was going to drive my Mustang to the Florida site of the Outdoor Writers of America convention. I needed storage space for food, camp gear and a raft of clothing.

I needed a rig that would not put a strain on the transmission and most of all, I needed a shelter that would be quick to set up and quick to fold.

Time is precious on the road, especially in the early morning when the roads are cool and less encumbered.

DOUG WAS sure a combination tent-trailer would fill the bill. It was light, quick and roomy — according to him. I wasn't so sure.

I had had experience with an early version of tent-trailers and had a picture of the same trouble with an irate wife and three ornery kids to complicate things. Doug was so sure of his pick that he offered to give me the trailer if any trouble occurred.

I couldn't miss on that basis. Dutifully, on June 15, I stopped by his establishment and took charge of a Nimrod Rivera. After two test runs in my front yard, we packed and hit the road early the next morning.

OUR FIRST nightfall on the road found us in southern Tennessee, in the private grounds of a restaurant along Route No. 411. We had made our first mistake by trying to bite off too much highway and found ourselves tired and hungry—38 miles from the next listed campground and a wild storm brewing fast.

The restaurant operator cordially offered us his side lot. With the first big drops of rain hitting, I dropped the legs of the trailer, unfolded the sides and erected the struts. In just six minutes, we were snug and dry inside the trailer.

The rain and hail came in torrents all night. Being off the ground, we were unaware of the rivers of water just a foot below us.

IN THE morning, the inside of the canvas was as dry as an AA meeting. For the entire trip, the trailer answered our needs just fine. We camped in the sand dunes outside of St. Augustine, Fla., under moss-hung oaks along the Kissimmee River and in the pine giants of Ocala National Forest. Nowhere did the rig let us down.

I am sold on the tent-trailer as a fast, inexpensive means of moving the family around the country. It never leaked, sagged, dragged behind the car or caught the wind on the open road.

I hope this column doesn't sound like an ad for anyone or anything but it answered many camping problems for me and I believe it is an important enough facet of the great outdoors to call it to the attention of your readers.

Whatever you use, happy camping.

BBB Warns Of Book Canvass

Better Business Bureau of Central Ohio, Inc., 71 E. State-st, has received information that unknown sale subjects are canvassing many neighborhoods in Central Ohio attempting to sell children's books and representing themselves as being affiliated with the "Board of Education."

One of the subjects is described as dark complexioned, slightly heavy set, possessing an obnoxious manner, using high pressure type selling tactics. The bureau said these men attempt to secure a down payment when an order is obtained and usually ask for $1 to $4.

The board of education of Columbus does not have any representatives engaged in the selling of children's books and if anyone is contacted by persons representing themselves as such the Better Business Bureau should be informed as this is a case of misrepresentation.

Furthermore, the board of education has told the bureau that parents who are enrolling youngsters in the Head Start Program do not need to purchase any books or material since they will be supplied to the children by the school board when they enroll.

Again, if anyone represents himself as being affiliated with the board of education and attempts to sell books, don't believe it. Secure as much information about the person as possible and call the Better Business Bureau.

To the star-spangled American boss

—And others who deserve it for doing a favor that you might not have thought about

Hats off to the many presidents and managers of companies who helped build the Payroll Savings Plan into what it is today—one of the most popular and easy ways to save money.

These business leaders provided the facilities and manpower necessary to operate the Plan—plus their own enthusiastic endorsement. And never stopped to count hours or pennies.

Thanks to them, over 8 million Americans—their employees—are building security and helping their country through this automatic savings plan.

There are others who have helped other millions of Americans own a share of their country. Volunteers in every walk of life. Folks in radio and TV, movies and the theater. Newspaper and magazine and billboard folks. And Bond "salesmen" in thousands of banks and savings institutions.

Buy Bonds at your bank, or on the Payroll Savings Plan where you work, and you'll see what a good idea it is.

And the next time you see your boss (who helped make it so easy for you to save)—thank him.

He deserves it—from all 190 million of us.

THIS ARCHITECT'S MODEL shows the proposed Methodist Retirement Center to be built at a cost of $1.5 million on an eight-acre tract on the North Side.

Methodists Reveal Plans

The Methodist Retirement Center of Central Ohio, an agency of the Methodist Church, has announced plans for a $1.5 million retirement center to be built on the North Side.

The center, on an eight-acre tract along Fenway-rd just north of Graceland Shopping Center, is believed to be an entirely new approach to serving people of retirement age.

Ground will be broken in late August, according to Harold Rosser, executive director of the corporation.

The center, built around a six-story main building, will serve older citizens on a non-denominational basis. and visitations to elderly shut-ins and other persons who Included in the program are extensive work with residents live alone but need attention.

The building will house 100 persons in efficiency, alcove and one-bedroom apartments. It is expected to open by November, 1967.

The National Methodist Board of Hospitals and Homes aided the center staff in planning the center's services. The idea of a retirement center was approved by the 1961 Ohio Annual Methodist Conference. Studies have been carried on for the past five years.

Sears Anticipates Record

Sears, Roebuck and Co. announced today it expects to top the $100 million mark in newspaper advertising this year.

James W. Button, vice-president in charge of merchandising, said in Chicago the estimate was based on preliminary reports and forecasts from more than 790 Sears stores in every state except Alaska.

Button said the company's retail advertising is placed locally by each individual store.

"We are proud to rank at the top among users of newspaper advertising, which has been the case for many years," Button said, noting that this is Sears' 80th anniversary year.

"The fact that our retail stores place this confidence in the power of the newspapers, however, is not based on historical reasons," he said. "Rather, it is tangible evidence that newspaper advertising is regarded as the most effective way of bringing our merchandise message to the public."

Sears placed a total of $93,440,000 in retail advehtising in 1965, an increase of $17 million over 1964.

The company's stores purchased 401.8 million lines of white space in 1,017 daily and weekly papers. Lineage increased 17.5 percent, while space cost went up 22.4 percent.

The $93 million newspaper advertising mark accounted for 70 percent of Sears' media expense of $131, 971,000. The remainder went for circulars, magazine, radio and television advertising.

Marvin C. Lunde, national retail sales promotion and advertising manager, said Sears bought little newspaper space in its first 39 years of operation since its business was strictly through its catalog. With the opening of the first retail store in 1925, however, newspaper advertising began.

Spending reached the $5 million mark five years later and rose to a pre-war record of $13 million in 1941. It passed $30 million in 1951, $40 million in 1955, $50 million in 1959, $60 million in 1963, $70 million in 1964 and $90 million in 1965.

AFTER 150 BIRTHDAYS, GAS IS STILL A NEW IDEA.

You'd think that after a century and a half of cooking, clothes drying, heating, air conditioning, water heating, steel making, glass melting and what-have-you, the Gas industry would ease off just a bit.

It'll never happen.

Way back when America was just forty years old, our corporate ancestors had a daring new idea. They dreamed of a web of pipelines a hundred thousand miles long to bring economical, hard-working Gas to every home and every industry. They had visions of Gas doing much more than lighting homes and streets.

You can understand why some were skeptical. A nationwide natural Gas system was a fairly amazing idea in 1816.

Today a million miles of pipelines send billions of cubic feet of Gas rocketing from new undersea Gas wells. Today Gas is the best and lowest-cost way to do a hundred things. Gas is now this nation's sixth largest industry.

And Gas—150 years young—has more new ideas than ever before. Coming soon from Columbia Gas research: A Gas-powered system that not only heats and cools air and water, but generates all of the building's electricity. A whole-house Gas air conditioner small enough to fit in a suitcase. A revolutionary fuel cell that converts Gas energy directly into electricity.

All the more reason for you to think of all the things you can do with the money you save with Gas.

'Metro' Draws Cool Reaction

Franklin County's suburban mayors feel their people aren't ready for a consolidation of local governments recommended by the Committee for Economic Development (CED).

The CED, in a report issued in Washington last week, recommended that 80,000 local governments throughout the nation be reduced to no more than 16,000 and that single administrators be named to head the new, larger governmental units.

CED, a non-profit, non-partisan national committee, pointed out that the cost of local government had more than doubled from $20 billion to $45 billion in the last 10 years and was likely to double again by 1972.

Some local mayors and city managers indicated they saw merit in the proposals, although all said they wanted to study them further.

Hilliard Mayor Stephen King even went so far as to call the idea "the salvation of the taxpayer." King said the idea "has merit" as long as some local government is kept intact.

But one East Side mayor, who chose to remain anonymous, summed it up for most when he said:

"A mayor in that position would be like Winston Churchill when he considered giving away India. He said, 'I wasn't elected prime minister to give away the empire.' "

The same chief executive said he felt his people would be "marching in the streets" if the day came when the city lost its identity.

"This is more than a governmental or physical issue," he said. "City boundaries carry great historical significance. The people are moved by history."

A city manager, who also asked that his name not be used, said "small community residents don't want a Big Brother set-up. They want their government handled by local men who are most familiar with local problems."

Groveport Mayor Robert Baer see the so-called "metropolitan" government idea coming, but "not tomorrow, or in five years, or even in 10 years."

"Personally, I hate to see it come," Baer said. "But it's inevitable. Many of the other members of the Franklin County Mayors' Council feel the same way."

Anton Patzer, mayor of Grove City, feels that "metro" may be coming but that "the people just aren't ready for it."

Patzer admitted that a metropolitan set-up would be beneficial in allowing present small communities to draw on the larger unit for police, fire and road maintenance services.

Baer pointed to the great number of overlapping services now existing.

"In one area, you can have county police, township police and municipal police," he said. "The metro organization would help eliminate this overlapping."

But Baer capsuled the objections that he feels will keep government consolidation on the planning boards for a long time to come.

"Too many people object," he said. "Too many people would lose their jobs and too many politicians would lose their positions."

C-W School Board Asks $587,000

In November, the residents of the Canal Winchester School District will be asked for the third time in 18 months to put up tax dollars for elementary classrooms and other school facilities.

The board agreed at its regular July meeting to put a $587,000 bond issue on the ballot. It is estimated that a three-mill levy will cover the costs.

Last fall voters turned down a 2.8-mill levy which would have provided $468,000 for 10 elementary rooms and purchase of a site. A similar proposal was narrowly defeated the previous May.

The board has now abandoned the idea of building the new facilities away from the present school compound.

The architect's plans show 13 elementary classrooms and two special rooms, the use of which is not defined east of and parallel to the elementary wing added to the high school in the mid-fifties.

The present multi-purpose room will be enlarged to provide cafeteria area and a kitchen. These facilities are now housed in the basement and have been referred to as the "Black Hole of Calcutta."

The shop will be moved to the vacated cafeteria, freeing the present shop area for use as a study hall.

A library is proposed in the court yard created between the two wings and new lockers are planned to provide dressing rooms during extra-mural athletic events. (The present locker rooms will continue to be used by the physical education classes).

Rest rooms with outside entrances will solve another problem.

Currently it has been necessary to open the entire building during Little League games and other activities on the school grounds to make toilet facilities available. The rest rooms will eliminate this.

The resolution passed by the board also authorizes the expenditure of bond money for acquisition of real estate.

Champ To Try Again

Eugene Grubb, 142 Locust-st, Obetz, will go for his fifth state championship this weekend during the Ohio Truck Safety Roadeo at Dayton. A win for the Roadway Express driver will send him to Minneapolis in September for national competition. Another Obetz man, Robert B. Walsh, 4426 Virginia-dr, is executive assistant of the sponsoring Ohio Trucking Association and will be in charge of all activities during the three-day event.

Local Boy Killed

Services were to be held in the First Baptist Church of Groveport Wednesday afternoon for Harvey David Crabtree who died in a motorcycle crash on Saltzgaber-rd Sunday. Burial was to follow in the Obetz Cemetery with Cook and Son in charge of arrangements. The 16-year-old boy was the son of Mrs. Marion Crabtree, 5440 Swisher-rd. He is survived by two brothers and nine sisters.

Sue Courtright Off

Sue Courtright of Ashville left the Pittsburgh Airport recently for Columbia where she will spend the summer as an exchange student. Her international jaunt is sponsored by Kiwanis, Community and the Civic Clubs of Ashville. According to an Ashville Kiwanis spokesman, part of the service club's contribution was raised by the "Ugly Man" contest which was won by Don Forquer, international relations chairman.

Pete Franks Threatens Injunction

With the threat of an injunction made by councilman Pete Franks, Groveport may find the road to street improvement a bumpy one.

Upon the recommendation of the engineers employed to survey local street needs, Council took action last week at a special meeting to advertise for bids for the widening of College-st, and to enter into a cooperative contract with the county.

At the public hearing on the proposal, a number of Frank's neighbors appeared to question the plans that are to be followed.

Franks stated at the beginning of the discussion, "I have always been a proponent of widening College, but I cannot agree with this proposal."

He and the other objectors live on the east side of the street between Main and the railroad tracks.

They are opposed to the four feet of extra width on their side of the street rather than on the west.

The protest is based on their claim this will leave only one and one-half feet of right of way between the street and their property lines while 11½ feet of right of way is left untouched on the west side of the thoroughfare.

The recommendation to widen the street on the east was made to avoid tearing up the sidewalk on the west. (There is no sidewalk on the east.)

According to Mayor Bob Baer (who appears a bit embarrassed by the fact that he lives on the west side) it would cost in the neighborhood of $10,000 to replace the walk which is used largely by school children and considered a safety must.

Words flew bitterly during the discussion with Roger Higgins, street chairman, impatient with Franks' attitude and indicating he felt Franks' stand was an untenable one.

Another councilman, Wayne Boyer, entered the fray, voicing the opinion that such attitudes are behind Groveport's "standing still so many years."

Franks also questioned the engineering specifications as drawn, stating they do not conform with the statuatory requirements as set up by village ordinance.

He also pointed out that widening of the street at the intersection where Painter's used car lot is located will probably involve the necessity to secure an easement. (To align the street with the section south of Main, from Main north to the first alley a tapering section is carved from the west side.)

In spite of Franks' reminding council that the village is already "suffering from hastily executed legislation" (he was referring to the contract with the county for sewers) the street improvement apparently is endorsed by all councilmen except him.

The county is cooperating by agreeing to continue the improvement from the corporation line over the tracks to Coar-rd and the railroad has promised to widen the crossing.

After the meeting Franks indicated he would not follow through his threat of injunction unless his neighbors backed him up.

At press time, he stated the decision is still up in the air and would not commit himself as to his possible actions.

At the Wednesday meeting which was one of the more stormy in recent months and reminiscent of the frequent fireworks of several years ago, Bob Degenhart was anything but stoical when he learned of a budget cut for his beloved police department. (At least he regards it as his police department as he is chairman of the safety committee.)

In drawing up the final figures prior to adoption of the budget, the finance committee had knocked $1.000 off the $10,000 Dagenhart had believed to be "in the bag."

Claiming the problem of inadequate police was going to fall "on your shoulders, not mine," Degenhart was partially placated by Baer's promise the $1,000 would be restored if any additional funds turned up during the year.

The entire budget for the year is set at $179,435.80 with $38,486.72 placed in the general fund.

Some of the major items in addition to the $9,000 for police are $2,000 for executive and legislative salaries, $3,000 for the solicitor, $6,500 for street improvements, $2,020 as the final payment of the village's share of the costs of a comprehensive

Local Bid Promises Bus Delivery NOW

Madison School Board will have at least one new bus when school opens this fall.

The school board met in special session Saturday morning and resolved to ask state approval for the purchase of five buses.

Four will be purchased through the state bidding system at $7,134.54 each and no one is even predicting when those buses will be delivered. (Concensus is that the school year will probably be pretty well shot before the International bus chasses with Wayne bodies furnished by Harold J. Reynolds are even seen.)

However, the fifth chassis will be bought from Bob McDorman Chevrolet Co. of Groveport with the body furnished by the Buckeye Builders Inc. of Columbus, and delivery is promised by Aug. 15. In spite of the fact this bus is a 72-passanger one instead of 66 as those ordered through the state, it will cost $200 less.

The saving was made possible when the body bid of Buckeye proved more than $600 below the Reynolds bids accepted by the state.

The five buses are earmarked two for transportation of private school pupils, two for spares and one as a replacement of a pusher bus.

Total costs are calculated at $35,512.18 with state reimbursement leaving the local district a bill of $11,200.91.

Other business at Saturday's meeting included accepting the resignation of the high school art teacher, Robert Gurley, who is going to Hawaii; Sandra Heister from grade four at Brice, and Robert Palsgrove as a bus driver.

Gurley will be replaced by Mrs. June Lawson of Manes, Mo. Two other high school positions filled are that of high school chemistry and physics and general science. Mrs. Linda Porter of Bexley, who has served as a research chemist since her graduation from OSU, will teach the former and Mrs. Alice Wellbacher of Columbus, also an OSU 1965 graduate, will handle general science.

The other teacher employed last week is Miss Ernestine Thomas of Fayetteville, W. Va., who will take the second grade at Brice. She graduated from Concord College this year.

C-W Sets Appreciation Night, Auction Saturday

Canal Winchester's annual Little League "Appreciation" Night and Auction is scheduled Saturday with plenty of baseball action docketed between 4:30 and 10 p.m.

The event is formulated to provide everyone with the opportunity to enjoy fun and recreation and actively participate in the LL program's support.

PROCEEDS from the auction go toward maintenance of the baseball facilities in C-W.

For those concerned about dinner, the refreshment stand will be selling charcoal-broiled sausage and hamburger sandwiches in addition to its regular fare.

Appreciation Night will begin at 4:30 p.m. with an "Old Timers' Game" (Groveport vs. Canal Winchester) with coaches of Little League teams battling each other on the diamond.

AT 6 P.M., fans can take their choice of three games — 8-9-10 year-olds' game, 11-12 year-olds' game or a tilt between the fathers of the traveling team players and their sons.

The auction begins at 7 p.m. with local businessmen providing the items for the highest bidders.

The evening will be concluded with a game, under the lights at 8 p.m., between the traveling teams of Groveport and C.-W.

EASTLAND ASKS STATE BOARD FOR FEDERAL APPROPRIATION

An up-dated application has been filed with the State Board of Education seeking federal money to help cover construction costs of the Eastland joint vocational school.

Last year the State Board appropriated $1,423,000 to a proposed vocational school to serve students from the Canal Winchester, Madison, Whitehall, Reynoldsburg and Jefferson districts.

When voters nixed the bond issue last November this money was released to other districts seeking vocational funds. (The Pioneer Joint Vocational school in Richland received most of it with lesser sums going to Mentor and Warren.)

According to Tom Quick, county superintendent, building costs are higher than a year ago which necessitated a hike in the request for federal dollars to supplement the $1,650,000 provided by the bond issue that passed in May.

Ray Purkey in the State Vocational Education office explained that although no money has actually been received during the current fiscal year a telegram from Washington last week promised a "status quo" grant.

This means Ohio is assured of at least as much money for vocational construction as last year, or $7,925,290.

Fourteen other districts including Cleveland and Youngstown have made or are ready to make application for a share of the available money.

The State Board is expected to act on the application in September.

By formula, the government picks up a little less than half the tab for such facilities, matching dollar for dollar local money spent to provide strictly vocational area. Purkey claims this involves around 90 percent of construction with only money spent for academic classrooms (English and social studies at Eastland) ineligible for matching funds.

The recent authorization by the State Auditor of use without charge of a 40-acre site in Madison Township, is a $180,000 bonanza for the vocational district.

The other site under consideration was situated in Reynoldsburg and was available at $5,495 an acre with utilities provided.

This added up to almost $220,000, but in estimating savings officials took into consideration that it will take $35,000 to $40,000 to provide the Hamilton-rd site which adjoins the new Madison Junior High, with water and sewers.

Another way the $180,000 figure can be justified is by the fact that school sites in the general area have been costing the Madison School District approximately $3,500 an acre plus utility installation.

WILLIAM S. WHITE: Civil Rights At Crossroads

WHITE

WASHINGTON—The civil rights movement has reached a crossroads of profound social and political significance. A twilight turning lies immediately ahead.

While the Roy Wilkins of NAACP types want to go forward with respect for the Constitution and for public order, the Stokely Carmichaels of "Snick" are playing with a frightful fire. Intentionally or not, they are moving toward a situation which could end in a tragic black-white confrontation in which the only conceivable losers would be the Negroes themselves.

Wilkins wishes to operate with reason; by strong implication his opposition wishes to operate on the principle of either/or. Either the Negroes are to have all they demand all at once or "black power"—whatever precisely that term may mean—will rise up.

Politically, the situation could not be more tense, and the more so because this is a Congressional election year. The intra-Negro divisions are putting pro-civil rights liberal politicians in both parties in a most difficult fix. Few of them in a showdown can or will go so far as to accept the all but open incitements to violence. Nearly all of them are thus anxiously hoping that the Wilkinses will come out on top in the Negro leadership struggles — a hope, for illustration, now in effect publicly voiced by no less true a civil rights advocate than Vice-President Humphry.

Whatever the eventual outcome among the Negroes, however, the Carmichaels have already done immense harm to the movement itself. No objective observer of recent election returns, particularly in such crucial states as California, can doubt that a white backlash against Negro extremism is already moving powerfully in this country. Unless the extremists are brought to book by election day, unless it is clear by then that men of the rational stamp of Roy Wilkins are to win the day among the Negro rank and file, civil rights itself will be roughed up in the ballot boxes as it has not been in many years.

BARRY GOLDWATER: Latest Attack Twisted

GOLDWATER

The latest line of attack against the Republican Party is so twisted that it makes a corkscrew look like a straightedge.

Whenever a regular rather than a left-wing Republican wins anything, the doom-and-gloom merchants promptly proceed to try to prove that he is a left winger after all.

The smashing victory of Ronald Reagan left the attackers with egg all over their faces. Reagan is not a left-wing Republican. He did not win despite that fact, but because of it. He was opposed by left-wing Republicans who couldn't beat him. Reagan is an independent, mainstream, common-sense Republican.

The Republican Party's left wing is a tiny thing at best. It has never had real power — except the power of propaganda accorded it by public media committed to the destruction of a conservative political alternative. It consists of two or three governors, several senators and a handful of congressmen.

This group does not have and will not gain any real grass-roots power in the party, and it shouldn't. America deserves and still wants constructive alternatives to collectivism. The conservative majority of the Republican Party can give those alternatives.

But see how the critics try to twist it. The New York primary victory of Steve Derounian, a conservative, mainstream Republican, is a galloping good example. One major news magazine tried to explain away the possibility of his winning.

Unlike Goldwater, the magazine commented, Derounian has been trying to soften his conservative image by advocating such things as a tax credit to help those who pay tuition bills.

How dishonest can a reporter get? Who does he think introduced and pushed for exactly such tax credits both as a senator and as a Presidential candidate? That's right. Yours truly.

"I have sworn upon the altar of God eternal hostility against every form of tyranny over the mind of man."—Thomas Jefferson

Do Cheaters Ever Win?

Last week's scandal at Ohio State resulting from the discovery of students in possession of a mathematics final examination is typical of what must be going on in universities across the country.

The pressures on a college student today continue to mount. The Selective Service has recently said that college students must be protected from the draft because without them this country will find itself without the qualified professional men it needs for the future. Yet a male student knows that should he leave the university for any reason, it could mean immediate induction.

At the same time, schools like Ohio State are instituting honor systems. This, in the light of present circumstances, seems ridiculous. Students claim fear of flunking out as a motive for cheating. Yet they are prepared to risk expulsion by cheating.

And can the students be entirely at fault? Should they be expected to automatically become immune to the pressures exerted upon them? Obviously some cannot take it. How many others would join the rank and file who have cast ethics to the wind, were the risks minimized by an honors program?

We wonder!

Champions All

In these troubled days when the negative seems to be forever crowding the positive out of available news space, The Spectator Newspapers wish to extend a well-deserved pat on the back to all those people who have pooled their efforts, talents and subscriptions to provide a group of youngsters with one of the top thrills of their lives Saturday at the Soap Bob Derby race.

Organizing, planning and following through with a program like the Derby is no easier a task than the construction of the racer itself.

The Columbus Jaycees, behind Derby Director Donn Collins and assistant directors Tony Hirsch, Jim Obert, Bob Moyer, Jay Schoedinger and their committees have contributed largely again this year in making this worthwhile goal attainable to local youngsters.

The same can be said for co-sponsors like WLW-C TV, local Chevrolet dealers and the businessmen who are sponsoring the boys' racers.

They, like the boys who all have their hearts set on "getting there first" Saturday, are all champions in our book.

A Telling Tale

Councilman Ronald E. DeVore brings to mind the story about the blind man who grasped an elephant's tail and came to the conclusion that elephants were built like snakes.

DeVore recently filed initiative petitions with 6500 signatures calling for a Columbus city election on the issue of whether a new market should be built on the site of the old Central Markethouse.

Presumably, in a city the size of Columbus, it would be possible to get 6500 signatures on various petitions calling for the legalization of lotteries, the repeal of the Bill of Rights, or construction of an 85-feet tall statue of "Chic" Harley on the OSU campus.

Anything Goes

By The Spectator's
TED BEARDSHEAR

About anything can happen in a newspaper office.

Take this incident:

One of the editors had set up a picture of a group of girls. The girls were members of Take Off Pounds Sensibly (TOPS) Club and they wanted to recruit local women to join their organization.

It sounded like a simple, routine assignment. However, when the girls showed up they were all quite hefty. And instead of svelte and slimming styles, they wore extra large sweat shirts with the initials of their club printed in large red letters upon the shirts.

BEARDSHEAR

The editor who was taking pictures fancied himself a wit and he began to quip with the girls. Not to be outdone, the girls quipped right back.

But the picture-taker's problem was a tough one. Just to shoot six large girls in even larger sweatshirts would have created an uncomplimentary image. The photographer's problem was to minimize the size of the girls.

To do this he had them make a pyramid. It crumbled amidst a series of squeals and laughter.

By this time, the editorial department became aware that something unusual was happening in the adjacent photo room.

Some of the editors began to peek. When they saw six huge girls lining up for a can-can shot (the photographer's latest idea) a small crowd began to gather.

The photographer and the girls bandied words even more now that they had an audience. And the audience began to laugh and talk with the girls.

The situation began to spiral in hilarity. And when the girls began their can-can, there wasn't a sober face in the building.

By this time, the audience had overflowed the available space. The entire operation was moved to the news room itself. The girls not only enjoyed lining up for the can-can, they also enjoyed the dance.

Amid claps and cheers, those six women did their version of the famous French dance.

At the highest point of fun, the managing editor returned from lunch. He was a quiet, sober man and very little surprised him.

But when he saw his whole newsroom whooping it up at a can-can by a beef trust, he did manage to drop his briefcase.

"Help!"

MARQUIS CHILDS: Dilemma Posed

LOS ANGELES—Put in crudest terms, the Johnson Administration will make the Congressional Campaign in the fall a choice between patriotism and communism. Are you for our boys fighting in Viet Nam or are you helping the Communists who are killing them?

For one man here in California a simple black-and-white campaign approach means a painful dilemma. That man is Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown, running for re-election to a third term.

CHILDS

Brown faces in Ronald Reagan an opponent who, with his skilled handlers, is testing the capacity of television to fashion out of simplest elements the image of a leader. Having whipped his moderate Republican opponent, former Mayor George Christopher of San Francisco, by a two-to-one margin, while in the Democratic primary Brown was pushed uncomfortably close by Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty, today Reagan is a formidable candidate.

As for the Viet Nam issue, Reagan says emphatically that it will not be part of his campaign. He does not have to exploit it, since a division in the ranks of the Democrats guarantees that it will be aired. Four peace candidates in Northern California who got between 40 and 45 percent of the vote against incumbent Congressmen in the Democratic primary are calling on Brown to repudiate the Johnson policy on Viet Nam. They demand that he write a letter of repudiation to the President and make it public.

Needless to say, Brown will spurn these demands. He will do his best to concentrate on state issues and his achievements as Governor while painting a picture of the destructive effect he claims Reagan will have on these achievements if he is elected governor.

In despondent moments Democrats talk about a Reagan win by a majority of a million votes. This would sweep in a Republican legislature.

Grisly specters are working, it is said, to unite the warring tribes within the Democratic party. They will all pull together in what is obviously a major crisis threatening to break a long string of successes. In the more optimistic view it is still a horse race. And the men around the Governor console themselves with the thought that good, old Pat always comes through in the end. —

They Said It

"Development of several birth control pills, including the newest one that can be taken 'the morning after,' give promise of being the salvation of the world and the standard of living every human should have the right to expect . . . Every human life brought into this world has the right to expect being born to loving parents who want him, to be decently clad and fed, and to have a reasonable opportunity to secure an education for the betterment of himself and the world in which he lives. The pills are helping to make this ideal a reality." —Bisbee, Ariz., Gazette.

"American business, American workers and their families are finding that even when they are earning more they are getting less, according to the Chamber of Commerce of the United States . . . The government can curb inflation by eliminating all low priority spending, keeping the supply of money and credit in line with the quantity of goods and services, and balancing the budget, with a surplus in times of prosperity. What do you think?"—Bell Chasse, La., Gazette.

Letters To The Editor

Takes Issue

To The Spectator:

Every newspaper has an editor. It doesn't mean that he is the best in the business. It doesn't even mean that he is fair enough to investigate both sides of an issue before printing ridiculous statements for one side and even more ridiculous statements against the other side. It just means that because he is THE editor he can write stuff that will be printed.

Now I dare you Mr. Robert Burdock, to print what I, Gilda Savko, chairman of the Watch Arlington Club have written for your newspaper.

Since when is a bona fide resident of a city, a taxpayer and a registered voter considered a meddler? We did however have non-residents of Upper Arlington (in the capacity of city employes, the fire chief included) trying to talk us into saying "yes" to higher taxes. And you call us meddlers?

You say we have our meddlesome fingers in the affairs of orderly progression of elected representative government? Let me inform you that the only elected men in our administration are the seven councilmen who between themselves elect a mayor. None of them elected men were at the coffee that I attended where we were shown colored slides of accidents and fires, most of which occurred outside of Upper Arlington, and told to vote "yes." This was even before Arlie got into the picture.

You say we are "againers" who stand for nothing and are opposed to everything? We are a group of interested citizens who showed our civic interest by bringing the truth to the people and they used their own good sense on July 5 and voted this amendment down. Now you say that 6572 citizens are meddlers? If we don't want an increase in taxes that's our business.

The WAC got the publicity during this campaign but there were dozens of neighborhood groups who were not connected with us, working against this unnecessary and expensive election, so by your careless remarks you have offended the majority of the voters.

We couldn't have swayed all of these people. We just informed them of the real issues involved and each one of us has a right to voice his own opinion. The way I see it one side of the mouth is not giving WAC credit for the stunning defeat while the other side is giving us the blame and neither side is sounding very sensible.

Who are you to say that the three-mill levy amendment was "badly needed" since it is apparent you have not delved into the real facts concerning this issue? How can you accuse the Upper Arlington voters of being short-sighted when they have looked far beyond your scope and into the annexation problem (yes, I said problem) which is coming up before City Council for final approval? Everyone knows that annexation is costly at best. Less than best it's drastic. And the people don't want it.

Instead of tearing down the civic duty that the people of Upper Arlington exercised on July 5, may I suggest that you remind your friends that you "talked to" that the people of Arlington have finally been heard and that those members of the administration who are still crying should be censured for carrying on the way they are.

If we sit on our hands and do nothing we're called "apathetic." When we become informed and do something we're called "meddlers." Now I am of the impression that you are criticizing the "American Way."

Gilda Savko

Letters for publication must bear the writer's name and address. The editors, at their discretion, may permit use of initials or pseudonyms if this is requested for a good reason. In general, preference will be given to writers willing to take responsibility for their views. Letters should be kept as short as possible. All letters are subject to editing.

Says Thanks

To The Spectator:

Had I been as lax in compiling a list of words from "Spectator" as I have been in thanking you for the $25 bond, I wouldn't have won. My apology for being late, my sincere thanks for the bond and a year's subscription for The Spectator are herewith included, along with my best wishes for your success which you richly deserve. Unbiased news is a rarity which all should cherish highly. Many, many thanks.

City Soap Box Derby Racers Vie Saturday

By BOB WHITMAN

The Columbus qualifying round for the 29th running of the Soap Box Derby held on Akron's spacious Derby Downs gets out of the starting blocks at 4 p.m. Saturday on the unopened leg of the East freeway (Miller-Kelton exit).

Some 55 local entrants will vie for the trip to participate in the All-American coasting classic held Aug. 6.

DEFENDING CHAMPION Gary Niederlander (not permitted to repeat) will finish his run as Columbus' 21st winner Saturday with a final glide down the hill in his coaster.

This year's local winner, as Gary did last year, will take home a bagful of loot. The winner's share includes a couple of trophies and a $500 savings bond.

NO COLUMBUS boy has ever whipped the National field, but three have been in the final nine. Ohio has only four boys to hit the finish line first in the 28 previous meets, and they have come from Akron.

The Soap Box Derby is the longest standing promotional activity of its kind in American Industry and has been sponsored by the Chevrolet Motor Co. since 1935.

The local show is co-sponsored by the Columbus area Chevrolet dealers, the Columbus Jaycees and WLW-C.

DERBY DIRECTOR Donn Collins noted that there will be unlimited parking and viewing facilities.

"The ones who come won't be hemmed in either," Collins said, "if they want to leave, they may."

The boys from the Capital City and surrounding communities who will vie for the Akron trip are as follows:

Six cities have sent boys to every All-American Soap Box Derby and again will be represented in 1966 finals at Akron. They are Akron and Cleveland, O.; Anderson, Ind.; Detroit, Mich.; Rochester, N. Y., and Wichita, Kan.

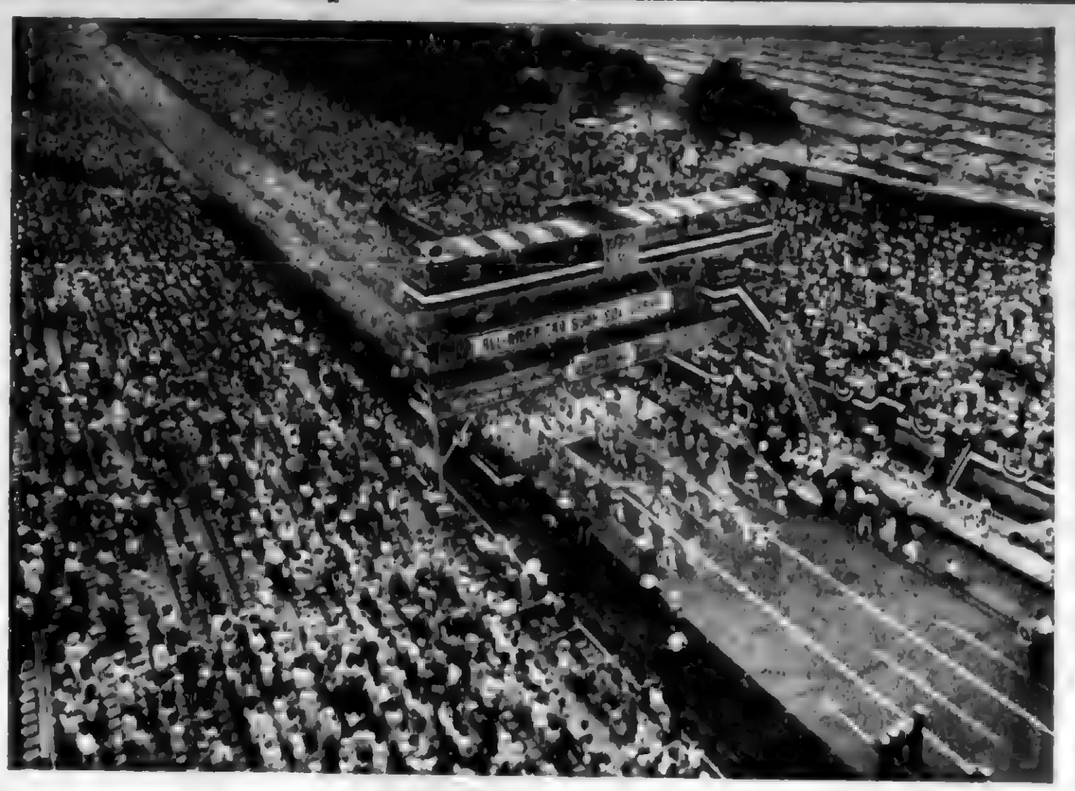
Fourteen-year-olds have claimed half the previous 28 All-American Soap Box Derby championships to easily out-rank other age brackets. Four titles each have been won by 15-year-olds, 12-year-olds and 11-year-olds. Two 13-year-olds have hit the jackpot.

• • •



Soap Box Derby racing is highly popular with boys eager for competition. An estimated 50,000 youngsters annually race in local Derbies and more than a million boys have participated since the first coasting classic was held in 1934.

• • •

Savings bonds and scholarships totaling nearly $150,000 will go to winners of local Soap Box Derby races and to top finishers in the All-American finals at Akron. Some 250 youngsters throughout the United States share the prizes posted by Chevrolet, national Derby sponsor.

• • •

1936 marked the first time an overseas contestant raced in the All-American Soap Box Derby, and 110 guest entries have made the trip to Akron since then.

LOCAL WINNER WILL EARN CHANCE TO HEAD AKRON FIELD

The winner of the Columbus qualifying round Saturday will drive his slick coaster down the imposing hill of Akron's famed Derby Downs.

Illegal Credit Card Use Can Be Prosecuted

Persons illegally using credit cards are subject to prosecution under Ohio's "larceny by trick" statute, Attorney General William B. Saxbe said today.

Saxbe, in the latest Consumer Frauds and Crimes Bulletin, warned that violators can be imprisoned for a maximum of seven years.

Saxbe stated that the misuse of credit cards is of great concern to the citizens and merchants of Ohio, due to their increased popularity and the growth of their fraudulent use which cost Ohioans millions of dollars annually.

Saxbe, upon reviewing the provisions of this statute, said that the mere presentation of a stolen, wrongfully appropriated, false or counterfeit card is evidence of fraudulent intent.

Traffic Toll Takes Dip

Ohio's traffic death toll for May and June dipped 32 under the 1965 figures.

Warren C. Nelson, State Highway Safety Director, observed: "It looks as if we've finally reversed the trend. Now we must keep it dropping. It's still too high."

FISHIN' FACTS

This is often the complaint of pike fishermen who work far northern waters for the large fish.

WHEN NEARLY every cast is grabbed by an over-eager youngster, the trophy-hunting angler may come home enthused by the action but disappointed with the catch.

While such calamities may be dismissed as "bad luck," fishing authorities cite underwater observations that may indicate a deliberate pattern of large and small fish behavior.

While fishing crappie beds in a major midwest impoundment, an inquisitve angler traded his rod and reel for Scuba equipment and went below for a look-see.

ABOUT 20 feet below the surface his eyes focused on a huge ball of crappies clustered in and about a pile of cedar.

On the outside of the sphere were literally hundreds of small fish. Its "core" was composed of big, mature fish.

Back on the surface, the diver used this knowledge to advantage by dropping a weighted minnow quickly through the outer shield and into the core. Immediately, larger fish were caught.

WHILE northern pike don't school in this fashion, there is a similarity. You have to cast through or beyond the small ones that frequent the fringe weeds or turn to the steep shorelines.

When big pike are back in the weeds their presence is often seen. They're tough to reach, and more difficult to haul out, as they will seldom venture beyond the perimeter of smaller fish to grab your lure.

The reason big fish hide behind a barrier of small ones is subject to debate, but there is proof that size does make a difference in this regard.

REMEMBER, you may have to penetrate the small fry to bring in that king-sized trophy.

Columbus Artist Displays Art At Downtown Bank

Ned T. Moore, Columbus artist, is currently exhibiting sketches and watercolor paintings at the main office of the Buckeye Federal Savings and Loan Association.

Moore is a native of Columbus and a graduate of West High School and Ohio State.

Working primarily in watercolor, Moore's paintings have appeared in "Fortune," "The Post," "Ford Times," and a number of national art and trade publications as both editorial illustrations and advertising art.

The paintings included in the display were done mostly during a three-week painting trip to Cape Ann, Mass., last summer.

29 Years, Millions Later Derby Still Represents Biggest Thrill For Young Drivers

Columbus joins the quest for the All-American Soap Box Derby championship for the 22nd time this summer when it sends its 1966 local winner to the national coasting competition in Akron, O.

The Columbus Derby victor, who will be determined in the local race July 23 will pit his coasting car building and driving skills against more than 250 other champions in the 29th running of the All-American. At stake in the national race will be $30,000 in college scholarships, awarded by Chevrolet, national sponsor of the program. Open to all boys, 11 through 15 years, who design, build and race their own gravity-propelled cars, the Soap Box Derby is the only competition of its kind. More than a million youngsters have participated in local eliminations since the program was inaugurated under the sponsorship of Chevrolet in 1934. Races have been held annually since, except for the war suspended period of 1942 through 1945.

Originated for American youth, the Soap Box Derby has gained in international interest through the years. Six guest champs competed last August in the field of 252 contestants. Included were two Canadian entries plus representatives from Germany, the Philippines, Venezuela and Okinawa. In West Germany alone, approximately 10,000 boys vie each year for the trip to Akron.

While the Soap Box Derby is an event for boys, its role as a community activity is of significance. It is estimated six adults take part in the Derby for every boy who participates, and approximately 3,000,000 persons either witness or have some part in putting on the program each year.

Cornerstones of the Soap Box Derby program are fairness in competition, good sportsmanship, individual creativity and building of character.

All races are governed by uniform rules which are modified from year to year to assure safety and equal opportunity, and simplify car construction.

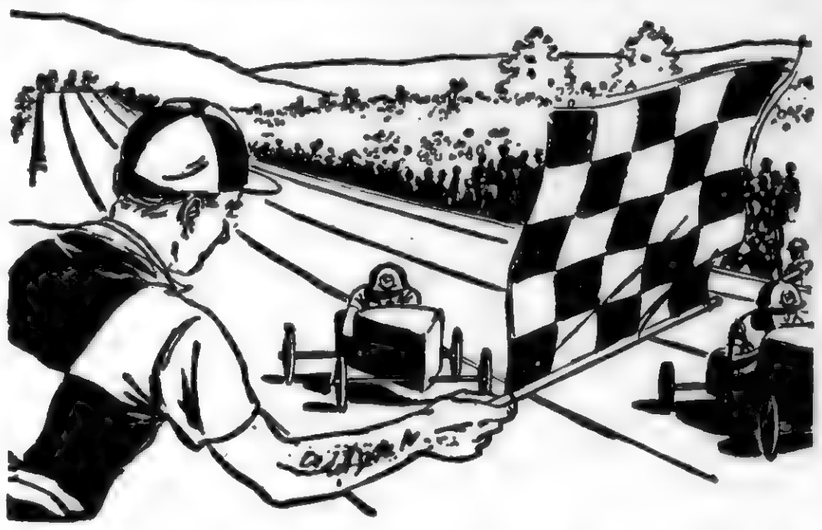
The Soap Box Derby was originated by Myron E. Scott in 1933 when he was a photographer with a Dayton, O., newspaper. Scott, who served as general manager of the Derby program for many years, now is an assistant public relations director at Chevrolet.

After the first Derby was held in Dayton as a local event, Chevrolet took over the sponsorship on a national basis in cooperation with leading newspapers. The first All-American was held in Dayton in 1934 with 34 entries. In 1935 the All-American was moved to Akron where it has remained.

The winner of each local race earns the right to compete in the All-American. During his stay in the Ohio city, he lives at Derbytown, a 206-acre lakeside YMCA summer camp which is given over to the champions each year.

Prior to the national championships, each champion is allowed to "tune-up" his car and make a test run at Derby Downs, the famous site of the All-American.

Derby Downs is the most modern and efficient racing plant of its kind in the world, designed and geared for the precision essential to running such a program and handling the thousands of spectators who travel from all parts of the country to view the races.



The race is controlled from a three-deck steel bridge over the finish line, and modern photo-finish and electric eye equipment aids officials in conducting the competition.

The racing strip itself is 975.4 feet long and is painted green to cut down glare. Each of the three racing lanes has white borders and a dotted yellow center line to guide the young drivers.

The entire plant is beautifully landscaped and painted, and has facilities for more than 55,000 spectators who jam the grandstands and bleachers, and line the track each Derby Day.

Drawings to determine the heat and lane in which the champions will race in the first round are held three days prior to the race. Three, and occasionally two, cars race in each heat.

At the starting line near the top of the hill, cars are lined up with noses against metal baffle plates. When the starting signal is given, the plates drop simultaneously and the cars roll away to a perfect start. One heat is dispatched every 50 or 60 seconds. Heat winners advance to the next round, while losers are eliminated from further competition. It takes five rounds to determine the champion.

'Lumina Look' Sparkling Choices

By MARIANNE TOMLINSON
Spectator Fashion Editor

There is nothing more heartening than when a familiar classic puts on a new dress and repeats or even tops itself as a popular hit.

It happened with Chanel: it has happened to Auntie Mame. "Mame" is the darling new musical version of the play and stars the darling Angela Lansbury in the title role.

A standing warm welcome was given Angela by the fashion editors in New York last week. All were guests of the Ship'n Shore blouse people at a luncheon launching their Fall 1966 collection. Angela was visibly touched by the accolade and acknowledged it simply . . . "Gee . . . thanks . . . for showing me your pleasure . . . and greeting me so beautifully. I'm so glad you came last night (to view the play) and I'm so glad I came today."

She was glowing in a bright pink tent dress and huge picture hat. She maintains her glowing food health by getting eight hours of sleep each night and maintained she "absolutely must sleep one hour before each performance." She didn't have to elaborate on that necessity, because every editor was exhausted thinking of the 27 clothes changes she has . . . in addition to the strenuous dance routines.

A MILITARY SHIRT dress in silver metallic ottoman from Pat Sandler's Fall 1966 collection capitalizes on the new "Lumina Look." The epaulettes, cuffs and tab front have non-regulation jewel buttons.

It seemed appropriate that fashion editors should be taken to see "Auntie Mame" because you probably recall, that she is a veritable clothes horse and the influence of her opulent costumes is visible in all areas of fashion, and in every designer's collection.

Glitter and glamour will be everywhere this season . . . from head to toe . . . and from skin out . . . literally Warner's has even designed a sequinned bra that is meant to be seen . . . in today's decolletage. As a matter of fact, the expanses of bare skin that designers are recommending can also glimmer and take on a luminous look."

The "Lumina Look" was revealed to the press by Helena Rubinstein in the cosmetic firm's "Little Theatre" in New York last week. As the editors stepped off the elevator they found themselves in a huge room completely sparkling in silver and gold.

The "Lumina Look," created with new foundation, powder and lipstick, illuminates the face with a glimmering shimmer that reflects light with a mystical magic make-up. And the look glows day or night with silver or gold . . . just like the luminescence found everywhere in new fall fashions.

The fashion point was also made at the Helene Rubinstein reception by a showing of American designs in sportswear, rainwear, suits, at-home, cocktail and evening clothes . . . and in all cases, the fabrics were dazzling. Even textures in coats and suits were "drawn" with golden and silver threads.

Cocktail and evening gowns were more dramatic than ever with sequins, jewels, rhinestones and paillettes. Even hosiery, shoes, millinery and, of course, jewelry, reflected light from every facet. The golden haired models carried out the Lumina theme right up to their eyebrows.

The new Lumina Silver and Lumina Gold make-up is recommended over a tinted foundation. It gives an exciting shimmer to the skin and adds a new-looking dramatic finish to the complexion.

"THE LUMINA LOOK" in face and fashion for fall includes this selection which features head to toe sparkle in gold and silver.

Helene Rubenstein's "Lumina Look" looms as a luminary in the cosmetic cosmos and fashion forecast for Fall, 1966 . . . And how about that for a dramatic fashion column finish?

But if partner responds, it's worth a TRY!

Well, it's not really a lie! It's an artificial bid! Of course, if partner passes, GRIT YOUR TEETH and play it! You had to open—and even if partner has only six points, he can still respond with ONE over ONE! (one diamond or one heart or one spade). If you get a partner with less than six points, I'd just never play with that partner again!

EDITED BY ROLAND SUNKER

A guide to performers and performances in the Columbus area this week

Is Studious Wife

An aspiring artist, Patricia Harty, agrees to masquerade as the wife of a young executive to help his career. She is shown in the patio of her Hollywood home going over the script for her starring role in "Occasional Wife," a new weekly half-hour comedy series to be colorcast on NBC and TV-4, Tuesdays during the 1966-67 season.

Soap Box Race On TV-4

Jimmy Crum and Dave Collins will describe the action of the live telecast of the 1966 Columbus Soap Box Derby Saturday, July 23, at 4 p.m. From a track site on the unopened East Freeway near the intersection of Miller and E. Main-st, more than 60 boys will compete in this down hill race for the right to represent Columbus in Akron's All-American Race in August. TV-4 is a co-sponsor of the Columbus Soap Box Derby.

Slapstick Comedy At Stadium Theatre

This week the Stadium Theatre is presenting an evening of just plain good, fun-filled entertainment. The play is the slapstick comedy, "The Doctor in Spite of Himself."

"The Doctor" is one of the most popular and most often performed comedies by the French playwright, Moliere. The lampooning of doctors was a favorite theme for Moliere as it occured in several of his plays.

In the rib-tickling comedy being presented by Stadium Theatre, Martine, wife of a worthless woodcutter called Sganarelle, determines to avenge a beating which her husband has administered to her. She tells two servants who are seeking a doctor to cure their master's daughter, Lucinde, of a sudden inability to speak, that Sgnarelle is really a doctor.

She warns them that he will probably not admit to his profession unless he is beaten. After several beatings, the two servants finally persuade Sganarelle that he is a doctor, and bring him to their master, Geronte.

The cause of Lucinde's malady is revealed by Jacqueline, a wet urse, whom Sganarelle attempts to seduce in the course of the action. Jacqueline is aware that Lucinde's refusal to speak is the result of her father's objections to Leandre, the man of her choice.

Eventually, by means of a trick in which Leandre is disguised as an apothecary, Lucinde's speech is returned and Geronte is persuaded to let the lovers unite. Sganarelle begins to fancy himself to really be a doctor and his wife takes out after him again.

"The Doctor in Spite of Himself" will be at Stadium Theatre through this Saturday.

Meet The President

By Claudia Elkins

Curt Meeks, who has a distinguished and active career in the theatre, was recently elected president by the Board of Trustees at Players Club Foundation for the '66 and '67 season.

By the standards of theater participants in town, Curt Meeks has become a member of the elite class of actors as he has appeared in 17 productions for the Players Club since joining in 1956, while in the summer months he has acted in nine consecutive seasons at Stadium Theater. Not being limited in his range of acting, Curt has done musicals, dramas and comedies and has appeared on television shows, including Traffic Court and Juvenile Judge. He has appeared in productions for Independent Players, Village Little Theater, Gallery Players, Stagecrafters, Inc., and Capital University.

Curt feels out of his 54 roles the best remembered by theater audiences is his portrayal of "Fleetfoot," a crosseyed, 70-year-old Indian guide in "Little Mary Sunshine." This is the only role that he has done twice. As for his most memorable event, Curt feels that his experience at Playhouse on the Green during the production of "Born Yesterday" was the most frantic. During dress rehearsal, the male lead decided to return to New York. Curt switched roles from a barber with four lines to a Senator with 100 lines. Thanks to a waitress in a drugstore Curt came through the next night with a perfect role.

Curt has lived in Columbus since the age of three, attending Wilson Elementary, Starling Junior High, Central High and Ohio State University's Engineering College. Curt is employed at Battelle Memorial Institute as an analytical chemist and draftsman.

Deibels Serves Old World Atmosphere

Last Friday evening, I dined at one of the old landmarks in German Village. For a touch of the old world, both in decor and food, you can't beat the famous Deibels Restaurant. Located at 263 E. Whittier, Deibels has been serving the people of Columbus for 54 years. For those of you who enjoy quaint ornaments you are afforded with a wonderful collection of very old furnishings.

All of the fixtures, tables and chairs purchased for their opening in 1912 are still used throughout the restaurant. They have the only hand-carved back bar left in the city. This is truly a beautiful piece of furniture. To walk into Deibels is like walking into a little eating place high in the Bavarian Alps.

A special feature of Deibels that I liked is the old fashion Bier Garten. A pleasing and refreshing environment is offered for dining or for partaking your favorite beverage. For the tired businessman who wants a special treat for lunch. Deibels' Bier Garten is opened for luncheons as well as in the evenings.

While on the subject of dining at Deibels, let me remind you that everyday a special German Menu is featured, all day long. If one doesn't care for German food there is always plenty of American dishes to choose from. But if you desire German cooking prepared in the old methods of cooking, you must make Deibels one of your tour stops while in German Village. A special hint for you who eat out on Friday, they are known for their pickerel dinners far and wide.

There is entertainment in the evening by Moury Bowsher, at the piano, featuring German music and singalong. If you desire ultra modern decor with plush atmosphere, you will not care for this place. However, if you want to escape to the world of yesterday, Deibels offers a round trip excursion.

Laughter and hilarity are the order of the week at Stadium Theatre with the comedy "The Doctor in Spite of Himself." Appearing in the comedy are Claudia Babcock (left) as Jacqueline, a wet nurse, and Ron Steelman as a woodchopper turned doctor. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. and tickets may be reserved 24 hours a day by calling CY. 3-2295.

Visit Columbus

Evangelist Billy James Hargis of Tulsa, Okla., will appear at the Ohio State Fairgrounds July 29, 7:30 p.m. at the Arts and Crafts Building.

Hargis, founder and former director of the Christian Crusade, billed as the largest anti-communist organization in America, has long been a foe of liberalism and modernism in religion, and has spoken out against the policies of the National Council of Churches.

Everglades Feature

Lovely Lucille Linwood is currently playing at the Everglades Restaurant. Backing up Lucille on piano is talented Karen Carney. Lucille and Karen team up to provide music of yesterday and today. The lively duo can be heard nightly playing for your dancing and listening pleasure. Also on the bill is Jan Wihl, pantomimist. There is never a cover or music charge at the Everglades.

Lawn and Garden SECTION

Joyce Loughman

Thoughts . . . Of An Amateur.

By The Spectator's
GARDEN EDITOR
Joyce Loughman

A sure source of dancing color, whether annual or perennial, the carefree poppy is a delight to have in any garden. They flaunt their bright colors in the early summer and make a grand showing as a background plant.

One thing to remember: after blooming the plants do become dormant and must be screened by other plantings. Baby's breath, marigolds, phlox or shasta daisies make a wonderful filler during the hot months of July and August.

Orange and red are the colors most often associated with poppies, but pink, white and apricot are also seen. Most of the nurseries and garden centers around Columbus have excellent root stock. Single and double flowers of the Orientals are huge and develop from hairy buds on two to three foot stems. Orientals are particularly showy because of their immense size, flaming color and paper-thin petals.

Long lasting flowers make an appreciated addition to a cut bouquet (be sure to cut as buds and to char the stem tips). After the flowers die, the leaves disappear for a while. However, they start to make new growth in the fall.

Iceland poppies are two or three inches in diameter with single or double blooms on slender stems and are best raised from seed like the Shirley poppies and California poppies.

During the dormant period (from now on until the middle of October) Orientals may be divided. Dig the plants and divide them and place the divisions in their selected places, and cover with at least three inches of soil. Be certain that they receive plenty of sun and have good drainage. Some of the perennials will appreciate some fertilizer and leaf mold mixed into the soil before planting. A light mulch of straw or peat moss is a good idea for protection during the first winter.

Among the most popular varieties of Orientals are salmon-pink, Mrs. Perry, mahogany-red Indian Chief, and big double salmon-orange Salmon Glow. Helen Elizabeth has crinkled pink petals, Barr's White has purplish black spots and Perry's White is sprinkled with crimson.

Start a poppy collection now and keep adding to it. And don't forget to sow seed for the Shirley and California poppies this fall. The California poppies will reward one with bright blooms from early summer until after the first heavy frost.

And So It Grows . . .

July is the month to get most of your late variety plantings of vegetables in the ground. You might like to try these varieties: bush snap beans, Tendercrop; beets, Detroit Dark Red strains; broccoli, Waltham 29; cabbage, Danish Ballhead; leaf lettuce, Grand Rapids; bibb lettuce, Summer Bibb; turnips, purple top globe.

Work the soil well before planting. If you fertilized the soil this spring, you won't need to do it again. But if your garden needs some fertilizer, apply two pounds of a complete garden fertilizer such as 5-20-20 per 100 square feet. You'll get the plants established faster by watering them lightly frequently.

Ohioans can get a free copy of "Weed Control in Non-Crop Areas" from the county Extension agent. This leaflet gives helpful suggestions and herbicide recommendations on how to keep the weeds out of fence rows and other non-crop areas.

Even though you have plenty of garden flowers, you'll still want the ones you cut to last as long as possible. You'll have better results if you 1) cut about a half inch from the stem base and place the flowers in a vase as soon as possible; 2) put the vase in as cool a spot as possible; and 3) recut stems and give the flowers fresh water daily.

When the weather is dry, garden disease problems may seem minor. But Extension plant pathologists at The Ohio State University say that's no reason to stop your disease prevention program. Many disease-causing organisms require moisture to grow and multiply. So when the soil gets more moisture, the speed up or spread of disease is likely.

Plenty of flowers on your squash don't necessarily mean you're going to have a large crop. Some squash produce as many as 15 male flowers to each female flower, which is the one that develops into the fruit.

You can still make another planting of gladioli corms. This last minute planting will keep blooms in your garden well into fall and also provide late cut flowers for indoor arrangements.

Count on harvesting your dry onion crop when the tops on about two-thirds of the plants have broken over. Then pull the entire plant and let them cure in the rows for from seven to 10 days. After the tops have dried, cut off the foliage and leave only about a half to an inch of stem on the bulb. Then keep the bulbs in a 50 to 60 degree temperature for three weeks, and store in as low a temperature as possible without freezing them.

Garden Club Schedules Show

The Darby Valley Garden Club is holding its annual flower show on Aug. 12 and 13 at the Town Hall in Harrisburg, O. The committee is making final plans for the show which is open to all amateur gardeners. There will be classes for juniors, beginners and more advanced arrangers as well as an extensive specimen class.

Flowers included in the classes are hybrid tea roses, floribunda roses, grandiflora roses, dahlia-flowered and cactus-flowered zinnias, Green Envy zinnias, large flowered marigolds, gladioli (including miniature), large flowered dahlia, and double variety asters. A more detailed schedule will appear later.

A complete schedule for the show may be obtained by calling Mrs. Ed Maupin at 877-3168 or Mrs. Marvin Shover, at 875-3751, co-chairmen of the show.

Other members of the committee are Mrs. Ralph Worthington, Mrs. James Everett, Mrs. Dan Hessler, Mrs. Arthur Corcoran, Mrs. Donald Rings, Mrs. Robert Clark and Mrs. Frederic Faust.

Ohio Florists Attend Confab Here

The first day of the two-day session was designed especially for retailers, according to Harry Tayama, Ohio State University Extension floriculturist. The second day was for growers.

The schedule for retailers began with talks on automated bookkeeping. Marj Brennan of the J. W. Rodgers Co., Dayton, discussed "The National Cash Register System," and Floyd Starr of Starr Floral, Middletown, explained how a florist can use an accountant.

Commentator for a design session in the afternoon was James Bridenbaugh of Northern Lights Flowers, Columbus. Gary Sigrist of the Ohio Bell Telephone Co., Columbus spoke on "Telephone Selling, How Not To." Retailers got tips on how to make Hogarth curves and traditional triangles, how to wire and assemble flowers, and how to arrange flowers in different bases.

A tour of The Ohio State University greenhouses was held the next day. They viewed the newest horticultural research at Ohio State. In the afternoon, Frank Colacello of the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., discussed "Why Should I Raise Prices?" His presentation was followed by short talks by florists and horticulturists. William Aulenbach of Yoder Bros., Inc., Barberton, explained the effects of B-9, a growth regulator, on mums; the relationship between carbon dioxide and temperature; and single crop carnations.

Growers learned how they can "stretch" their greenhouses for greater production from a discussion by David Anderson of Gerhart Greenhouses, Piqua, Tayama and D. C. Kiplinger, an OSU horticulturist, talked on common flower growing troubles and the relationship between nitrogen and plant growth.

Horizon Clubber Reports On Cruise

BY JUDY NEEDLES

Approximately 6 a.m., July 12, 1966, 1,003 girls from 35 states who were attending the National Horizon Club Conference Afloat arrived in their first port-of-call, lovely San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Welcomed with warm hearts, the Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, newsmen and other people of Puerto Rico were on hand to greet them.

Some 400 girls were then transported to communities over the island to spend their three days with families of Puerto Rico.

In turn, Girl Scouts of Puerto Rico were invited to spend the three days touring the island with the Horizon Club girls and to stay aboard ship.

One of the most memorable of the daily excursions was on the second day when 81 Horizon Club girls were received by the honorable and gracious mayoress of San Juan, Puerto Rico, Dona Felisa before a walking tour of old San Juan. Dona Felisa has been mayor for 20 years and has done much to improve the city of San Juan, especially concerning education. Three girls presented gifts from the mayors of their town including Judy Needles of Columbus, O. Judy, past president of Columbus and Franklin County Horizon Club Cabinet, presented an ash tray and letter from Mayor Sensenbrenner and a proclamation of thanks from Governor Rhodes.

Extremely pleased Dona Felisa gave each girl a beautiful handpainted scroll with the seal of the city of San Juan. She also gave the National Director of Camp Fire Girls, Inc., a gold key to the city.

Dona Felisa summed up the feeling of the people of Puerto Rico by saying "We welcome you with all our hearts." This was something every girl felt true as they visited rural towns to be greeted by mayors and local residents. At El Verde Girl Scout Camp they were greeted with the full force of the camp in song. Even on the walking tour of San Juan, people greeted them and went out of their way to help them. The people of Puerto Rico seemed to want, as Dona Felisa said, "to be friends as fellow citizens to the people of the continental United States."

Skitch Leaves 'Tonight' Show

Skitch Henderson has informed the National Broadcasting Company that he will not be seeking renewal of his contract when it expires this September.

After long consideration, the versatile maestro has decided that the rigorous schedule necessary to executing and performing his duties as musical director of the "Tonight Show" limits his opportunity for other professional activity, which for him has been growing rapidly.

Mr. Henderson stated in an interview, "I have been very happy with Johnny Carson and everyone connected with the program. It's been great fun, but I have been hoping for a long time to spread my wings. I am both amazed and amused at the recent speculation about my future plans. It has been no secret to NBC and Johnny Carson that I have continued to expand my activities apart from the 'Tonight Show.' I'd like to do both, but I realize that would not be humanly possible. As such, it is unfeasible from my point of view that I continue under the present arrangements."

Skitch Henderson has been with NBC since the late 1940s, serving as musical director of NBC Television and Radio as well as for Steve Allen and Johnny Carson.

Sorority Plans Swim Party

Zeta Rho chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority will have a swim party for members and guests at Lakeview Estates Aqua Club, 5777 Millbank-rd, Friday at 9 p.m.

Chairmen of the planning committee are Grace Tinklepaugh and Mrs. Gigi Reason.

Weed Control Leaflet Ready

A new leaflet, "Weed Control in Non-Crop Areas," is now available from county Extension offices throughout the state.

The leaflet is published by The Ohio State University Cooperative Extension Service and the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center. It was developed for use in connection with weed control demonstrations at the Research Center's field days this summer.

The publication provides information and suggestions concerning chemical weed Control in fence rows, pasture areas, and non-grazed areas.

It also lists the equipment needed and methods of application. Extension specialists say it is especially applicable to rural beautification programs.

SOMEPLACE A CHILD IS CRYING TO BE LOVED

Do you have room in your home and in your heart for a child that is not your own?

If so, you are the answer to the prayers of Miss Sue Force, foster home supervisor at Franklin Village.

She cannot recall when the list of children who need the shelter of a private home was so long, and the list of persons wanting children so short.

"And the situation is especially critical," she explained, "for the very young, boys between six and 12 and teenagers."

But with between 180 and 190 children waiting for placement there are children of all ages who need help—and need it now.

Over a 1,000 children are already placed in the 470 foster homes of the community.

With reimbursement only $2 a day for children up to 12, $2.50 for teenagers and the moderately handicapped, and $3 for the youngster requiring bed care, the persons taking these children under their wing can not hope to make a profit.

"They, instead, must be motivated by a genuine concern for the children they offer to harbor, and have a personal commitment to them," the social worker added.

Before the Welfare department will trust a couple with the physical and mental well-being of a youngster, the prospective parents must prove a stable marriage of at least one year's duration, and the father's employment at a job that is adequate to support his own family without outside help.

Although all mothers accepting children 12 or under must agree not to work outside of the home, a woman willing to be a foster parent to teenagers may be acceptable in spite of the fact that she is holding down a job.

Age is not a major factor, as anyone between 22 and 60 is acceptable, but there is a hard and fast rule that there may not be more than five children in a home including any of the family's own children.

Although the county provides medical and dental care, it is responsibility of the foster parents to clothe the children, though they are sent out with at least the basic necessities.

Miss Force pointed out that most of the children need care on a temporary basis, as few are orphans and most have been removed from their disorganized homes while the parents and social workers attempt to bring them back into order. (Marital discord and illness are often of major concern).

However, there are some children available for permanent adoption.

A special type of home that is also in demand is that categorized as an "emergency home." Here children are taken after regular office hours (between 5 p.m. and 8 a.m.) for a maximum of three months.

A particularly challenging part of Miss Force's parent-recruiting efforts is to find the man and wife whose Christian charity extends to a willingness to take the child that is deaf, or blind, or wears braces or is trapped by mental retardation.

Another problem is that of finding sufficient Negro homes. Although the Negro children usually equal the number of white children, fewer Negroes volunteer to become foster parents.

Making the plea for the help that will make it possible to remove these children from either the chill of institutional life or traumatic home situations, Miss Force stated.

"These children need love and lots of it. Often the experiences in the home have been truly frightening, and the best staff worker in the world can't give the warmth and security offered by a foster parent."

Miss Force can be reached at BR. 6-3541 and is anxious to talk with anyone who is interested in her proposal.

She'll try to fill your order with boys and girls, blondes and brunettes, three-day old babies and 18 year olds of all races, creeds and color available.

But hurry.

These kids are crying for you.

Can't you help dry their tears?

Whipple Breaks Up Parts Ring

A dull evening at Groveport Council was enlivened with the report of Chief Al Whipple of how he ended the village's recent "crime wave."

As a result of his police work, one man will spend the next three months in jail (or longer if he is unable to come up with $600 to pay his fine), a second was slated to be bound over to the grand jury on a charge of grand larceny Tuesday and three juveniles are awaiting hearing.

The group, according to Whipple, are responsible for the theft of hub caps, automobile batteries, miscellaneous automobile parts, a number of gum ball machines and the slitting of a convertible top.

The adults involved are Phillip Stephens who was sentenced in Municipal Court after pleading guilty to petit larceny and malicious destruction of property and James Dinsmore. (His arrest ended his career as an employe of the Groveport street department).

Of the three minors involved (15 and 16-years-old) two are village residents and the other lives in Madison Township.

The first break came, Whipple reported, when Stephens was observed taking parts from a vehicle in Columbus and was traced through his license number.

Upon questioning he implicated the others, and a fingerprint left on the tachometer of the convertible vandalized in McDorman's used car lot was evidence against Dinsmore.

Uncertain just how much property has been stolen over a two-month period, Whipple found a cache of parts hidden in a field off Richardson-rd and the gum machines in a creek near Hayes-rd.

He is urging Mayor Robert Baer and council to enact legislation that will allow local prosecution of those arrested on larceny in the village.

Without Pete Franks present to object, the councilmen passed the ordinances necessary to widen College-st and advertise for bids for repair of other streets in town. Baer reported the engineering firm supervising the projects has set a $1,600 ceiling on its estimate of fees.

Amazingly, the mayor reported that he had written a letter to Vic Gamble, Franklin County engineer, congratulating him on the efficiency with which the sewage disposal plant is operating.

In the past, communications between Groveport officials and Gamble have been written as the village held its collective nose. Apparently the county has made considerable progress in licking the matter of unpleasant odors from the drying beds.

In other business Clerk Opal Rohr explained that the money must be transferred to the reserves of the water works in the amount of two years principal and interest, a fact that may cause the board of Public Affairs some financial embarrassment. (They are struggling against a climate of stablized income and increased expenses)

"Letterhead" bids will be solicited from all the local insurance firms on blanket coverage of village property.

THE WALNUT HILLS Church on Rathmell-rd in Hamilton Township had its beginning in 1804 and 29 years later the first house of worship was built on the present site. The present building, shown above, was built in 1868 at a cost of $6,400 and a $12,000 remodeling program was completed less than a year ago.

WALNUT HILL HONORED AS 'CHURCH OF THE YEAR'

The church, whose origin dates back 162 years, was recently named "Church of the Year" in the Town and County program at the Ohio Annual Conference, at which 80 Ohio Methodist churches were represented.

According to its pastor, the Rev. Charles Titko, membership and stewardship of time and money were aspects which brought Walnut Hill the award.

However, an exhaustive report of the church prepared by Mrs. Louis Flucke, Mrs. Raymond Hann and Mrs. Gotthardt of the congregation indicated the church's excellence was evident in many fields.

The church has attempted to reach the community at hand as well as the foreign missions, its ministry has extended beyond the spiritual reach into education and fellowship and recreation, the building program has greatly expanded church facilities, and the church's record in achievement of annual goals set up by the Church Conference is acknowledged as outstanding.

More specifically, with only an eight percent net increase in membership, gifts to the church have increased by a third and attendance increased approximately 50 percent.

Among the new programs established during the year are a junior-high level Methodist Youth Fellowship, a 20-member Methodist Men's Club and a strengthened Women's Society of Christian Service.

Rev. Titko, who has served the congregation for two years, has been extremely active in pushing a township-wide recreation program in an area where such activity has been nil, and has led the Christian social concerns commission in its successful effort to bring a practicing physician, Dr. Jerry Liepack, to the community.

One of the most recent accomplishments of the congregation is the visitation survey in the homes of Hamilton Meadows and Southern Pines in which 37 parishioners took part.

The steady growth of the church, which shows no indication of stopping, has led to two conference recommendations not yet carried through.

The first asks that consideration be given to purchase of adjoining property to allow further expansion (the church is already approaching capacity attendance) and the second involves relieving the pastor of the responsibility of two churches.

Titko now also serves the Obetz Methodist Church, and with double services foreseen

They are Jean Dill, Lockbourne; Lewis W. Eakin, 3850 S. High-st; Harold Fishburn, 903 Rathmell-rd; A. R. McClish, 55 Lisle-av; L. B. Morehead, Rt. 1, Lockbourne and Frank Peters, Lockbourne.

Robert N. Shamansky, Democratic candidate for U.S. House of Representatives from the 12th District, cited incumbent Samuel L. Devine's "radical" record.

In a prepared statement, Shamansky said that Devine alibies his "rigidly rightist allegiance and support by accusing everyone else of being 'radical'."

Shamansky went on to say that "it is becoming glaringly obvious that he never gets around to being specific about the moderate-to-liberal Republicans, Independents and Democrats who oppose him."

"The tragedy of Rep. Devine's political career is not just Goldwaterism, the path to overwhelming defeat which Rep. Devine helped pave for the Republican Party. He has gone well beyond the Dixiecrat-oriented negativism of the disastrous 1964 Republican Campaign.

"My opponent has picked up the mantle of the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy, something which even Sen. Goldwater would not touch. Devine was more McCarthy than Goldwater when he, Devine, joined in smearing the National Council of Churches with false charges of Communist infiltration. He was more McCarthy than Goldwater when he attacked the Army for exposing Maj. Gen. Edwin Walker's pushing extremist John Birch Society materials on his troops.

"Devine is extremely quick to accuse everyone and everybody of being 'radical,' without being specific about the exact details, which was McCarthy's method.

"However, I shall be specific in reminding my opponent that he was the one who appeared as guest speaker on the radio program of Clarence Manion, a member of the National Council of the extremist John Birch Society to promote a harebrained scheme which was so far out that even Clarence Manion described it as 'radical.' I submit that when a member of the National Council of the extremist John Birch Society describes Devine's proposal as 'radical,' we can believe him!

"The responsible leaders of the Republican Party, and even William Buckley, Jr., who gives Conservatism its intellectual respectability, have publicly attacked the John Birch Society. But I can find no record of Devine's ever having joined in their efforts to cleanse the Republican Party of the Birch Society infiltrators.

"Will Rep. Devine agree with me that the extremist John Birch Society is radical, dead wrong, and simply bad when it accuses the Anti-Defamation League of being 'Gestapo-like,' 'promoting anti-Semitism,' and actively 'pro-communist?' Or will Devine maintain his golden silence about the extremist and radical John Birch Society?

"Devine failed to defend President Eisenhower when Robert Welch, the autocrat of the John Birch Society, smeared Eisenhower by calling him a 'dedicated, conscious agent of the Communist conspiracy.' Devine's blindness to this kind of radicalism is inexcusable, and a discredit to the Republican Party."

MRS. RICHARD SCOTT

Miss Sondra Kay Borden Marries Richard K. Scott

The Obetz Christian Church, 5401 Groveport-rd, was the setting of the June 25 wedding of Miss Sondra Kay Borden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin A. Borden, 54 Meriline-av, Obetz, to Mr. Richard F. Scott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Scott, 5181 Edgeview-rd, Columbus. The Rev. Karl Henry Dawson officiated.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of silk organza over bridal taffeta. An overlay panel of hand-clipped lace enhanced the front and back of the fitted basque bodice which was styled with long tapered sleeves and scalloped neckline highlighted by sequins and pearls.

The bouffant floor-length skirt of organza with redingate style front was edged in a wide band of scalloped lace over a wide lace ruffle. The back was complimented by a cascade of wide organza and lace edged ruffles which formed the watteau chapel train extending from under two silk organza bows at the shoulder line.

Her triple-tiered veil of silk illusion was held in place by a plateau of silk organza roses and lace petals. She carried a long cascade bouquet of white pompons, pink sweetheart roses, stephanotis and variegated philodendron on a white Bible.

Miss Barbara Macready served as her maid of honor, wearing an empire gown of mint green crepe with a detachable lace train flowing from the shoulders. Her net veil was accented by mint green organza petals and leaves.

Other bridesmaids were Miss Sharon Bower, Miss Linda Walker, Miss Karin Brintlinger, and Miss Sue Walters. Their gowns were identical with that of the maid of honor with veils accented by matching crepe bows. Miss Gail Borden, sister of the bride, served as junior bridesmaid, wearing a pink crepe empire gown with detachable lace train and veil accented by a matching bow and net. All carried long cascade bouquets of pink and white feathered carnations, surrounded by salal foliage.

Little Miss Pamela Foster served as flower girl and Miss Theresa Scott, sister of groom, as junior flower girl. She carried white wicker baskets of pink rose petals with tiny corsages of pink and white feathered carnations and long white streamers on the handles. Ring bearer for the double ring ceremony was Master Craig Foster.

Mr. Ray Widmeyer, uncle of the bridegroom, served as best man. Ushers were Don Scott, uncle of the bridegroom; Randy Scott, brother of the bridegroom; Robert Martin, Wayne Campbell and Junior Usher Ronnie Scott, brother of the bridegroom. A lawn reception was held at the church following the ceremony.

The bride is a graduate of Hamilton Township High School and is employed as a receptionist for Dr. Max J. Friedman, DDS.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Hamilton Township High School and is associated with Big Bear Stores, Inc.

After a wedding trip to Niagara Falls and Georgian Bay, Ontario, Can., The couple is residing at 1700 Burstock-ct, Apt. C, Columbus, O.

AMONG THE early entries in the local Christmas Seal Contest is Miss Kathy Kern, 2727 Canterbury-rd. Miss Kern who has entered the non-professional division hopes to become a "pro" after completion of her studies—either as a teacher or as a free lance artist.

Like To See 8,000,000,000 Copies Of Your Artistry?

Eight billion Christmas seals.

That is the fantastic number of 1968 seals that will help support the work of the Tuberculosis Society of Columbus and Franklin County.

If glued end-to-end to pinpoint the earth's equator, there's be enough to gird the world a half dozen times.

And that is how many times the design chosen during the 16th annual Seal contest will be reproduced.

Locally the contest which closes Sept. 6 is sponsored by the TB Society and the Columbus College of Art and Design with prizes offered to non-professionals of $200, $150, $100, $75 and $50 scholarships.

Those entering professional competition may win any of five prizes ranging from a family membership to the Columbus Gallery of Fine Arts to $150 cash.

On the national level, honor of being the artist whose design is chosen to appear on the seals will be augmented by a $1,000 cash award.

Columbusites On Big Travel Binge

By MARY SELLECK

Despite the city's searing solstice, curtailed air traffic and July's listless languor, Columbusites, armed with itineraries, maps, passports and travelers checks swarm to favorite holidays spots around the world. Bright, sun-splashed postcards, winging in from exotic capitals, reveal that globe-trotting is a familiar diversion to thousands of sophisticated travelers.

Packing for their upcoming two-month continental stay are the H. J. Roberts who will wing across the Atlantic next weekend. Their first stop will be Dublin where they will visit with friends and tour the Irish countryside for 10 days. Their itinerary includes visits to London, Madrid, Paris, Rome, Venice, Vienna and scores of exciting "non-touristy" rural villages and hamlets.

Headed for Europe, too, are Mrs. Joseph Payne and Mrs. Joseph Loretta and her daughter, Mary Christine. Mrs. Payne will visit with her sisters and brothers-in-law in the Eternal City. Attractive Mrs. Loretta, accompanied by her daughter, will holiday in Milan.

Grandview residents Mr. and Mrs. Pat Dandrea and Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Ventresca air hopped to Rome several days ago for a leisurely stay. Their itinerary calls for a junket to France and a relaxed drive-themselves tour of Europe.

Grand Camon Island, an old treasure island favored by yesteryear's pirateers, is the choice of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Jameson. Their favorite diversions will be turtle hunting, scuba diving and foraging for treasure with rented geiger counters.

The Caribbean, with its always-sunny weather and balmy breezes, is overun with Ohioans. Vacationing in Nassau are Mrs. H. R. Kenney and her daughter, Miss Rita Kenney. The visitors are guests of the Emerald Beach Hotel.

Enjoying their stay in St. Croix, the Virgin Islands' most charming city, are Worthington-ites Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Mulvaney.

Off to the lush rain forests and quaint island villages of Puerto Rico are the H. H. Andersons. From their Condado Beach Hotel headquarters they will explore scores of picture post card villages and hamlets.

Prior to jetting home several weeks hence, they will visit former South Side neighbors, the John Kiefers, who now make their home in Key Largo.

From Antigua, a big-as-a-minute island discovered by Christopher Columbus in 1493, comes word that the J. J. Gibsons find it "pure paradise." The suburbanites, "skin diving in blue-green waters, exploring centuries-old fortresses and historic mansions," find it exhilerating!

Pleasantly ensconsed in the Silver Seas in Jamacia's Ocho Rios are the Misses Nancy McNulty and Sue Leister. The Ohio University seniors jetted via Miami several days ago and will return at month's end.

Their sun-filled itinerary calls for short stays in the Kingston area as well as Montego Bay.

Honolulu was the recent vacation choice of the John McBees who spent a leasurely stay as guests of the Surf Rider on Waikiki Beach. Hawaii outer islands, Maui, Kaui and Fr. Damien's Leper Village were also visited by the McBees.

Touring Scotland are Ron and Lou Cooper who jetted over to visit with daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles McLeod. Mr. McLeod is completing his medical studies at the University of Glasgow.

The Finger Lakes of upper New York always lure scores of Columbusites. The William Neffs and their youngsters, Sue, Kitty and Kathy, are mapping routes and timetables this week prior to their departure several days hence. The family, al fresco veterans, plans to make it a trailer expedition.

Canada, a land of towering peaks and grain-filled plains, will be the vacation choice of Miss Irene Langley and her sister-in-law, Mrs. C. W. Miller. Their three-week tour will include a stay with Mrs. Ruth Severs, local teacher who is on special assignment in Guelph, Ont.

The recently returned J. L. Jones and the M. J. Murphys wax enthusiastic when recounting adventures of their European stay. Their travels took them cruising down the castle - studded Rhine to Heidelberg and Berlin. From there the couples trained to Brunnen, Switzerland, a picture postcard village perched on the slopes of the Jung Frau. Their itinerary included Rome, Naples, Pompeii, Sorento, Paris, Madrid, Lisbon and Vienna.

Still unpacking are the Robinsons, Stan and Gloria, newly arrived from an exciting month's stay on the continent. From their Atlantic crossing aboard the Queen Mary to their jet return it was, in the words of Mrs. R., "one adventure after another."

A wee note from Paris' fabeled Hotel Claridge reveals that Eleanor Felknor found the city of lights all she dreamed.

"Everyone here has been courteous, kind and generous," pens the vivacious South Sider, "and to date, I've found no evidences of the ugly French we've heard so much about this past year or two."

On the domestic front, Mrs. L. A. Guzzo and her son, Richard, recently enjoyed a holiday in Washington, D. C. Their stay included visits to historic shrines and a visit with Fr. Albert Thomas, O.P., former Aquinas High School faculty member.

Arlingtonite, Mrs. Raymond F. Mahoney, is among the crop of new returnees. St. Louis, Albuquerque, Juarez, Yucca and Los Angeles were among her stopovers. While in Albuquerque she was the house guest of Mrs. John Papen.

Househunting in New Jersey this week are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Roche. They will depart their lovely Arlington home late in August for their new domicile somewhere near Far Hills. Tom, an insurance executive, has been assigned to the Eastern region.

Home from Florida's sun splashed shores are the T. W. Walters and their moppets, Kim and Karen. The family toured both east and west coasts during their leasurely stay.

Touring the landmarks of San Francisco this week are the Al McVeys and the Bob Harpers. The quartet jetted to the coast several days ago. Their junket will include side trips to Las Vegas, Mexico and the Pacific Northwest.

Whitehall-ites, the Harry Sharps, bronzed from Florida's sunshine, are delighting audiences with tales of their southern sojourn. Their month's stay included visiting with Mrs. Sharp's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Keyes, a visit to the Bahamas, "lots of beach activities and loads of fun."

whole blood blood fractions

Which is the greater healer?

There is no substitute for whole blood. When great quantities of blood are lost through injury or surgery, transfusion is the only answer. Each year, one person in eighty requires whole blood transfusion. As you probably know, the Red Cross collects blood from donors to help meet this tremendous need.

But there's another vital part of the Red Cross blood program that you should know about . . . blood research. Blood research in the past has helped to develop valuable blood derivatives: Gamma Globulin which is used to prevent measles, serum albumin, used to combat shock, fibrinogen, to control hemorrhaging and V.I.G., the latest blood fraction, used to treat severe vaccination complications. Current Red Cross research seeks to isolate new blood derivatives and new preservation techniques.

Which, then, is the greater healer, whole blood, or blood fractions? There is no degree where human lives are at stake. Both are urgently needed. Volunteer as a donor soon, and support your Red Cross blood program, so that Red Cross may be

WILLIAM S. WHITE: Communism Is Still Here

WHITE

WASHINGTON — A decade and a half ago the late Senator Joseph McCarthy of Wisconsin sprayed unfounded accusations of "Communist subversion" like a juvenile delinquent loosing a machine gun in the streets.

But he had done worse. At his apogee he had led a dangerously large part of this country into a hysterical witch hunt akin in odor to a national lynching bee. But in his nadir the emotional unthink he had once fostered — the unthink that the Republic was positively crawling with active or latent traitors — was turned about into a precisely opposite unthink.

The new unthink is still with us to a most unfortunate degree. It assumed that because the McCarthy time was indeed a time of melodramatic and poisonous rubbish, the intelligent view must now be that there is no Communist peril here at all.

Because McCarthy's cries of wolf turned out to be fraudulent, many lesser public officials and opinion-makers now suppose that no present cry of wolf can be other than spurious, too. They hesitate to accept and act upon plain facts of danger now because once the danger was non-existent; or nonexistent, rather, in the terms in which it was trumpeted. The fear of being called a "McCarthyite" is one of the most powerful — and foolish — facts of our present national life.

The simple reality is that Communist penetration is indeed still going on — within some of our racial disorders, on some of our college campuses, and within this government itself.

Within the space of a week Washington has known two authentic spy scandals. A retired Army officer is charged with having plotted with two Russians to hand over highly classified information during the Eisenhower Administration. The second episode involves an attempt by two Iron Curtain diplomats to penetrate the very State Department with electronic bugs.

There is, of course, no reason for everybody to start tailing his neighbor with a spy glass. But there is every reason for everybody to understand that one McCarthy proved irresponsibly wrong does not mean that a determined Communist challenge does not exist.

BARRY GOLDWATER: For The Men In Viet

GOLDWATER

This is one for the men in Viet Nam.

This is a tiny way of trying to say what this entire nation should massively be saying: that our men in Viet Nam — not boys, men — are doing a dirty job wonderfully well, that we know it, that we support them, that we honor them, that we owe them every respect and thank-you that we can muster.

I have soldiered with many men, in many parts of the world. I do not think that any nation in the history of the world ever has fielded such fine soldiers as we have in Viet Nam. Old vets or newly trained recruits, they have written pages of military history that will rank alongside the greatest soldiery of any and all times, from the Roman legions to the French Foreign Legion. In particular, the men of the Special Forces have done for ground soldiering what the rifled barrel did for artillery — they have revolutionized it.

We should also salute our regular troops, the Marines whose proud service we continue to need despite the sniping of pacifists, the supply troops who have turned chaos into giant pipelines, the airmen of the Army, the Air Force and the Navy who have given a new dimension to precision, the copter pilots to whom heroism is routine and the Coast Guardsmen who are quietly doing so much more than we hear about.

When I say the entire nation, I mean entire — even the most wretched and unprincipled of the protesters, the ones who are just letting off hot air while some young men of their age and their intelligence, and their hopes and aspirations, are letting off blood and life itself.

Our magnificent men in Viet Nam need more than headlines blaring the words of those who demean them. They deserve to know how most of us really feel and how much and how deeply we feel for them.

The President himself should lead the nation in a special celebration honoring our troops in Viet Nam. Such a celebration could honor, locally, the families of these men. But whether such a celebration starts at the top or rises as a groundswell of gratitude, it badly needs to start now. This column, for one, is wide open to suggestions as to how best to do it. What do you say, America?

"I have sworn upon the altar of God eternal hostility against every form of tyranny over the mind of man."—Thomas Jefferson

Columbus, Ohio, Wednesday, July 27, 1966

Time Bomb Ticking

Gov. James A. Rhodes and Cleveland Mayor Ralph Locher may have learned their lessons the hard way in the Cleveland riots last week.

Cleveland's Hough area is the state's worst Negro ghetto. It has been smoldering for years, and last week it erupted into full-scale violence.

The causes are well-known by now—inadequate housing, inadequate education, unemployment, broken families. The effects this time were fatal.

Less than a month ago, the welfare marchers — many from Hough — begged Rhodes to help them. His reply was that the marchers should "march on Washington." In other words, he said, don't bother me with your problems. Go ask the federal government for help.

Locher's administration, too, has neglected Hough for years. And that neglect has continued despite the strong hint Cleveland voters passed down to Locher by nearly electing a Negro to replace him last year.

It's too late to do anything about last week's tragic outbreak of violence.

But The Spectator fervently hopes the politicians have learned their lessons and will have the sense to do something about preventing a recurrence anywhere in Ohio.

The First Step

Congressional candidate Robert L. Van Heyde's suggestion that a citizens' group be formed to push for construction of the Alum Creek Dam is an attempt to get the controversial project moving down the right road.

Local differences, as The Spectator has pointed out before, threaten the entire future of the project — a project Columbus needs if it is to continue its amazing expansion.

Political considerations aside, what Van Heyde proposes would be the first concrete step the city has taken since it gained federal help in the project more than a year ago.

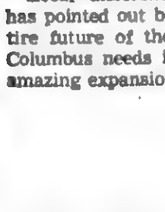
The Spectator hopes Mayor Sensenbrenner will give the suggestion serious consideration. If nothing more, it would be a step in the right direction.

Equal Justice?

You're driving along the freeway and another driver cuts you off and your car rips up part of the guardrail. The police arrive, you tell them your side of the story and then you no doubt get a ticket for reckless operation or some other violation. Right?

Then your insurance company gets stuck for the repairs to the guardrail. Right?

Then what's the difference between your car and that flaming bomb that went off on I-71 causing nearly $500,000 damages? None. Right!



Then why all the flap about who's responsible for that holocaust which could have been a major disaster? It almost makes you think you are at a disadvantage as a private citizen. Right?

Man And Machine

By The Spectator's
TED BEARDSHEAR

Machines can have a personality all their own. Like people, they can be very pleasing or very exasperating.

Take for example my television set. Purchased some months ago, it is long past any warranty coverage. Near the expiration of the warranty, it developed some idiosyncracies.

BEARDSHEAR

When one turned it on, it screeched a bit—as if protesting a rude awakening. Next, if it were in the mood it would present a very clear picture. But if it were not in the mood, the picture would be snowy.

All of these defects were correctable by fiddling with the buttons in the back. The only problem was that when one sat down, the problem immediately returned.

Occasionally Horatio (the name I gave him) would bless the viewer with a trouble free picture. That was usually the sign for the most insidious gimmick of all. The picture would begin to roll. Gaining momentum, it would flip like pancakes on a grill.

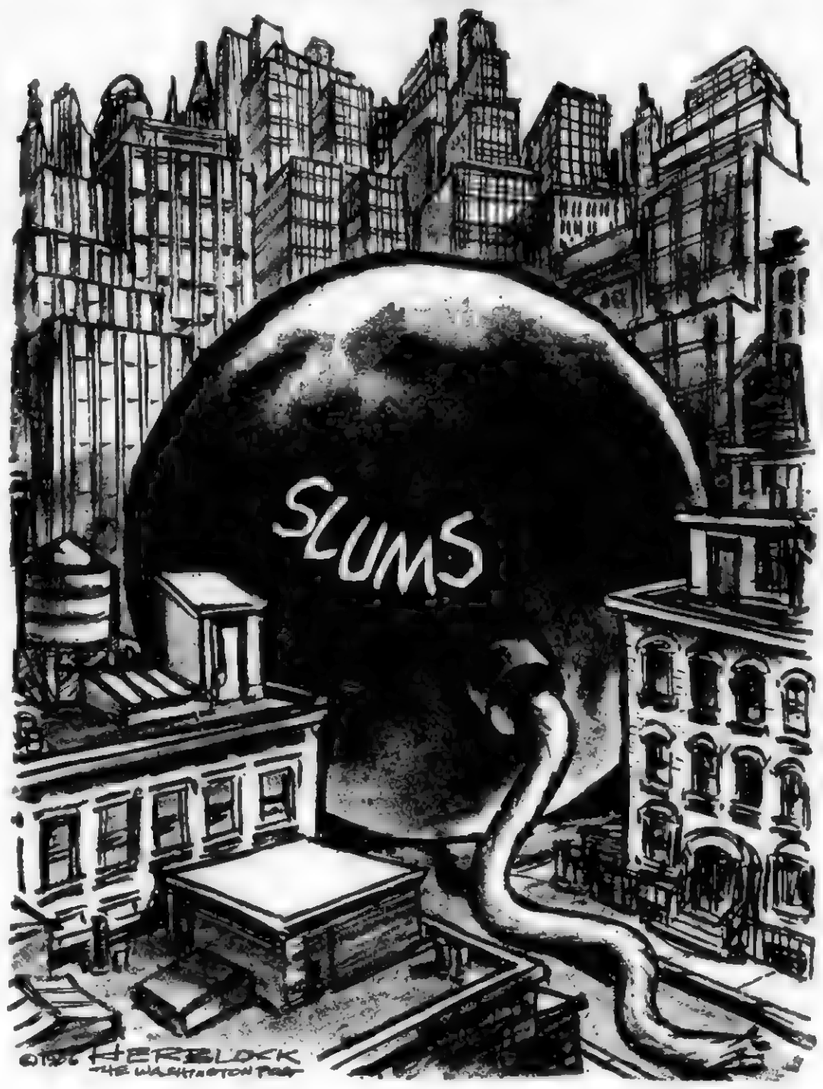
Realizing that I had not merely purchased a machine and realizing that I now had a second personality living with me, I began to cajole Horatio out his more irritating habits. I began slyly with a "How are you today, Horatio?" Then followed it with a compliment on the brightness of his picture tube.

Believe it or not, talking to Horatio worked.

The second machine with a personality is the company stapler on my desk. It, in addition to working only half the time, has wanderlust. It is sometimes gone for days and turns up quite unpredictably under a pile of papers on one of my cohort's desks.

Having evolved the formula, I treat Beth Anne (the name I gave her) like a person. Realizing that wanderlust might be due to insecurity, I always try to compliment Beth Anne and make her feel needed.

As with Horatio, it worked.



It would be possible to round out the story with the relationship between myself and my refrigerator.

However, it is rather an intense association that is not printable in a family newspaper.

They Said It

"In some 20 years of observing local government, we have noticed a disturbing trend — and that is a tendency for the governing bodies to take the side of the professionals they hire instead of the people they represent. This is not to say that the professional is necessarily wrong and the public is right. But we do say that it is still the public's responsibility to determine the amount of government and what kind of government programs it wants." — Manteca, Calif., Bulletin.

The Built-In Bomb

MARQUIS CHILDS: Canyon Bottled Up?

GRAND CANYON, Ariz. — Down at the bottom of the canyon is the dark impenetrable rock that is at least a billion years old. To a crowded room full of tourists of every age the ranger is giving the daily lecture on the story of the earth as written in this astonishing spectacle like nothing else made by nature or by man.

CHILDS

"You know," he says in conclusion, "our time on this earth is very short. I have just one suggestion for you. Try to find a place on the rim where you can be alone and there for a little while think about how long this process has been going on."

Since tourists are coming into Grand Canyon National Park at the rate of up to 15,000 a day this advice is not easy to follow. It suggests the struggle to preserve a sense of wonder — the majesty of this phenomenon defying these puny newcomers to earth — in the face of a mass invasion. And just now something new has been added with the proposal to build two high dams at each end of the canyon.

The powerful forces driving for Bridge Canyon and Marble Canyon dams have touched off a classic combat between the conservationists and the Bureau of Reclamation in the Department of Interior. The bureau is pushing the project with what the conservationists charge is propaganda defrayed by taxpayers' money.

Gov. Samuel Goddard of Arizona, a Democrat, belittles the conservation argument. He says that the reservoirs to be created by the dams would affect only a few miles of the Colorado River as it flows through the national park. And the reservoirs would not be visible at any point to which tourists now come. Moreover, he says that the lake created by Bridge Canyon dam would eventually attract 500,000 visitors.

But for the passionate conservationists, led by David Brower of the Sierra Club, it is the living river itself that is threatened with destruction. They hold sacred every mile of the canyon whether visible to the average tourist or not. If the two dams are built — to help arid Arizona solve its water problem — they will be a precedent and no national park will be safe from the dam builders and the exploiters.

People versus nature — that is the frame in which the conflict over the dams belongs. Mobile America is on the move. They come with every kind of trailer and house caravan, tents and camping equipment, to occupy sites prepared by the National Park Service. Space is always short even though camp sites and motels are constantly being expanded.

The time is not far off when restrictions will have to be imposed on the mass movement that each summer swells in volume. The three most crowded national parks — Yosemite, Yellowstone and Grand Canyon — each had last year around 1,700,000 visitors. About 90 percent came in their own cars, making at the peak for bumper-to-bumper traffic which hardly fits the concept of the great open spaces.

Here at Grand Canyon the increase this year is running at about 18 percent. They are talking of requiring tourists to leave their own cars outside the park and come in on buses. While this would relieve the congestion it would bring an outcry from hardy travelers carrying their own camping equipment.

Secretary Udall has gone further than this. He suggested recently that in the not-too-distant future a reservation system must be imposed. If you want to visit Yellowstone or Grand Canyon you will have to make a reservation several years in advance and perhaps pay a deposit to insure a camp site or a motel room.

Letters To The Editor

Blasts Editorial

To the Editor:

Your editorial, The Meddlers (7-13-66), is typical of the smear and scare tactics used by those proponents of the Olentangy Freeway whose personal fortunes were at stake in the issue.

Apparently, the difference between "meddlers" and "sincere people" is whether their position is "against" or "for" your position. The Save the Scenic Valley Committee had no personal fortunes at stake.

Rather, these were sincere persons, vitally interested in sparing the trees and plains of the Olentangy valley from further destruction.

They were "for" an unbiased study of the traffic and community development in the northwest section of Columbus and Franklin County.

These areas as a whole voted "against" the valley route.

The "battle" in this instance is still a draw. We hope to ultimately win the war, the War on Ugliness.

Sincerely,

Christopher One Beckons To Columbus Wanderlust

A fire sale of D-C 7's as major airlines retired the craft to join the jet-set is propelling local gadabouts around the world at bargain-basement prices.

With two and one - half million dollar passenger planes a drug on the market and tagged as low as $90,000 "Country Clubs of the Air" are flying high.

Landing in Las Vegas after its maiden voyage since rechristening, the plane recently unloaded a gang of happy holidayers. They are among the members of the non-profit organization dedicated to enable "their people" to party in far distant places without walloping the wallet.

And last Friday the nose of the 90 - passenger plane streaked toward the Grand Bahamas where members spent the weekend aback a turtle, wrestling octopi, searching for sunken treasure, or more prosaically, deep-sea fishing, night clubbing and sparring with a roulette wheel.

The beauty of the whole idea lies in the setup by which plutocratic air travel is scheduled for a cost less than that charged for a proletarian bus seat.

According to "Miss Christopher" truly a "hostess with the mostest" who doubles as Cathy Nichol, assistant to President Carl Wagner, all one needs to stage a break-through to cosmopolitan living is a membership and a little legal tender and leisure to spend.

A $100 membership ($150 for a couple) buys an equity in the Christopher One and the privilege of signing up for as many or as few of the 35 long weekends and several fortnight jaunts planned annually.

With tickets marked at 2.8 cents a mile, Acapulco is only $122 away, a round-trip to New York City is tag-tag at $36, and first hand knowledge of "Paris in the Spring" offered for $261.

The only other dent in the purse is the $8 monthly dues which are earmarked to keep the fires burning in the office at the old Port Columbus Terminal on E. Fifth-st.

Ground expenses during the sorties are largely left up to the individual. With mass buying power, the corporation can offer hotel accommodations and entertainment at discount prices, but if a traveler prefers to stay with Aunt Suzie or in a presidential suite, it's kosher.

At least once this year, the giant craft which cruises at 365 miles per hour at 24,000 feet, will take off on a mystery trip, with only the six-man crew in-the-know as to destination.

The itinerary for the other flights is planned after polling the members to learn whether they currently are intrigued by skiing in Sun Valley, touring Disneyland or visiting Madrid to check out whether the decision to ban Columbus bull-fighting is a valid one.

Only one factor takes precedence over "fun" (even the flights are marked with convivality with no one en route to a funeral, Vietnamese jungles or a struggle with financial titans) and that is safety.

The pilot and co-pilot are veterans of thousands of hours of commercial and Air Force flight hours. The plane is serviced with the minute attention to detail that would mean three full-time mechanics on the payroll if an individual gave his automobile the same maintenance.

As it has been pointed out, with more people killed falling off ladders than in airplanes, scheduled flights in the air lanes is 6.4 times as safe as on the nation's highways.

As the membership grows (the goal is 1,000—the figure reached by a like Indianapolis Club in three months) mile costs are expected to hit rock-bottom, a smaller plane purchased for football weekends and fishing trips and travel-time made deluxe with moving pictures and possibly even live entertainment.

And who knows, someday with a full-fledged membership, the food and libation may be "on-the-house."

Miss Christopher, a warm and vital person who takes a personal interest in each and every passenger, tells with delight of one member—age varies—one man voting for the first time this year, and another is flirting with octogenarianism—who had found widowhood a lonely business.

"Since Las Vegas," she's in a social whirl," she marveled.

Hospitality is rampant at the Christopher One office and the Christopher One (when not out in the wide blue yonder or waiting patiently while her passengers "unwind" in the resort areas of two hemispheres) is always on display.

"CHEERS" WAS THE toast given by Carl Wagner, president of the Christopher One and his assistant, Cathy Nichol, who doubles as "Miss Christopher," as they paused in the sunburst lounge of the DC-7. They really had something to cheer when stranded Shriners on the West Coast signed up wholesale, hiking the membership, previously around 200, almost 50 percent overnight.

Cerebral Palsy Patients Lead Normal Life At Center

Every 53 minutes a child is born with celebral palsy.

Older children and adults become cerebral palsied as a result of injury or disease.

This is why Don Wheeler, 32, spends most of his time in a wheelchair. He cannot feed himself nor bathe himself. His speech is slurred. CP (cerebral palsy) has left him unable to control his motions.

Although there is no cure for the disease, there is hope. Don Wheeler has hope and determination.

The Columbus Cerebral Palsy Center, 1036 Hudson-st, is helping Don to attain normality by providing special training and treatment for him.

Four times a week Don works in the Handicap Achievement Shop at his own pace without pressure, and achieves results within the limits of his abilities.

These results have been amazing, but laborious. For two and one-half years he has been working on the clay bust of a man. The creation has a professional touch.

It only takes us a fraction of a second to raise our arms. It would often take Don four or five minutes just to get his hand to the clay. Sometimes an uncontrolled spastic movement would completely ruin his work and he would have to begin all over again.

What has this done for Don?

It has shown him that he can do more than sit in a wheelchair for the rest of his life. It has also given him pride in himself—a reason to get up tomrrow morning.

Robert Goldenberg, director of the Cerebral Palsy Center for Columbus and Franklin County said that many people like Don are helped to gain confidence and motivation by participating at the center.

More than a hundred attend special classes every week.

"We provide services for the cerebral palsied teenagers and adults, and for any age group that cannot get help elsewhere," he said.

"Some of the people we work with suffer from epilepsy and multiple sclerosis."

"They are not different here," said Goldenberg.

"Most important, we adapt the environment to our clients' ability and not adapt them to our environment."

"Everyone is involved in activities. No one just sits."

Many of the people who attend the center are on welfare and live in foster or nursing homes if their families are unable to care for them.

They are not given the opportunity to meet many people nor are they given the individual attention that is needed so desperately.

The center gives this attention, besides providing a home away from home for them and a purpose in life.

Someone with poor social manners is shown how to eat properly. A fellow who had taken 45 minutes to shave himself wept tears of joy when he was outfitted with a special strap that hooked to his shaver. The procedure was cut down to ten minutes.

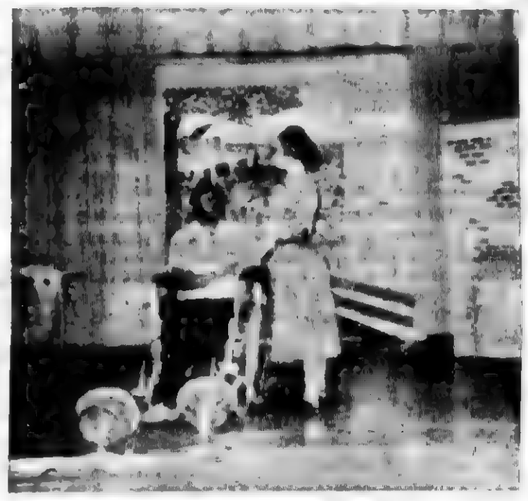
For others the center provides small jobs. "Five dollars to them is like one hundred to us," said Goldenberg. "At last they have something that is all their own. This is very satisfying."

The center employs speech and occupational therapists and a medical director who examines incoming clients to discover what their potential is and the kind of help they need to achieve it.

Someone with cerebral palsy can bowl, swim, dance, play games and go camping when the activities are adapted to his limitations. Some have learned to bowl.

Cerebral palsy is a condition caused by damage to the human brain, usually at birth. It may also result from physical injury, prolonged high fever and other causes later in life.

Since cerebral palsy affects the muscle control centers of the brain, its most common effects are awkward, shambling gait, lack of balance, tremors, guttural speech and grimacing. Sixty percent of those who attend the Columbus center are mentally retarded in varying degrees.



Operating expenses for the Center are provided each year from United Appeal, donations from interested persons, organizations, and through women's auxiliaries.

The over-all aim for those afflicted with the disease is not to segragate them but to integrate them into our community life. This gives them a sense of belonging and designs a human pattern of living for them.

Recently a group from the center successfully staged the play "Porgy and Bess." Complete from staging and lighting to the acting.

Surprisingly none of the audience even noticed the wheelchairs or crutches. They were to busy watchng the fine performance.

Do you remember when the little voice inside you was a conscience instead of a pocket radio? — Mt. Pleasant (La.) Iris.

TWO CLIENTS from the Cerebral Palsy Center are posed in one of the scenes from "Porgy and Bess." The play was given at the Thompson Recreation Center.

New Theatre Club Has Box Office Rush

The American Musical Theatre Club, the first new national theater subscription plan in 35 years and the first subscription series to offer only exclusive national tours of Broadway musicals officially launched its Columbus membership campaign this week.

Already, the response has been amazing. The ticket office of the club is flooded with requests for tickets and information.

The four musicals to be presented at the Hartman Theater are "On a Clear Day You Can See Forever," the Alan Jay Lerner-Burton Lane musical smash, the score of which has been described by critics as one of the most joyous in Broadway history. Sept. 26 is the opening date for this one.

"Where's Charley?"—the hilarious Frank Loesser hit, opens Oct. 10. Sigmund Romberg's "The Desert Song," one of America's best loved musical classics is scheduled for Nov. 14. "Funny Girl," the musical biography of Fanny Brice will return for a one week engagement Monday, Mar. 6.

Charter members to the Club pay a $5 membership fee, which entitles them to two free tickets to the gala opening night of "Funny Girl" as the guest of producer Martin Tahse.

They also receive free souvenir programs to each show and as an extra bonus, they receive a "special" two-record Columbia album entitled "Broadway's Greatest Musicals 1926-1966."

However, since Columbus residents saw "Funny Girl" earlier this year during its run at the Hartman Theater, the club is making a special offer, specifically for these people.

They can become members of the club without the membership fee, and receive all the benefits—the record album included, except the free ticket to "Funny Girl."

IN & AROUND TOWN

A guide to performers and performances in the Columbus area this week

Looking For New Market

The other day a very personable young man dropped by my desk to discuss a new career he is developing. The handsome, ambitious gentleman was George Deffet. Developing is not new to Deffet. Being a real estate developer for several years and knowing the real estate market, it was no surprise when this 32 year old ball of fire stated he was looking for a new market. What was surprising was the market George was interested in getting into. Placing a 45-rpm record on my desk, he said "here is my first record, just out. I always wanted to be a singer and decided to take a chance, so I cut a record to see what would happen." And happening it is. In fact things are beginning to happen so fast, George is a little mystified by it all.

But let's back track a little. George just didn't lay down a set of blue prints for a new housing development and decide to cut a record. While in college as well as in the service, he always loved to sing. Winning many talent shows proved George had potential in the entertainment field. But a career and seven children (soon to be eight) interferred with his singing ambitions.

Now George is beginning to realize his life-long dream. Since his record, on the "Can-Do" label, George's entertainment career is beginning to snow-ball. He has had offers to be a staff vocalist on one of the stations in the Avco chain and he is currently planning a night club act.

All of this has happened since the release of his record a couple of weeks ago. Backed by Al Waslon and his 16-piece band, the featured side is a tune written by Waslon. Titled "I Can't Dance," it is a jump number. "Here's That Rainy Day," is the flip side and has long been a favorite of singers and musicians. This number offers listeners the pleasure of hearing Deffet in a complete change of style, yet retaining his same quality, range and phrasing.

After listening to the record and talking to George, I firmly believe he will make it in show business. He has everything it takes for success. He has looks, talent, a good business mind, as well as being a good promotion man and the needed financial backing.

He doesn't plan to give up his real estate business for the bright lights of a stage. George is interested in making a hit in both occupations. He doesn't plan to travel all of the time in making personal appearances. He wants to go on the road two or three weeks at a time then return to his desk before accepting another engagement on the stage.

Who knows, some day George may be a star and play in a theater built by George Deffet.

Greatest Show Of Season At POG

From the very first line, Playhouse-on-the-Green's production of "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf" gets off to build a solid work of art. The entire show is magnificent. Direction is superb. There is a smoothness in the presentation and a command of the situation by the four actors that one seldom finds on or off Broadway.

"Virginia Woolf" is an unusually long play but with the excellent acting and directing, the show moves along at a fast clip.

They have taken Edward Albee's creation and given it good pacing. While this is basically considered a highly dramatic vehicle, it is loaded with comedy lines. The production at POG plays the comedy aspect to the fullest. This is what keeps the play moving at a rapid pace. Without the comic relief, it could become a little tiresome.

"Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf" is a study of the realization of human frailties. The story could happen anywhere. Love, humility, failure, social standards and all of the other human emotions prey on the mind of each of the four characters. When caught by the effects of alcohol, George and Martha, the college professor and his wife whose father is president of the small college where George teaches, begin to face each other in the presence of another professor and his wife.

Both couples slowly begin to react to their alcoholic beverages, and soon the secret aspirations and failing of each individual becomes a story superbly told by Mr. Albee.

As the old cliche goes, sex sells. Of course it has always been true in the entertainment industry. Albee has taken "Virginia Woolf" and loaded it with sex and salty language. Frequently the dialogue is shocking and at times just plain revolting. While some of the risque dialogue is needed for impact and for conveying the message, Albee has made use of spicy conversation in the play solely for the purpose of commercialism. And it does sell. Opening night at Playhouse-on-the-Green, "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf" played to a capacity audience. This is the first show of the season to have a full house for opening night. However, there is another factor which helps make the play a success.

KEEPING COOL

One of the many stars who visit our city during the summer months is Connie Stevens, shown cooling off at pool-side of Nationwide Inn with manager, Brian Kirby. The pool at Nationwide Inn has proven to be a popular spot during the hot days of summer. And Columbus proved to be popular with Connie Stevens. She was very impressed with good ole Columbus town and the personable young gal hopes to come back real soon.

New Drama At Stadium

There is new and unusual drama in OSU-Stadium Theatre production of Harold Pinter's "The Birthday Party" this week.

Ever since 1958, when "The Birthday Party" scored its first great success in England, its young playwright has been at the front of the new world theatre development.

In the words of the London Sunday Times, Pinter is "the most original, disturbing, and arresting talent in theatrical London."

The audience will question as to who are the two mysterious strangers who come to the rooming house to intimidate and apprehend Stanley Weber.

Are they plain clothes policemen? Are they representatives of a mental institution reclaiming a former patient? Are they officers of a secret organization out to punish a defecting member?

In this powerful and unusual drama, Pinter, the author of many one-act plays as well as the full-length, "The Caretaker," creates the private terrors and personal farce of everyday life.

"The Birthday Party" continues through Saturday at the Stadium Theatre. Tickets may be reserved by calling CY. 3-2295, 24 hours a day.

Members of Iota Tau Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi and their guests will meet to attend Kenley Players production of "The Boyfriend" Saturday, July 30. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jones will host an after - the - theatre party at their home at 3139 Hamilton-av.

MAVERICK

With Muddy Shoes

By RICHARD L. PAUGH

Those of you who are interested about the rising tide of pollution in Ohio waters, will be glad to know it is now a fit parlor topic.

On July 8, at the Neil House in Columbus, all parlors were crowded with men of means from most of the corners of our blighted state.

IT WAS the All-Ohio Water Quality Conference, sponsored by the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, Ohio Coal Association, Ohio Farm Bureau, Ohio Manufacturers' Association, Ohio Municipal League, Ohio Petroleum Council and the Ohio Reclamation Association.

PAUGH

The purpose of the gathering was to air the pressing need for a state - wide clean - up campaign.

It was heartening to find that the expected 250 attendees swelled to over 600. It was disheartening to hear that most everyone who spoke was in favor of just enough 'clean-up campaign' to get by the new Federal regulations.

A NEW TERM was born — ZONED WATERS. It means that they plan on having only certain waters clean enough for recreation.

Taking a page from land use planning, they felt there should be some streams where it would be perfectly feasable to dump sewage, chemicals and silt.

One big mistake they made was that industrial lands stay put and do not travel down the road into residential streets. Water travels and joins other water.

THE FEDERAL Water Quality Act of 1965 gives each state until June 30, 1967, to come with with criteria and programming of its own or the Federal Government will step in. It remains to be seen whether the new zoning theory will be acceptable under the new law.

I was interested in seeing who from this area was interested enough in pollution to attend the day-long meet so I scanned the registration slips and came up with some surprises.

Although it is well known that 75 percent of Ohio's pollution stems from poorly treated sewage from cities and towns, the great preponderance of those attending were from private industry.

IT WAS also very disappointing to find that, of all the candidates who will be asking for your vote this coming November, only two were attending to find out what this pollution business is about.

They were the incumbent U. S. Representative Samuel L. Devine and Roger W. Tracy, Jr., running for State Representative from the 60th District.

Also there was Harry L. Armstrong, State Senator from the 17th District which includes southwestern Columbus, Fairfield, Pickaway, Hocking, Ross and Vinton Counties.

AS FAR as I could tell, with City Hall only one block away, Columbus sent no one to attend, even though the Scioto River has served for decades as a hole in which to dump lime from the filtration plant.

Among those present from Columbus were Ken Crawford—Columbus Auto Parts, T. R. Evans—Ranco, Andre and John A. Lowry—Jeffrey Manufacturing, L. Kermit Herndon — Weinman Pump, Albert J. Kurlic — Dresser-Ideco, D. Mock and Norman Geist — American Zinc Oxide, Warner Ohman—Portland Cement, Bernard E. Savey — Bordens, Don E. Seelbach — Dennison Engineering, William C. Finley, R. O. Stith, Mary Fulmer, Ralph Salmon—Battelle and George J. Igel (chairman) and Gerald T. Long (secretary) of the Water Policy Commission.

Only time will tell how important this meeting will be to the future of Ohio. At least it was a good beginning from which these people may go on to victory.

TRIPLE WINNERS AT JR. OLYMPICS

TRIPLE WINNERS were few and far between at last week's Junior Swimming Olympics at Sunshine Pool as only four competitors managed wins in three individual events. Above, Swimland's Jeff Wells congratulates Jean Anderson of the Buckeye Blue Dolphins — both swimmers winning the 100-yard individual medley, 50-yard freestyle and 50-yard butterfly in the 10 and under divisions. Only other triple winners were Jean's teammates — Ellen Merrill and Becky Bischoff (not pictured).

Checkers' Film Explains Hockey

The Columbus Checkers, local entry in the International Hockey League this fall, have the answer for fans who want to be among the "in" set prior to the Checkers' opener, Oct. 21.

Groups are invited to contact Jerry Schmelzer (228-4321) to schedule a showing of the 16-minute, color and sound movie —"Ice Hockey."

The film helps neophyte hockey fans to a better understanding of the sports' rules, terms and techniques.

Entries Due Tuesday For Jr. Olympics

The Central Ohio Junior Olympics Track and Field Meet, conducted by the Columbus Recreation Department, will be held on the OSU Stadium cinders Friday and Saturday, Aug. 5-6.

THE JUNIOR Olympics Track and Field Meet offers competition separately for boys and girls in five different age groups: 9 and under, 10-11, 12-13, 14-15 and 16-17.

Boys and girls (17 years of age and under) in the Central Ohio area may enter this annual event by obtaining an entry form at the Columbus Recreation Department office.

All entry blanks must be submitted to the Recreation Department office by 9 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 2.

ALL GIRLS will compete on Friday, Aug. 5, starting at 1 p.m., while the boys' events will be held on Saturday, Aug. 6, starting at 11:30 a.m.

'Cats' At Hoover

SPORTING

Wit 'N' Wisdom

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

Baseball, like every other business, (oops, sorry about that word, Mr. Eckert), has come to discover that promotion of its product is necessary these days to maintain a profit.

One of the choicest means of encouraging fans to rally 'round the flag of the local nine is to schedule a number of special "nights," thereby speeding up the spin of the turnstiles.

Wittenmeier

DURING THE past several years, the special nights have seemed to get a little out of hand. We fear that the major leagues will eventually run out of "specials" and we have compiled a list of "nights" for those clubs which might be running out of promotional ideas:

"Herman Forquer Night" —honoring the stadium's veteran peanut vendor at Portal Seven, Upper Grandstand. First 150 youngsters (under 12) will receive nine innings worth of peanuts and box seats behind the opponent's dugout.

"Broken Bone Night" — all fans with arms or legs set in casts admitted free. First 200 at the park will have casts signed by entire ball club. Any fan breaking arm or leg in chasing down foul ball during course of regulation game will receive lifetime pass.

"TEAMSTERS Union "Night — first 3500 fans will receive autographed picture of Jimmy Hoffa (suitable for framing). Admission will be half price or less (dependent upon current negotiations with Ticket Takers Union, Local 703).

"Sandlot Tryout Night"— all amateur players (playing in a regular metropolitan league) admitted free. Best hitting, fielding shortstop will be signed to a contract in pre-game ceremonies and bat cleanup in the starting lineup.

"Bench Jockey Night — Six loudest, most brash and downright mean baiters in park will win dugout seats for next week's series with league leaders.

"SUBURBAN Tiny Tot League Night" — All area Little Leaguers admitted free. Coach inducing his team to sell the most adult tickets will have his team seated closest to little boys' rest room.

One Of These Days These Shoes Are Going To Walk Along With You

By
MARIANNE TOMLINSON
Spectator Fashion Editor

They say getting there is half the fun . . . The National Shoe Institute says this year's shoes make it all the more so.

Where the girls go, it's the Pretty Little Pump for day . . . and later it's straps high and low . . . it's also the sport look and the zingy show-off shoes.

For children, cradle snatching fashions are back where they belong . . . back into shoes for little boys and girls . . . where fashion and fit are synonymous.

This season, the all-purpose shoe is out. The sum of the fashion equation for Fall-Winter '66 is: The right shoe for the right occasion at the right time . . . so saith the National Shoe Institute to assembled fashion editors in New York recently.

First, let's explore the extent of the Pretty Little Pump. The go-everywhere pump is gone, they say. In its place is the shoe that is so perfect an extension of a costume that it seems intended for it and no other. Never before have clothes and shoes been so brilliantly matched and never has one been so dependent on the other for [redacted].

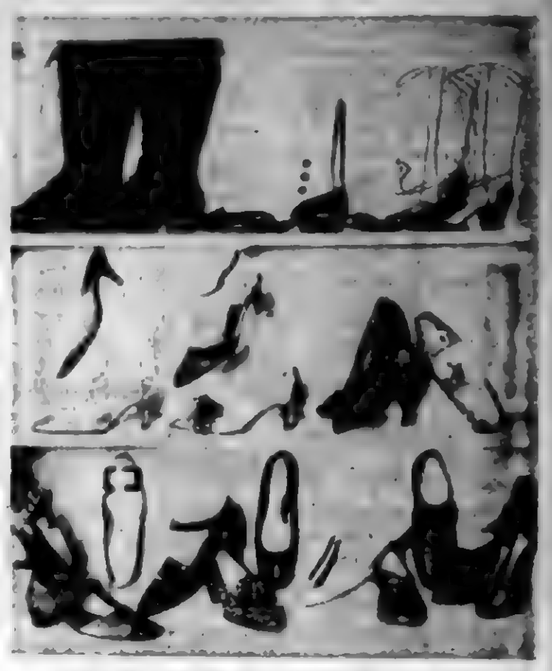
Basic to fashion is the Pretty Little Pump worked out in choppy shapes, rounded toes, blocky heels . . . worked out, too, in off-center angled straps and choked-up fronts . . . the cut downs, the cut-outs, the witty, wet-look vinyls.

Here too are lightweight looks, the sexy, almost-nothing pumps that are skimmed, pared-down, low backed. These are important to carry out fashion's most fragile ideas, but the most valued shapes are unquestionably the broad ones.

Good evening looks include the rushes of glitter, the shimmery silver kids, the bright scatter of sequins, all the vibrant colors and the parrot-bright combinations that are lighting up the night. All these make the Pretty Little Pump an autumn indispensible.

Straps come whirling into autumn in endless ways. They can ride toe-low or race up to ankle height. The high ones look marvelous and their fashion potential has only begun. For evening, a sliver of straps might be all a shoe needs to be. These can be intricate spider webs or the narrowest of T's or, even simply a stringy tie, ankle high, and a ring around a toe. When these shoes are on the scene their heels are slender and slightly elevated.

The lowered heel is having the best of it. Here are the blocks, the cubed boy-heels, the lowered Lovies, the Cubans, the heavy spool curves. These lowered heels are so necessary to the whole feeling of fashion at the moment . . . that when a higher heel comes along it gets attention. There is a higher heel in some collections. However it has a strong sturdy shaping and has no relation whatsoever with the high, needle heel of past seasons. According to Alice Regensburg, Fashion Director of the National Shoe Institute, "Exaggerated points (toes) and high skinny heels have no place in today's fashion picture."



There are a number of straps among the sporting set and also a batch of shoes that do marvelous new things to the classics. Moccasins have tassels and kilties, leather covered buckles and multiple rows of hand stitching.

Worth mentioning are the rain spats to button or buckle over any shoe at all. Wetness bothers them not a whit, so they'll emerge from a sodden shopping day with all their dash intact.

Boots are big for Fall. For some of the maddest ideas, try the see-through plastics, or fly into the fray in Batman style.

Bared looks and coming out mostly via clear plastics. Vinyl is being used in intriguing ways, sometimes as a spectator pointed up with patent or silk.

A long winter's night looms just around Autumn's corner and plans have been made to charm it up with all sorts of shoe fripperies and fancies designed to be worn at home.

School Land Is Inadequate

A Blue Plan summary just completed of area public schools reveals Franklin County falls far below accepted norms in the acreage per student it is devoting to education.

Columbus with its high density of population and spiraling land values, is currently limited to .009 acres for each of the 101,584 students enrolled with similar space allotted to Bexley's 2,600 students and Whitehall's 5,500 students.

Upper Arlington has a slightly better ratio with .012 acres per pupil, but the South-Western District, although not up to national recommendations, is able to boast a figure of .023 acre for each of its 13,700 students.

Total county enrollment is 164,948 students whose school facilities are placed on 2,137 acres.

If only the part of the rule of the thumb that calls for 10 acres for each elementary school and 50 for each secondary school the 245 area schools would demand something over 4,000 acres.

However, this figure would not allow for the additional acre per 100 elementary children that is considered ideal.

According to Paul Noblitt of South-Western only the Prairie - Lincoln Elementary in that district meets the recommended standards.

With an enrollment of 800 and 19 acres, it even "has an acre to burn."

Noblitt states that all Central Ohio school systems with the exception of Newark are in the same boat and the situation is more acute in cities than in rural areas.

However, a look at the three districts in the Southeast (Madison, Canal Winchester and Hamilton) shows these suburban schools badly cramped for space.

The 4,755 students enrolled in the eight elementaries in the area call for 127 acres for their educational needs. The total land devoted to educating both elementary children and those attending the three high schools is only 95.52 acres.

The study also reports that the majority of children are between the kindergarten and sixth grade level, resulting in 179 elementaries, seven combination schools and 59 secondaries.

The only exception to the preponderance of elementary pupils in the county is Jefferson Local Schools (Gahanna) where almost 54 percent of the students are in the upper grades.

Data on private and parochial schools was not included in the survey but will be covered in a later summary.

Welfare Head Urges Petition To Rhodes

A plea is out for Franklin County citizens to join the United Community Council in writing to Gov. Rhodes persuading him to act to hike welfare benefits.

With the 1967-68 biennial State budget now in preparation, Mrs. Robert Lazarus, as chairman of UCC Public Welfare Education Committee, stresses that the time to act is now.

Although Rhodes, in the letter written by O. A. Donnenwirth, is commended for his leadership in bringing about a reorganization in the Ohio public welfare system, the UCC president points out, "—this organization does not put sufficient food in the mouths of Ohio's dependent children, nor provide adequate shoes and clothing."

Deploring the fact that the individual on welfare is forced to exist on only 73 cents a day for all his needs except housing and medical care, Mrs. Lazarus stresses that hunger and abject poverty can crush not only self-respect but motivation.

She states, that when a person is "boxed in" by his own incapacities on the one hand, and lack of acceptance and opportunity on the other, he is often pushed into "desperate, even irrational acts."

She adds that 100 percent of minimum subsistence is essential for health and decency and this figure must be based on today's costs, and not on the out-dated yardstick of 1959 living costs.

Mrs. Lazarus expresses the view that the 20,000 extremely poor children in Franklin County, (and the 150,000 throughout the state) are suffering in the midst of prosperity because of two factors.

The first is the public is not aware of their plight, and the second is, that unaware of this suffering, the public has not had a genuine concern with which to alert the governor and the legislature to the pressing needs.

She pleads, ". . . we must see that these people are decently fed, clothed and provided with the wherewithal to maintain dignity and self respect — to enable their participation in the mainstream of community life—the cultural and educational aspects AND the social and ecoromic opportunities."

Those willing to help the child with two strikes against him before he ever starts to school are urged to write the governor in their own words, and ask him to act immediately.

Slate Is Announced For ASC Committees

Ballots will be mailed Friday by the Franklin ASC County Committee to all eligible voters to elect community committees who will help administer various farm programs during 1966-67.

At the same time delegates will be chosen to represent the community in the annual county convention when a county-wide ASC committee for the coming year will be elected.

The county convention is slated at the Southern Hotel, Wednesday, Aug. 17.

According to Owen Van Schoyck, chairman of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, ballots must be postmarked no later than Monday, Aug. 8, to be included in the tally that will be made Wednesday, Aug. 10.

Communities to be represented on the slate in the Reynoldsburg-Gahanna area are Jefferson-Truro Township and Mifflin Township.

Nominees from the former include Joseph F. Dixon, 2366 Havens Corners-rd; William A. Dixon, 7240 Havens Corner-rd; Edward P. Morrison, 878 Waggoner-rd; Carl Schneider and Robert Winland, 1044 N. Waggoner-rd, all of Blacklick, and Clark H. Oldhan, 704 Waggoner-rd, Reynoldsburg.

Those from Mifflin Township are Leo B. Carroll, 312 James-rd; Frank R. Ingram, 497 Price-rd; Sam Ramsey, 4619 Morse-rd, and Henry Trapp, 3858 Cherry Bottom-rd, all of Gahanna and John Conroy, 3580 Ridenour-rd, and Milton Suption, 3795 Ridenour-rd, both of Columbus.

Classes Planned For Children With Handicaps

The Franklin County Society for Crippled Children is accepting registration of four and five-year-old handicapped children for fall preschool classes.

All orthopedically handicapped children are eligible for the classes which provide pre-school activities for children who might be denied such activities because of physical limitations.

Classes will begin after Labor Day at the Treatment Center, 555 S. Monroe-av. Children will attend classes five half days per week. Six classes, with eight children per class, will be formed.

The program, founded in 1962, is financed by sale of Easter Seals.

When the recent award was made, Walnut Hill's achievement in the Higher Education Crusade was also noted.

In this nation-wide effort of Methodists to raise money for church-supported colleges and the establishment of student scholarships, Walnut Hill was top church in the district.

MONTREUX, SWITZERLAND

Buckeye Lake is my yardstick for lakes. By the Buckeye Lake standard my Swiss lake is big — 10 times longer than the Central Ohio one, seven times as wide. So beautiful is this lake many have claimed it. The French, who own most of the southern shore, and the French-speaking Swiss, who claim the rest, call it Lac Leman. The German-speaking Swiss, who constitute a 74 percent majority in this tri-lingual nation, refer to my inland sea as Genfer See. The many English, who fly, motor and entrain the 600 or so miles from their sceptered isle, and the few Americans who reach these shores, call my watery paradise Lake Geneva.

My Swiss lake has been popular a long time. No doubt Caesar's legions, having surmounted the Alpine passes to the south, returned home and spoke of it. Spoke so glowingly of the huge watery crescent, locked on the south by snow-capped peaks, and on the north by gentler green terraces, that others followed. One Saint Maurice at the end of the Third Century, was slaughtered a few miles from here.

Crusaders paused by these shores on their mission to the Holy Land. Surely they gaped at the same view that now distracts me as I try to write on this fourth floor balcony. Except for an occasional low-flying airplane, and a stratospheric power plant on the opposite shore, which was built during my four-years absence from my lake, the view here is the same as it was thousands of years ago.

Lord Byron, the romantic poet, visited the castle a few miles from my apartment. He dug his name into a wall of the below-water dungeon with such gusto it is still visible today. Then Byron told the story of the imprisoned Gen. Bonivard in such glowing lines that generations of English and American poetry lovers have been able in their mind's eye to see the turreted bulk of Chillon Castle as clearly as I can when I walk or drive by it.

Four blocks from my apartment the Russian composer Tschaikovsky, from his hotel windows, viewed the same breath-taking panorama that is now mine. With this view as inspiration, he here wrote his immortal Violin Concerto.

On the shores of this lake beautiful Elizabeth Hapsburg, traveling incognito and with only one lady-in-waiting as companion, reeled from the blow of a Socialist madman. (He saw two rich women and maddened with class-hatred, struck one without realizing who fate surrendered to him). Elizabeth and her companion then made it aboard a lake steamer.

There an examination revealed the assassin's file buried so deeply in Elizabeth's heart only a few drops of blood surfaced. Then the electrifying words of the lady-in-waiting to the captain: "Put your boat back to shore. The Empress of Austria-Hungry is dying on her deck."

It was upon her, and my, beloved lake that Elizabeth gazed her last. A mile from my apartment a marble statue of the ill-starred empress reveals she was indeed beautiful. As beautiful as my grandmother, (who told me Elizabeth's story on S. Fifth-st in German Village) clamed her to be.

A big, glorious lake this one, with multitudes of admirers . . . Roman Legionnaires, holy martyrs, Medieval Crusaders, an English poet, a Russian composer, an assassinated empress. Above my native Buckeye Lake, Lake Chapalla in Mexico, and the glorious Swiss lakes of Lucerne, Thun, and Maggiore, I value this one — Lake Geneva, Lac Leman, Genfer See —the most.

BBB Warns Of Book Canvass

Better Business Bureau of Central Ohio, Inc., 71 E. State-st, has received information that unknown sale subjects are canvassing many neighborhoods in Central Ohio attempting to sell children's books and representing themselves as being affiliated with the "Board of Education."

One of the subjects is described as dark complexioned, slightly heavy set, possessing an obnoxious manner, using high pressure type selling tactics. The bureau said these men attempt to secure a down payment when an order is obtained and usually ask for $1 to $4.

The board of education of Columbus does not have any representatives engaged in the selling of children's books and if anyone is contacted by persons representing themselves as such the Better Business Bureau should be informed as this is a case of misrepresentation.

Furthermore, the board of education has told the bureau that parents who are enrolling youngsters in the Head Start Program do not need to purchase any books or material since they will be supplied to the children by the school board when they enroll.

Again, if anyone represents himself as being affiliated with the board of education and attempts to sell books, don't believe it. Secure as much information about the person as possible and call the Better Business Bureau.

Shoe Corp. Announces 150th Straight Dividend

Shoe Corporation of America has announced its 150th consecutive regular quarterly cash dividend on common shares.

President Herbert H. Schiff announced that payment of 25 cents per share will be made Sept. 15 to shareholders of record as of Aug. 26. Approximately 4,200 shareholders will receive dividends on 1,659,531 shares of common stock.

Farm Produce Labeling Helps Grower And Buyer

Farmers and roadside market operators should be familar with Ohio's labeling requirements for produce sold at their markets, advises an Ohio State University Extension specialist.

Edwin Royer, fruit and vegetable marketing specialist, points out that proper labeling not only helps purchasers identify where the product was grown or packed but it also protects the market operator from a possible citation for violation of the law.

Ohio labeling laws specify that containers of apples, peaches, potatoes, and onions be labeled with the name and address of the grower or packer, grade, and net weight or numerical count, except when packed in a standard container. In addition, the variety and minimum size must be added for all containers of apples and peaches.

In general, other fruits and vegetables require only the name, address, and net weight statements, according to Royer. Exceptions to the general labeling laws are permitted for fruits and vegetables sold on the premises where grown, but Royer suggest that growers provide the same information on the containers of these products in the interest of good customer relations.

Producers, roadside market operators, and consumers may find answers to questions about proper labeling of fruits, and vegetables in Extension Bulletin 418, "Labeling Fruits and Vegetables for Sale in Ohio." Copies are available at county Extension offices.

In recent years, more and more locally grown fresh fruits and vegetables have made their appearance at roadside markets in Ohio, but not all produce sold at the markets is grown in the state. Royer points out. Many market operators supplement their production of sweet corn, tomatoes, peaches, apples, melons, and berries with such other items as plums, pineapple, grapes and early potatoes.

Navy Reserve Seeks Gals With Clerical Training

The Columbus Navy Reserve is looking for women with office, clerical and secretarial skills for its new special-rating program.

Under the plan, women between 18 and 45 years of age who do not have dependents under age 18 can qualify for petty officer positions.

Most needed are women with two and a half to 10 years experience in shorthand, typing and filing, bookkeeping and general clerical work.

THERE'S A POOL IN YOUR FUTURE

The pool-on-wheels owned by the downtown YMCA is headed toward Hamilton Township so that swimming lessons may be given to the small fry of the community for two weeks beginning Monday, Aug. 15. Children between five and nine years old who are at least 44 inches tall and 10-year-olds who are quite small are eligible to enroll in the classes. Sponsored by the YMCA, the Hamilton Township School Board and the Hamilton Township Teen Club, the series of lessons cost only $1 for anyone in the township and outsiders are welcome for $5. Anyone wanting further information is asked to call either Superintendent John Savel or his secretary, Mrs. Nancy Young.

HE'S COLORADO BOUND

Come Sunday, Clayton Coffee, 1966 Groveport graduate, is off to Ft. Collins in Colorado for the youth convention sponsored by the American Institute of Cooperatives. Franklin Miller, instructor and FFA advisor, shown with Clayton, explained he is the only boy in the county to win the scholarship and was chosen after an oral examination given when he ranked in the first 10 students on the preliminary written examination. The honor student who hopes to enter the field of farm business also received one of the 20 scholarships OSU offers to senior agricultural students.

Grove City Goes To Athens To Defend State Legion Title

By BOB WHITMAN

During the first weeks of the American Legion season, Grove City Paschall Post was sitting on the bottom of the Columbus Area Legion League. Monday they try for a chair at the top of the state.

"We just started to jell," claims Grove City coach Whitey Cowgill. "I can't tell you who was responsible but somehow we started to move."

And move they did.

GROVE CITY'S tested legions fought back to come in second in the league. Then they went on to win the playoff and jump into the State Legion Baseball tournament fires for the third time in four years. The Paschall Post team won the state last summer.

Cowgill does have 10 of last season's 13 men back and Capital City mentor Paul Pennell states that "it was their poise that beat us in the playoff."

The Capital City League champion crew fell in extra innings to second place Grove City, 4-3.

Grove City roped the District title with an impressive 8-2 win over Worthington. Ron Hennes clubbed the first pitch for a home run to open a four run first.

LARRY Kerschner held Worthington to six scattered hits for the State tourney berth.

Whitey lists a team effort all around as a contributing factor to the team's success. "Each game a different star comes through."

That's the difference between this group and last year's, claims Cowgill. "Last year we had a few that we could point to and say they were standouts (George Fannin and Eddie Harris)."

"This year it's pitch and defense and if that doesn't come through," he said, "we get beat."

THE PITCHING staff that has come through for Grove City is paced by Ron Burket's and Larry Kerschner's 4-1 records and the Geddes' boys' firing. John holds a 4-3 mark and Jim owns a 2-1 log.

The 14 team tourney held at Athens will include Ashtabula, Lancaster, Lima, Cincinnati Bentley, Radnor and Piqua.

THE GROVE CITY team has been going with Rick Murray at first, Brach Schmidt at second, Mike Workman at short, and Bob Grooms at third.

Football Signups July 30-31

THE BRONCOS (70-95 lbs.) should report to head coach Pete Blades Saturday (11 a.m. till noon) or Sunday (1:30 to 2:30 p.m.). Bronco prospects cannot be over 14 or under 10 by Sept. 1.

THE PONYS (60-85 lbs.) should report to head coach Chuck McClelland Saturday (1 to 2 p.m.) or Sunday (2 to 3 p.m.). Ponys cannot be over 12 or under nine by Sept. 1.

Sunday Club Wins C-O All-Star Game, Shade-Link Eyes Title Tie

Action in the Central Ohio Baseball League this weekend was confined to the All-Star contest played Saturday at Watterson between the Saturday and Sunday Division Stars.

The other scheduled games were postponed due to wet grounds.

THE FOURTH annual All-Star match saw the Sunday Division win its first of the series by a 13-7 score.

JOHN'S WINNING WAVE

JOHN FORQUER, new 1966 Soap Box Derby champion, waved to the crowd at Saturday's Derby from the winner's circle after beating Bruce Hartman in the finals. It was the second straight year a "B" Division (11-12) entrant has earned the local berth at Akron. John's winning time was :39.4 (day's best time was Bob Hoyle's :37.1). Champion John is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Forquer, 169 Richards-rd. His sponsor was the Clintonville Lumber Co.

Katona Nabs CMS Feature

Despite overcast skies and threatening weather, more than 6500 fans turned out at the Columbus Motor Speedway last weekend for the two nights of activity.

ARCA's New Car races Saturday attracted some 4000 and they saw a fine turnout of 23 cars with some of the finest drivers in the country. IGGY KATONA, the Willis, Mich., "Flash" driving a '65 Plymouth, spurted into the lead on the first lap and was never headed throughout the 100 go-rounds, although it looked for awhile like Les Snow, also driving a '65 Plymouth, might overtake him.

Snow was second, trailed by Columbus' Hank Teeters, in a '64 Ford, Keith Ploughe, Indianapolis, in a '64 Ford, and Paul Wensink, also in a '64 Ford.

SUNDAY NIGHT, Carl Smith got back into the winner's circle in the late-model 25-lap headliner, as he beat out Jim Cushman in a close one. Sonny Pencil notched the win in the 20-lap flying-stock feature.

This Sunday another eight-event program of late-models and stocks is on tap with two feature events and $1500 in guaranteed prize money. Time trials begin at 7 p.m. and the first race at 8 o'clock.

PIN NEWS

Keglers's Korner

By NORMA KIRKENDALL

Don Carter usually wins bowling matches but one match has caused him a lot of pain. When he went to strike it, the tip flipped into his eye.

Begin thinking now about new bowling shirts and blouses. Be sure to allow plenty of shoulder room and remember "outside" shirts are less likely to bind or pull out. Consider the drip-dry types—no ironing so more time to bowl.

OCT. 29 will be date of the Ohio State Jamboree at Sidney. All league officials would benefit by attendance.

Second annual "Bring a Friend" contest starts Sept. 12. This is sponsored by the National Bowling Council and is open to any league bowler. Prize is a free vacation for the bowler and the friend. Watch at local bowling centers for full details.

Approximately 40 percent of VIBC members bowl in two or more leagues and 47 percent of the ABC members bowl in more than one league.

THE 800 barrier remains to be broken by a woman bowler. The highest sanctioned scratch three-game series is 792 and was bowled by Janet Harman of Norwalk, Calif., in October, 1963.

Every season one out of four bowlers wins an award of some kind at league or national level. These awards range from shoulder emblems for converted splits to valuable jewelry and trophies for national achievements.

But this is an advantage of bowling — it is possible to earn an award on any game — any session. Luck and ability both play a part in getting such awards.

ANSWERING your questions: yes — DO use a ball cleaner, electric or manual. DO NOT be afraid of scratching the ball if you use a mild detergent and dry well. Do not oil or grease.

A clean, dry ball will roll best. Balls do pick up dirt in machines and ball returns.

A 3 - 6 - 9 tournament is when automatic strikes are given in the third, sixth and ninth frames. These are novelty tournaments and a perfect score of 300 would not be eligible for awards as such tournaments are not sanctioned by ABC or WIBC.

S-E Archers To Host Championship Event

The Southeast Archers, whose range is located on Rt. 104 (six miles east of Frank-rd) will host the District Five Championship, Sunday, Aug. 7.

Registration will run from 8 till 10 a.m. with 56 targets (28 field, 14 hunter, 14 animal) available.

FISHIN' FACTS

"Strike while the iron is hot," admonish the sages.

But anglers who use minnows for bait may be wise to sprinkle a liberal dose of salt on this particular adage.

Fishing experts advise that hooking success is often directly related to the amount of patience displayed in setting the hook.

MANY FISH are lost when a fisherman tries to set the hook too early and yanks the minnow out of the fish's "gums."

Most game fish strike a minnow hard to stun him, then wait until struggles have ceased, turn the tasty tidbit around and swallow it head-first.

Thus there is a definite pause between the time a minnow is seized and the time it disappears down the gullet.

BIG FISH usually are more deliberate than small ones when consuming dinner. Is that because they find the larger morsels more difficult to subdue, or because they are more experienced with the wiles of anglers? We don't know for sure.

We do know that during the mouthing period the fish is nervous as a nit, and apt to release the bait at the slightest provocation.

Here is where patience comes in — and plenty of it may be required.

THE FISHERMAN must quiet his pounding heart, release any drag from the reel and allow that lunker to mouth the minnow undisturbed.

This may take 10 seconds or it may take several minutes, but sooner or later the bass will take off again, probably in search of another meal.

And that instant is the time to set the hook.

Walnut Ridge Club Slates Second Show

Mrs. Eldon Lemon, 4736 Ellery-dr, is chairman of the Walnut Ridge Garden Club's Second Annual Flower Show to be held Aug. 6.

The theme of this year's show will be "Around the World With Flowers."

Entries may be made between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. at St. Philip the Apostle Church, 1573 Elaine-rd.

The show is open to the public from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Ribbons will be awarded in each class.

Copies of the show schedule may be obtained from either Mrs. Harry Drewry, 4726 Ellery-dr, the club president, or from Mrs. Lemon.

Unitarian Fellowship To Hold Panel Talk

The Unitarian Fellowship For Social Justice group is sponsoring a panel discussion for Sunday, July 31, at the First Unitarian Church, 93 W. Weisheimer.

The topic of the discussion will be "Need For a Third Party?" and the panel will consist of William Davis, Columbus attorney and member of the ADA, ACLU and the of ADA, ACLU and NAACP; Hank Chapin, associate professor of English at Wright State University in Dayton, and Tom Thompson, publisher of the Columbus Magazine, a bi-monthly magazine dealing with the entertainment aspects of Columbus.

Mason Hall, a professor at Ohio State, will moderate the discussion.

And So It Grows

If mosquitoes and other insects are smashing the parties in your backyard picnic area, here are a few suggestions that may help to keep the population down.

While no mosquito control is permanent, a spray of 1 percent solution of Diazinon emulsion or a 2 per cent chlordane emulsion has fairly lasting effects. Use either according to the recommendations on the label. Spray gutters, eave spouts, and other places where water might be standing. Also spray shrubs and hedges. Be sure to rid the picnic area of piles of organic materials such as grass clippings or compost piles for the garden.

Pyrethrin knock - down spray bombs are useful when sprayed immediately before you use the area, Extension entomologists at The Ohio State University say. They are useless if the wind is blowing.

Mark Sept. 14 on your calendar to attend the Lawn and Ornamentals Day for amateurs at the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center, Wooster. Professionals will have a special day on the 13th.

It's Those Jaded Taste Buds Don't Slam Chicken Flavor

The American public is eating chicken as if it were going out of style.

Since the end of World War II per capita consumption has spiraled from nine to 37 pounds annually.

This should indicate it is indeed "finger-licking good" and yet about a third of the chicken - eaters interviewed, recently clucked "chicken just doesn't taste like it used to."

To this, the United States Department of Agriculture and the researchers at Ohio State say, "Chicken feathers."

It's a fact that the biography of a bird the customer selects from a supermarket poultry case today is a far scratch from that of the bird marketed 20 or 30 years ago.

Today's pullet or cockerel is a hybrid, bred for ability to hit broiler size within eight or nine weeks. It has been scientifically fed, vaccinated against disease, and raised "on litter" in a dimly-lit "chicken factory" with 10,000 to 12,000 other birds all slated to be electrocuted, dressed and marketed as soon as their weight averages about three and one-half pounds.

But the USDA is satisfied that while modern production methods have cut costs, flavor has been left intact.

To prove this, a few years ago 1930-type chicken were fed a 1930-type diet, and given access to a grass yard. In short, growing conditions of 30 odd years ago were duplicated.

At the end of the experimental stages, they were cooked in almost every conceivable way and compared to test groups of old-style chickens on new-style diets, and new-style chicken raised on both 1930 and current diets.

Results?

Chicken is chicken and no one but the dressers could tell whether an old-fashioned Plymouth Rock reared with backyard privileges or a fancy, hormone fed hybrid was being served.

But an informal (and extremely unscientific survey) made by the Spectator indicated that "people convinced against their will are of the same opinion still."

Most of several dozen persons queried agreed on two things about chickens—they were hatched to be eaten about once a week and taste best when fried. (A notable exception was the sophisticate who will partake of fowl only if it has been baked in cantaloupe).

Some agree with the USDA but more feel there is a difference in flavor either to the good or bad.

While one 30-year-old bachelor claims he enjoys chicken much more than as a child because his mother was "the world's worst cook," a young married man explains his lack of enthusiasm for a once-favorite dish by saying, "My wife hasn't learned to boil water yet."

Other strictly personal reasons for either believing that chicken tastes better or worse were given by the woman who explained that as one of 14 children she never tasted white meat until she was married, and another who claims she can't look a chicken in the face after serving it several times a week when prices were rock bottom.

The poultry industry, although certain the USDA report was valid, still could not ignore the cry "Chicken isn't as good as it used to be."

Researchers at Ohio State were urged to approach the problem from another angle.

Maybe the cries were coming from older people whose taste buds weren't what they used to be.

Under the supervision of George Mountey, associate professor in the OSU Department of Poultry Science, 80 volunteers between 19 and 69 devoted themselves to tasting chicken broth.

LET'S KNIT A SHEATH DRESS

By URSULA duBOIS

This sheath dress is a colorful summer creation knitted from the neck down.

This makes it easy to fashion the garment into a shell, a street length, or a full length dress. It also makes fitting this garment to insure the proper length for individual needs extremely easy.

URSULA

For fast knitting, the right front and the left front are knitted separate. This means absolutely no carrying of colors as you knit with only one color at a time.

Colors we used for this dress are a dark blue, a beige, and a lox shade. Illustrated instructions are written in sizes 10-20, all sizes included on one pattern.

Columbus Selected For Zip Code Experiment

Columbus has been selected as one of the two cities in the country to "test a nation-wide program to provide individuals with ZIP Codes for their most frequently used addresses" Postmaster Victor J. Bodish announced today.

Beginning Tuesday, letter carriers will deliver two cards to every home and apartment in the city. Each card will have space for addresses the householder wishes ZIPPED — one for addresses within Columbus and the other for out-of-town addresses.

After placing their uncoded addresses on the cards preferably printed legibly they may be dropped into any letter box or returned to their letter carrier. The Columbus Post Office will add the appropriate ZIP Codes and return the cards to the mailer.

"No postage is needed. This is a free service," Mr. Bodish said.

The test in Columbus is part of Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien's program to make ZIP Codes more accessible to the mailing public.

A different test will be made in Richmond, Va., the second of the two cities chosen for the experiment. Columbus and Richmond represent a typical cross section of the country.

The Post Office Department will analyze public acceptance of the two types of tests and the one found more efficient, economical and popular will be adopted nationally.

In addition to the card being used to list addresses, a special notice advising the patron of his local ZIP Code number will be delivered to each household.

The cards used in the Columbus "test" will carry a message from Postmaster General O'Brien advising that ZIP Coded mail helps provide better service at a lower cost because it moves by a more direct route and is handled fewer times.

In completing the cards, only the street address and the city and state are required. Individual names should not be listed.

Postmaster Bodish emphasized the importance of patrons including their own return address in the upper left corner on the front of the card for return to the patron after the addresses have been coded.

Additional local and out-of-town cards are available from a letter carrier or postal delivery station.

OH COME TO THE LITTLE LAB IN THE WILD WOODS

JANGLING BELLS don't invade the pastoral quiet of Dr. Judson Wynkoop's classroom this summer. Neither is a blackboard around to tempt the steady-nerved to tingle the spines of the "jumpy" with the screech of fingernails raked along its surface. However, such problems have been replaced by the constant jeopardy of poison ivy, blackberry stickers and chiggers. Canal Winchester students from the intermediate grades are currently studying biology and botany in the cool sanctuary of the woods behind the school building and, according to Dr. Wynkoop, enjoying every minute of it. The board of education initiated the program, covering all basic science areas, this summer, in an effort to give youngsters an in-depth familiarity with science to supplement the nodding acquaintance they form in the elementary grades. Many, it is believed, who would otherwise shy away from scientific courses, may develop an early curiosity about the world around them that will lead them to further exploration as high school students. In the picture at the left, the instructor is explaining the intricacies of leaf structure that David Robinette and Paula Stebelton have examined under the microscopes set up in the "lab." In the center picture Greg Taylor, left, and Paul LoSchiavo are displaying the toad they captured. (Paul seems little happier about his catch than is the captive). In the last picture the entire class (one of two Dr. Wynkoop conducts daily) is examining the leaves, the bark and roots of a sarsaparilla tree which is unique in that a single tree sports five leaf variations. From the left are Kathy Ford, Paula, Mark Smiley, Paul, David, Fred Cathers, Jennifer Willis, John Seymour, Katrine Johnson, Dr. Wynkoop and John Williamson. Steve Seltzer is out of camera range.

Blue Plan On Agenda

Groveport Planning Commission will meet in the Municipal building tonight (Wednesday) at 7. After routine business, Chuck Taylor of Regional Planning and Ed Hurley, a planning expert will be present to go over final details of the village's long-awaited comprehensive plan. According to Mayor Bob Baer, RPC has indicated the miniature "Blue Plan" which will make recommendations for future development of the village (pinpointing land to be used for commercial, residential, service and recreational uses) will be ready this fall. It has been in preparation for two years.

Will He Or Won't He?

The rumor persists that James Strouse, president of the Hamilton Local School Board, intends to resign. However, a school spokesman stated Monday that there is no official confirmation of the report. Strouse is opening a music store in Chillicothe. It has been speculated that he wants to get out from under the restrictions imposed on him by his posi ion as a board member in selling instruments to the District.

Eidsmoe's Leaving

The Veryl Eidsmoe family, 5014 Sutherland-dr, Hamilton Meadows, is moving to California the middle of August. Eidsmoe has accepted employment as a teacher in that state. Mrs. Eidsmoe, who waged an unsuccessful campaign for a seat on the Hamilton School Board last fall, has been active in school affairs.

COLUMBUS OFFICER THREATENS CHARGES AGAINST OBETZ TEENAGERS

Demands Combo 'Face The Music'

DON'T MISS IT

SATURDAY NIGHT is luau night at the Groveport Madison Recreation Club (swimming pool to you) and with Mrs. Phoenix Franks technical advisor, it is promised to be the real McCoy, down to the last pineapple tidbit at the Hawaiian buffet. Getting in the spirit of island life early are Tom Wilson, assistant pool manager and Linda Winters whom everyone agreed was more beguiling than her beach boy companion.

Obetz council meeting this week could be entitled "The Battle of the Band."

SEVERAL TEENAGERS formed a rock 'n roll band called the Blue Marauders.

Two of the boys are the sons of Obetz Police Chief Virgil Peters. A third is the son of Deputy Malcolm Coogan of the Franklin County Sheriff's Department.

A Columbus policeman, Harry Evans lives nearby the Peters home where the 14 and 15 year olds usually practice two or three times a week.

APPARENTLY, he and his wife are not rock 'n roll enthusiasts and he is determined the kids -or someone- will have to "face the music."

Appearing with two other couples (a small showing compared with at least 20 others present who either have children in local combos or believe music is a pretty safe outlet for teenage energies) he referred to a 1955 village ordinance.

It deals with the disturbance of the peace, and Evans interpreted it to put a practicing band in the same category as overly-loud radios and such. He demanded council take immediate action. (The ordinance carries a maximum fine of $50.)

ADVISED THAT council was powerless to do anything until he had filed formal charges, Evans indicated he would not risk false arrest charges by filing against the parents, but would, instead take the children into juvenile court.

This threat was particularly offensive to Mrs. Peters who stoutly defended her children's right to play musical instruments in their home.

The charges and countercharges between the Evans group and Mrs. Peters led council to the conclusion that the noise itself is not the sole cause of the neighborhood feud.

ACCUSATIONS of atheisms, hypocracy, spite and indiscreet profanity flew back and forth.

According to Mrs. Peters, the "spiteful" acts have included a seven-minute horn blowing session, "revving up" of automobiles and general harrassment.

Whether or not charges are filed (several other similar bands have drawn no complaints) the whole affair is regarded as unfortunate by those including Coogan and Peters who have spearheaded the move for teenage recreation in the village.

ALSO THERE seemed to be a feeling of injustice in that the boys involved have given benefit performances to raise money for village recreation and were among the teenagers who donated their physical labor to the development of two village parks built since last summer.

According to Coogan, who spoke from his experience as a police officer, the judges in juvenile court are not particularly impressed with

Young Hearing Reset For 7:30 P.M. Friday

The hearing of Mrs. Mary Young which was scheduled in Groveport Mayor's Court for Saturday night has been continued until this Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Mayor Robert Baer granted the continuance at the request of her attorney, Warren Smith, who stated he would be unable to be in Court last Saturday.

MRS. YOUNG has posted $50 bond on charges th t she has violated village ordinance by the accumulation of debris on her property on the northeast corner of College and Wirt-rd.

Charges were pressed, according to Baer, after a two-year struggle to reach a meeting of the minds with Mrs. Young on what is permitted in the village and what is not.

Mrs. Young has indicated that her attorney will ask she be bound over to the grand jury for trial in Columbus Municipal Court.

THIS IS her perogative as the stated code allows anyone charged with an offense for which the possible fine is over $50 to ask prosecution under the state code rather than village ordinance.

Violation of the Groveport statute can bring a $100 fine.

SPECTATOR EXTENDS SUBSCRIPTION CONTEST

And when he has earned it through his own efforts, it seems like solid gold.

YOUNG MEN all over Franklin County are sporting new two-wheelers these days that they have won in The Spectator Newspapers' subscription contest.

Any boy (or girl for that matter) can enter the contest, which has been extended through Aug. 30 to satisfy circulation manager Jack Schleup's desire to give "a bike a day away." (It's not necessary to be a carrier.)

It's really a golden opportunity, with 20 paid-in-advance subscriptions worth a bike the moment you turn in the subscriptions.

AND JACK SCHLEUP also gets a kick out of giving transistor radios away, and has dozens of them ready to go to those who can come up with five subscriptions.

By the way, you can win again and again and again.

How would you like a bike this week, a transistor the next, and a bike for your sister the week following?

ALL YOU have to do to find out how to get started is give that giving-away-like-mad Schleup a telephone call. His number is BR. 4-1156.

IT'S OFF TO THE COUNTY FAIR WE GO

A GENERAL EXODUS from the Neil Stevenson farm on Ebright-rd just north of Groveport will soon begin as the younger generation packs off 15 head of sheep, 11 cattle and 12 swine for exhibition at the Franklin County Fair. And each of the youngsters (Jim, Barbara, Nancy and Keith) has his or her fingers crossed that they'll bring back more than their share of blue ribbons, a family tradition. Jim, shown with his Chester White Boar which he has raised from a February piglet to an impressive 200 pounds, will show in both the FFA class and open classes. Before leaving for what is hoped will be his moment of glory, "Emperor Gene" (or maybe it's Emperor Tim—no one is quite sure which of two litter mates is which) will be shampooed, his tail and ear "feathers" trimmed and anointed with talcum powder (in the interest of emphasizing his whiteness, not to overcome BO). A grand champion will return to the arena when four-year-old Jersey bearing the title Advancer Mister Pinn Hope is shown by Jim. His sister, Barbara, a Work and Win 4-H Club candidate for fair queen, is aiding Advancer with her grooming problems while senior Stevenson quiets the cow during the beauty session. At the right Jim and his FFA advisor, Franklin Miller of the Groveport-Madison faculty, give the Stevenson Corriedale ewe lamb's fleece the blocking essential to all good wool after it has had a bout with soap and water.

AN ENTHUSIASTIC pupil in the summer reading program held five mornings a week in Reynoldsburg Junior High School is Randy Strider, sixth grade student who lives on Palmer-rd, Rt. 1, Reynoldsburg. With him is Miss Mary Pritchard who, as supervisor of the program, is giving him some specialized help.

215 Reynoldsburg Youngsters Learn Reading Can Be Fun

Words and sounds.

Every morning 215 Reynoldsburg children are putting aside their ball bats, snorkels and model racing cars in favor of these.

They are the children among the youngsters across the nation who are enrolled this summer in the federally supported remedial reading program.

As Miss Mary Pritchard, supervisor among the 10 teachers involved in the program, explained, "The eye is the gateway to the mind," adding that the child who reads well is the one with the world at his fingertips.

Actually, specific goals of the program for students ranging from a third to eighth grade level, are multifold.

Perhaps most important of these is the improvement of the child's comprehension.

The child who can read, even at several hundred words a minute and does not understand what all those words mean might as well be looking over material written in Swahili.

However, the reading rate is of value, and will become increasingly so as the student enters advanced learning situations where assigned reading often involves several books a week.

Improved reading is also recognized to broaden the vocabulary, which in turn is a tool toward oral and written expression.

Not only those in the field of education but the personnel manager of any business in the world will tell you that the employe who is unable to communicate is an employe who will never see the top rungs of the ladder.

Miss Pritchard also pointed out that a favorable attitude to reading is the first step toward an up-grading of general scholastic achievement.

The unusual reading aids introduced this summer (before impractical because of other pressing demands on the local district's budgets) are a stimulus to the desire to read in themselves.

They are actually fun to use.

For example, in one a card is entered into the carriage of the machine and the learner reads the sentence appearing aloud.

He then turns a switch and his words are played back to him. Another flick of the switch and the sentence is heard, correctly, distinctly and with proper enunciation and accent.

This leads the child to forsake bad reading habits such as back-tracking or "mouthing."

A third tool used is the projection of colored slides with a story with captions. (On the day one of the classes was observed the still movie was "The Call of the Wild.")

With the instructor leading a discussion of each slide words and phrases become increasingly meaningful and are now associated with a picture or a situation.

Serving all the children in the Reynoldsburg area (whether they customarily attend public or private schools) bus transportation is provided.

After the picnic dinner, they were entertained by Arnold Kissell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Kissell, with pictures and a talk describing his seven month's stay in Switzerland as an exchange student.

WILLIAM S. WHITE: Power Play Fails

WHITE

WASHINGTON — Sen. William Fulbright's now unlimited attack on the foreign policies of this country—an attack which began on the Viet Nam War issue alone but now seeks to tear apart even the routine foreign aid bill for which he is supposed to be the leader — is beginning to overreach itself.

On foreign aid, at length and at least, he has gone too far. For on this issue a bland but very real counter-rebellion to Fulbright's rebellion from the Johnson Administration has been opened by Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of New York.

Kennedy has now said what many in the Senate had thought but not said. This is that Fulbright's demonstrably capricious turnabout on foreign aid — a turnabout in which he now insists upon the very crippling restrictions which for years he had implacably opposed — is simply " a retreat from responsibility."

This is an understatement. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee's whole tradition has been to defend and to foster on the Senate floor at least those aspects of American policy — notably foreign aid — which are long settled and bipartisan and which have had the unswerving support of the last four Presidents of the United States, including John F. Kennedy.

Fulbright has used his position to precisely the reverse effect, claiming to "improve" a program which in truth he is gravely harming.

There is irony here. For Sen. Robert Kennedy himself has had the toes of one foot at times in the Fulbright camp on the matter of the Viet Nam War.

It now appears that even to Kennedy enough is enough.

The Fulbright-Kennedy division is forcefully illustrating the inevitable, if ultimate, collapse of the New Left's effort to take over the foreign policy of this nation. Why is such an outcome so certain in the end?

It is for two quite human reasons. The first is that Fulbright's angry and petulant behavior for months has been entirely uncharacteristic of his long service in the Senate — and everybody there knows it.

The second is that this behavior has placed him irrationally at the head of an ultraliberal faction where he cannot really belong and where he cannot forever rationally serve. (Copyright, 1966, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

BARRY GOLDWATER: Riot Causes Explored

GOLDWATER

A newspaper report on the riots in Cleveland set the mood of a story by quoting a man who was watching a store being looted: "I bet this riot is the first time in a long while that some people have had enough to eat."

As this administration excused the Watts riot in Los Angeles as "understandable" (because the people there wanted more than they could have), there undoubtedly will be a torrent of excuses for the rioting in Cleveland and in other cities. None of these excuses will come to grips with the sickness that truly seeds such disorder.

The sickness is violence. And the culture that breeds it may be found in a society where rational dealings between men have been abandoned in favor of the irrational world that substitutes force for enterprise.

People did not riot and kill in Watts because they were starving or because there was "no way" for them to achieve on their own. They rioted because they could see the signs of power and force everywhere in their land. They could hear government leaders, particularly in their own communities, speaking endlessly of quick solutions, of instantly setting aright old injustices, of changing men's hearts with a stroke of a pen.

And they could see a government which increasingly used its monopoly of force and power to coerce men, to make them conform, to force the most fundamental changes without regard for dissent, for differences or for patience.

The sickness that is setting violence loose upon the land will not be cured until men, to whom others will listen, insist the time has come to stop the pursuit of power and the conquest of man and to get on with the job of doing jobs.

We have far too long lived in the world of sociological LSD where political power was supposed to be able to make men healthy, wealthy and wise, even beautiful.

We must stop the hallucinations now and come back to our own world, the real and wonderful world where only the strength of a man's mind, his character, his arms can truly achieve anything — and where men once again are free voluntarily to take care of those who truly cannot take care of themselves.

We now are either going to kneel to violence or raise our heads to rational responsibility. (Copyright 1966, Los Angeles Times)

Power Struggles

Conditions in the Martins Ferry School as reported this week are deplorable.

But, in our own backyard, pitched power struggles occur that differ only in degree.

Before a citizen decides he has a "call" to serve on a board of education, he might well consider the duties of such an office.

By state law, boards are not elected to run the schools — only to establish policy and employ professionally-trained educators to carry it out.

He might also consider his motives.

Last November a slate of local district candidates ran for office on a single plank platform—"Get the Superintendent."

The situation is not yet acute in Franklin County, but according to one on whose lap a lot of district problems sit, the problem of improper usurping of authority is a chronic one, and can become pernicious.

The 160,000 kids in the area would be in a pretty fix if sanctions were called against their schools.

Columbus Looks Silly

Councilman Ronald DeVore, looks a bit silly.

Because of DeVore's efforts, Columbus voters will decide in the November elections whether or not to "maintain" a Central Market at the site of the non-existent Central Market.

The beat up old market building already has been torn down and the city has committed the market site for private development. Legality of the entire issue is in question and belongs in court, not on the ballot.

The Spectator feels certain an enlightened judiciary will dispense with the market issue.

And that an enlightened electorate will dispense with Councilman DeVore.

Cool It

There was a time when everyone talked about the weather and conceded that no one did anything about it.

Those days have gone along with maidenly modesty.

Today there is an air-conditioned baseball stadium in Texas. There are air-cooled shopping centers popping up around the country. Walt Disney is planning a completely air-cooled amusement park in Florida.

Almost any used car lot boasts a number of second-hand status symbols "with air."

No one would dream of buying a house without a furnace or a car without a heater. Yet a lot of people continue to "sweat it out" all summer long in an age when it costs surprisingly little to enjoy the comfort, sleep and increased work capacity made possible by air-conditioning.

Hawthorne Who?

By The Spectator's
TED BEARDSHEAR

Science can be pretty nutty.

For example, Dr. Desmond L. Cook of Ohio State University is studying the "Hawthorne Effect."

No, it isn't related to Nathaniel Hawthorne, the great American writer.

BEARDSHEAR

Rather it is the thesis that people perform better when they know they are involved in an experiment.

The effect was first noticed in the early 1930's at the Hawthorne, Ill., plant of Western Electric Corporation. Researchers there found evidence that production rates for a small group of selected workers tended to increase steadily but independently of what conditions were made in the working environment.

The interpretion was that the workers were motivated to produce because of their unique position of being centers of attention from management, including the researchers.

Dr. Cook is conducting experiments on Columbus' fourth and fifth graders but is not prepared to give, as yet, a yes or no answer.

Actually, anybody with a grain of sense knows the "Hawthorne Effect" is really the reverse of what is true.

People working under the watchful eye of (1) researchers or (2) management tend to goof in proportion to the degree of watchfulness.

If someone is standing behind me while I type, I can be sure of getting all those little keys bunched up near the paper.

And on IQ test when I knew the clock was steadily ticking off the seconds, I always managed to get stuck on what relation is my third cousin's great-uncle to me.

They Said It

MARQUIS CHILDS: Reagan Frightening?

LOS ANGELES—If Ronald Reagan's candidacy scares the wits out of the Democrats — the appeal of a smooth television personality who looks like the good guy of a fast-moving Western — it dismays many Republicans. They see Reagan as Governor cinching the hold of the conservatives in this richest and most populous state in the Union.

He would immediately become the right-wing candidate for the Republican nomination for President in 1968. That conjures up for the moderates and liberals another ordeal like that in San Francisco's Cow Palace when Barry Goldwater arrived with the prize already in his pocket. This could mean a repeat of the disaster of 1964.

CHILDS

For Republicans in the moderate tradition of Hiram Johnson and Earl Warren it has the quality of nightmare. That Reagan, a former actor, one of the most articulate spokesmen for Goldwater and the whole Goldwater line in 1964, should be the heir to the moderate progressivism, so long a successful formula in California, is simply incredible.

Coached by the public relations firm of Spencer, Roberts and Associates and with his own actor's sense of timing and crowd appeal, Reagan is following a tactic that it is hoped will be foolproof. He hits all the sensitive nerves—beatniks at the University of California (one of his best crowd pleasers), rising property taxes, violence in the Negro ghettos (the white backlash), crime in the streets. But he carefully avoids offering any alternative solutions for these problems. He talks instead about studies and commissions that will give him the answers when he is Governor.

Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown will say when the campaign warms up in the fall that Reagan will wreck the University at Berkeley, recently judged first in the country in almost every category, in a few years. He will disrupt the great project that takes water across the mountains from north to south where it is urgently needed. He will bring the swiftly expanding system of higher education to a halt. That is, of course, the staple of partisan politics. Reagan's more objective backers insist that although he has had no experience in public office the responsibility of administering the affairs of a state which this year has a budget of $4.5 billion will modify his far-out views.

Increasingly, California sets styles. It is a swinging state with extraordinary resources in the mountains and on the beaches for the kind of outdoor living that appeals to a younger generation. It may be that in politics, too, in the television era California is the wave of the future.

One sees here an ever-sharper division between left and right — the two poles of opinion having less and less common ground in the moderate middle which has been the safe haven of American political life. On the one hand are the fanatical opponents of the Viet Nam War, the peaceniks, many of them unquestionably sincere but subject to exploitation by the Communist party risen like a feeble phoenix from the ashes of the past.

On the other hand are the impeach Earl Warren fanatics who believe the 20th Century can be rolled back. This polarization, it can hardly be doubted, will be accentuated in a political campaign that poses patriotism against communism.

Letters To The Editor

Uses Method

To The Editor:

In the front page article "Shamansky Lashes Out Against Devine's 'Radical' Support," Spectator of Wednesday, July 27, 1966, the Democratic candidate for the U.S. House of Representatives states: "Devine is extremely quick to accuse everyone and everybody of being 'radical' without being specific about the exact details, which was McCarthy's method.

"However, I shall be specific in reminding my opponent that he was the one who appeared as guest speaker on the radio program of Clarence Manion, a member of the National Council of the extremist John Birch Society to promote a hare-brained scheme which was so far out that even Clarence Manion described it as 'radical'."

May I submit that the Democratic candidate has, in the above statements, used the same "method" he accuses Representative Devine of using.

Would the Democratic candidate please be more "specific" as to the radio program he mentions — day, year, etc., and more important, what "specifically" was the "hare-brained" scheme Representative Devine was promoting? How about some "exact details" from our Democratic candidate? A verbatim report of this "scheme" (in Mr. Devine's own words), would be in order so that the voters may decide for themselves just how "radical" such a proposal is.

If the statements of the Democratic candidate in the July 27th Eastern Specator are an example of the "campaign strategy" that is to be waged for the 12th District Seat of the House of Representatives for the State of Ohio, it would behoove prospective voters to demand that the candidates be specific about exact details of their allegations regarding their opposition.

Dislikes Trucks

To The Editor:

We sincerely hope you can find space in your paper for what several residents in Westgate are wondering.

How are we to cope with these big semi-trucks that can go east or west through these "blinking" lights all night long?

If one lives a half block north or south of Broad-st (we do not have complete air-conditioning so we can close our doors and windows tight, like we have in the winter) we are unable to sleep.

The trucks start west around 4 a.m., but they come into Columbus a little after midnight, so they will not have to stop until they get to Hague-av. I venture to say they go 70 miles per hour. It would seem to us folks who have made the Hilltop our homes all of our lives might have a little peace and quiet.

I hope Wilson-rd will give us some peace too. I'll bet if our mayor lived closer to West Broad-st and could hear these trucks coming and going from midnight to 6 a.m., he would have the lights changed back the way they were.

Are we going to have a by-pass for these trucks west of High-st? Other parts of Columbus seem to be cared for. Thank you.

IN & AROUND TOWN

EDITED BY ROLAND SUNKER

A guide to performers and performances in the Columbus area this week

Hartman Plans Exciting Season

Theater goers in Columbus can look forward to an exciting fall, winter and spring of good shows at the Hartman Theater. Danny Deeds, the man who brought theater back to Columbus, has announced the Theater Guild subscriptions series for the '66 and '67 season. This, by the way, is just part of the offerings planned by Deeds. Many other dramatic and musical productions are being considered for the Hartman's season.

INCLUDED in the eight-play subscription series of the Theater Guild are four of this year's top plays.

Starting off the series in November is the uproarious comedy, "The Odd Couple," starring George Gobel and Phil Foster. Next on the list is the "Man of LaMancha," with Jose Ferrer. It has recently won five Tony awards and the New York Drama Critics Circle Award as the best musical. Another musical, "Fiddler On the Roof" will follow at the Hartman. This is a humorous and yet tender story that explores Jewish customs in a Russian village at the turn of the century.

DICK KALLMAN, of the TV series "Hank," stars in "Half a Sixpence" slated for an early February date. Two more outstanding plays are scheduled in the subscriptions series for the coming season—"Generation," with Robert Young and "Philadelphia, Here I Come."

This is just a partial listing of the Theater Guild series. The complete schedule will not be known for some time because the play selection committee is still working to choose the finest shows available for this year's series, according to Warren Caro, executive director of the Theater Guild.

WARREN CARO was in town last week to announce an innovation in the Theater Guild series. At the insistence of Danny Deeds, who is interested in making regular theater-going available to a larger audience, the Theater Guild subscriptions can be paid for in four equal monthly installments. The first payment will be due with the placement of the order. Subsequent installments will be due on Aug. 15, Sept. 15 and Oct. 15. So what does this mean to you?

JUST THIS, that for the lowest price subscription, covering Wednesday and Saturday matinee seats in the balcony, the subscriber can now pay $5.31 each month instead of making an immediate lump-sum payment of $21.25. On the most expensive subscription, covering weekend orchestra seats, the subscriber need only pay four monthly installments of $12.69 each.

For those of you who don't understand subscription theater and the advantages of belonging, here are some facts. First, when you subscribe to the Theater Guild you are guaranteed a seat for every show in the series. The tickets are mailed to you. There is no box office fuss. Another important feature is, that being a member you get to see all shows at less than box office prices.

THE THEATER GUILD is the only self-sustaining organization of its kind in the world. It has been in operation since 1919 and has produced over 247 plays and musicals.

This season promises to be the best. As Warren Caro stated, "with the shows already in the lineup, Columbus will have a truly exciting theater season." Caro also said, "to bring this experience within reach of the widest possible audience is the reason for introducing the quarter payments. We particularly want to make it possible for young people to enjoy living theater on a regular basis."

SO NOW that you know most of the shows in the series, and the fact you don't have to own a Fort Knox to take advantage of the offerings of the Theater Guild, there is only one thing to do, call the Hartman Theater now and be sure of getting good seats for the coming year.

Stadium Has Pageantry

The splendors and pageantry of an Asiatic land in the mid - nineteenth century, when western ideas had barely begun to penetrate to it, form the background for "The King and I", the famous musical play by Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II which is now playing nightly at 8:30 p.m. at OSU'S Stadium Theatre through Sunday, Aug. 14.

BEV PETITT is featured as a hoop-skirted English school marm who in 1860 tried to impose her ideas of morals and education upon the King of Siam and upon his numerous wives and children. Tim Mills is co-featured as the imperious monarch who has hired the governess to introduce western ways to his children, and then finds that he must fight her to preserve any of his own oriental standings.

In dramatizing the conflict between East and West in terms of those two forceful characters, who respect each other but can never achieve anything better than a guarded truce in their battle of ideas, "The King and I" became one of the most triumphant successes in the history of the American Theatre.

WHEN IT was first produced in New York, it ran for three years. It ranked in popularity with the same authors' epochal hits, "Oklahoma," and "South Pacific" The show became the fourth longest-run musical on record.

After seeing several of the Stadium's productions, including their musicals of the past, this has to be on your list for their last production of the year.

HELD OVER AT POG

FISHIN' FACTS

Selecting lures has long been a matter of considering shapes, colors and action, then hoping they will produce action.

As any old-timer knows, it's an expensive process to always have the right combination at any given time.

NOW to complicate matters a little further, another factor has been introduced —feel.

Plastic lures are either a boon or a bane, depending on the point of view—man or fish. And they're likely to arouse the disdain and fighting instincts of a dyed-in-the-wool plug caster or fly fisherman.

But as fish getters, the flexible, many-hued imitations of worms and eels are just about the hottest things on the market today.

TO ANALYZE why these bits of plastic are so effective might require volumes, and it's probable the fish would make lies out of any conclusions that might be reached. But certain facts seem apparent.

The pliable nature of a plastic bait gives it a more natural action when cast or trolled, and it can be fished at any speed and depth.

Fish fond of mouthing a bait are more apt to be fooled by the softness which closely resembles their natural foods.

BUT THE big reason that makes flexible worms so popular is the fact that it has virtually liberated man.

No longer is it necessary to bait the little woman's hook as she cringes away from the worm can. This attribute alone justifies one in every tackle box.

So whatever your feelings on the subject, remember the "feel" of a lure is important. Just like buying tomatoes, always give 'em a squeeze first to see if they're worth taking home.

The drag mechanisms built into most spinning and spincast reels are excellent devices that compensate for human error when playing and landing game fish.

Getting the most out of the drag, however, depends upon proper adjustment. This requires a certain measure of understanding that many anglers have seemingly missed.

SEVERAL factors influence drag adjustments. As a result, more than half the rigs on any given body of water are probably set too tight.

The average person sets the tension by grasping the line directly off the spool and adjusts the drag accordingly. Such practice fails to account for additional tension caused by friction of the line against the guides and in the water when fighting the fish.

The sum of these factors may be a broken line.

DRAGS SET before a cast are invariably too tight. The amount of pull required to slip a drag on a full spool is considerably less than when the line is out.

As the distance increases and the line on the spool diminishes, the tighter the effective drag becomes.

Knots are another element that must be considered. Even the best can reduce a line to about 80 percent of its rated strength; poor knots will cut it in half.

THE BEST method of adjusting the drag is to tie on a lure, hook it securely to something, back off some distance, and then make the adjustment.

Perfectionists may enlist the aid of a friend to read settings on a spring scale when adjusting tension, and no one can find fault with this method.

Attention to the reel drag cannot be over-emphasized. It just takes one lost lunker to prove the point.

Checkers 'Kick Off' Season Ticket Sale

The Columbus Checkers, the city's entry in the IHL, officially kicked off its 1966 season ticket sale last week.

The Checkers goal is 1500 season tickets and GM Frank Gallagher already reports over 100 orders received from local hockey enthusiasts.

SEASON TICKETS prices for the Checkers' 36-game home schedule at the Fairgrounds rink are: $3.50 box seat — $110; $3 reserved seat — $99; $2.50 reserved seat—$85.

Tickets will also be sold for $1.50 but will be available only at the door the day of the game.

Several advantages of season-ticket holders will be: close-up free parking, telephone charge account for additional tickets, option to reserve regular seats for playoffs and exhibition games (there is strong possibility Checkers will play pre-season exhibition vs. an NHL team) and subscription to periodic Checker newsletters.

SEASON TICKET purchasers may make part-payment now, the balance not due until Sept. 15.

Orders are now being taken at the Central Ticket Office, 37 N. High-st (CA. 8-1305). For more information, call Checkers' office (CA. 8-4321).

AVERY'S BABE RUTH CHAMPS

Mid-Season Championships Scheduled Sunday At CMS

The Columbus Motor Speedway's Mid-Season Championship races for both late-models and flying-stocks will be held Sunday night with the drivers competing for a guaranteed purse of $2,000.

The eight-event program will be highlighted by 50-lap late model and 35-lap flying-stock championship features with fields of more than 60 cars anticipated for the event.

TIME TRIALS will begin at 7 p.m., the first race scheduled for 8.

Last Sunday, close to 4,000 fans were on hand to see Columbusite Don Gregory notch feature wins in both the late-model and flying-stock divisions.

There were 23 starters in the stock feature and when the 20-laps had been run (without a stop), there were still 22 cars on the track—something unusual in the sport of speed. Sonny Pencil finished second.

RALPH O'DAY took the lead on the second-lap of the late-model 25-lap main-event but Gregory moved out front on the 12th go-round and stayed there for the balance of the event.

In the Speedway's free game of "Total," one fan went home last Sunday with $300 in cash, so there'll be $100 this coming Sunday, for the fan or fans who can correctly pick the first five finishers, in order, in this Sunday's late-model 50-lap feature.

PITCHER'S BEST FRIEND

Shade-Link Eyes C-O Pennant Share Sunday

The top four teams each won in Sunday Division games of the Central Ohio Baseball League this week.

On Sunday, pace-setter Shade Link Insurance pounded out a 10-0 win over Galbreath Perry, second-place Stacy Hall Sheriffs dropped Emerald Cleaners, 11-1, and fourth place Stark Van Lines won by forfeit over the Chillicothe Colts.

EARLIER in the week, the third-place Columbus Piutes edged Emerald Cleaners, 2-1, in a makeup game.

In the Piute game, the winners did all their hitting and scoring in the second inning to keep their win streak alive. Their sixth success in a row allowed the Piutes to move into third place, only one-half game out of second.

On Sunday, Bud Miller led the Shade Link attack with two-for-two, including a triple and three RBI's. Ed Harris of S-L and Bruce Heine of the Realtors also had two hits apiece.

BEST PITCHING effort of the day was turned in by Mike Jennings of Stacy Hall Sheriffs. Jennings, usually a reliever, more than proved he could go the distance by allowing Emerald Cleaners but one run while claiming 11 strike out victims and walking only four in the eight inning affair.

Mike McGrath of the Sheriffs chipped in with a three bagger while Tom Hartman and Roddy Burns of Emerald slapped out two safeties each.

SUNDAY'S card has Chillicothe at Whitehall to meet Stacy Hall, Shade Link and the Piutes to play at East's Harley Field, and Stark Van Lines at home to Galbreath Perry at Gahanna, all at 2 o'clock.

Jets Arrive Saturday For 9-Day Stand

The Columbus Jets, still in the thick of the battle for a second straight International League pennant, return home Saturday to open a nine-day, 11-game home stand — their third last of the '66 campaign.

Returning here from Buffalo, the Jets will host Toronto (night games at 8 p.m., Saturday and Monday, doubleheader Sunday).

Toledo's Mud Hens, who gave the locals fits on a recent road trip, follow the Maple Leafs into the visitors' dugout for night games Tuesday and Wednesday.

Jacksonville's Suns conclude the home series with single night games Friday and Saturday (Aug. 12-13) and a Sunday twin bill.

The Jets have drawn 110,765 fans through their first 39 home openings—an increase of 16,545 for the same number of home dates last summer.

Earl Gray Assumes Head Coaching Job At St. Mary

Longtime St. Mary "favorite son" Earl Gray will take over head coaching duties at the South Side school The Spectator learned this week.

Gray replaces Ray DeCola who will direct athletic fortunes at Johnstown High this fall. DeCola resigned recently after four years at St. Mary to accept the job in his home town.

Gray served as head coach of all sports at St. Mary from 1943 through 1945 and has assisted all phases of the school's athletic program for the past 24 years.

Athletic Director Fr. Charles Lang announced that Gray will coach all sports, beginning with the Rams' eight-game (all-away) football schedule which kicks off Sept. 10 at the Fairfield School for Boys.

The upcoming grid season will be St. Mary's last on a inter-scholastic basis although the Rams will participate in basketball and track through the '67-'68 season.

MAVERICK

With Muddy Shoes

By RICHARD L. PAUGH

Despite the fact that the Wildlife Council rubber-stamped all but one of the laws governing the fast approaching hunting season, there was a bright side to the affair — REALLY BRIGHT.

For the first time in modern times, you may hunt Ohio deer with a rifle. It must be a single shot muzzle-loader but it may have a rifled bore. I personally feel that this innovation will add many hours of enjoyment in the field to those hardy pioneer types who dig antique weapons. I had written to Fred Morr in January, suggesting an area in Ohio be set aside as a "primitive weapons" area, so those who wished could raise the odds in favor of the deer herd.

PAUGH

In May, I talked at length with Harry Sweeringen, assistant chief of wildlife, about the primitive weapons idea. At that time, he gave it no encouragement and I went away talking to myself. If this new edict is an outcropping of my attention to the matter, my time was well spent. THANK YOU, WILDLIFERS.

Whitetail deer season for longbows will run from Oct. 15 through Dec. 31. My motion for bowhunting on Sundays got nowhere. Bow hours are from dawn to dark except during the gun season. Bowhunters may hunt the entire state.

Both modern and muzzle-loading guns may hunt the Northwest Zone, consisting of Paulding, Defiance, Williams, Fulton and Lucas Counties, Nov. 3 to 5. but they must carry written permission on an authorized form from the Division of Wildlife showing the landowner's consent.

In order for your deer to be legal, it must be a buck with antlers five inches or longer. Anything else from the Eastern Zone will carry a heavy fine.

Ohio's deer herd is growing back to its all-time high of 10 years ago. The highway kill (our only means of estimating the herd size) in 1965 was an all time high of 843 reported killed.

This figure might be good news to hunters but in another way it is a horrible price to pay for progress. In most cases, the deer is ruined beyond use and the vehicle involved is badly damaged. This has always been a great worry to me. I have felt that a civilization planning a trip to the moon must certainly be able to figure a way to keep our precious wildlife off the highways In keeping with this sentiment, there will be a meeting at the City National Bank, 3100 W. Broad-st, Aug 17, 7 p.m., of all true conservationists interested in finding ways to research this problem.

One last note of caution on those muzzle-loaders: leave those irreplaceable antiques on the wall and get a modern replica to shoot. It might save your life.

Kegler's Korner

By NORMA KIRKENDALL

Premier of the "Let's Go Bowling" show with Dick Schorr will be on WTVN, Sept. 11 from noon to 1 p.m.

It's interesting to watch new leagues take shape. Bob Clinger is busy "digging up" couples for the Gas Co. Mixed League. The WIBC office league goes mixed this year and has moved to Olympic.

HOW ABOUT making next week "Take A Handicapped Friend Bowling" week? Remember it is fun—even for many who are severely handicapped and you'll enjoy sharing your favorite sport with one less fortunate physically.

Some kind of a record has been set — Mary Jane Cannon in open play recently fouled in all 10 frames—but ended up with an all spare game. Try your hand at working out her score.

Herschel Begley of Detroit finally can breathe easy — he now is acknowledged winner of the $32,000 first prize in the 56th Petersen Classic. Joe Kristoff tied for $100 on his 1560 and was in 123rd place.

DICK REITTER at 144th also garnered $100. Warren Copenhefer, Granville, was in 364th place with $50. No other Columbus area bowlers placed in any category. There were 17,504 entrants and total prize fund of $455,104.

Answering a question — in family or adult—junior leagues composed of both juniors and adults, where no cash or merchandise prizes are awarded, the juniors need not be sanctioned.

However, they are not eligible for ABC or WIBC awards.

LEAGUES do not have to be big. It only requires two teams or a singles league of four individuals to apply for sanction.

Thus a family can sanction as a league if all other rules are followed — including a pre-arranged schedule.

There is no specific amount of weeks required for the length of the schedule. For families who bowl regularly in open bowling it could be a lot more fun to organize into a league and be more able to qualify for National awards.

ANY FAMILY wishing more information on rules, etc, may write to P.O. Box 23392, Central Point Station, Columbus 43223.

What other sport has more bowler participants than any other? We have no real statistics but it would appear to be golf. Go to the links in summer and the lanes in winter. Runner-up would probably be baseball.

Yes — there are bowling lanes on several of the big ocean liners.

PAUSING IN HIS CHECK-out of the rainbow tank, at the German Village Bait Store, the Rev. Joe Donaldson had a pleasant surprise. His wife, Bertha, entered, laden with a platter of steaming hot corn-on-the-cob to go with his lunch. Her husband has shared his wife's culinary skills throughout the last few years with literally hundreds of boys who have found shelter — and home cooking — at the Half Way House.

Boys In Need Turn To 'Hoodlum Priest'

Night crawlers and crawdads.

A belief in spiritualism and extra-sensory perception.

Memories of an orphanage after a parental murder-suicide and of an Italian bride killed by U.S. bombs.

And the man he has become has made good and strong men of hundreds of boys once lost to themselves and society.

Donaldson has many roles.

To the members of the Spiritualist Episcopal Churches scattered across the nation he is the presiding clergyman.

TO THE HUNTERS and fishermen of the South Side, he is the proprietor of the German Village Bait Store.

To local police, he is the "hoodlum priest" who fights for the moral and legal rights of the underdog.

And to the boys sheltered in his home, he is father, brother, probation officer, father confessor, employment counselor — and the best friend they ever knew.

Here in the Half-Way House, boys and young men find more than a roof over their head, a clean bed and a well-stocked refrigerator.

THE PENNILESS lad found sleeping in a bus station, the homeless youth released from a penal institution, the transient with no place to go — they all find with Donaldson and his wife, Bertha, love, understanding and the will to lead a Christian life.

The beauty of the Half-Way House is that it works —80 percent of the time.

FOUR OUT of five of those who come there bury their pasts and lead useful lives.

Donaldson realizes his church whose creed includes (in addition to the traditional acceptance in Almighty God), the tenets of communication with the dead and faith healing is looked down upon by other denominations.

He explains his ordainment came in 1953 after he found in this church the fulfillment he had spent his life searching for.

"ALL THE RELIGIONS I explored had something to offer, but I still came away hungry," he reminisced.

His dedication to help the boy in trouble began as he sought to bring solace to the youngest person ever to be executed in Ohio—a 17-year-old Marine.

Since then, the hundreds of young men (from 16 to 27) have benefited from this dedication.

THIRTY HAVE returned to have "Joe" marry them, and he has christened 18 of their babies.

Retiring from a sales career some time ago after a bout with cancer, Donaldson opened the bait store to help support Half-Way House.

"We always have known God would take care of our needs, though perhaps not our wants which can be boundless," he explained.

HE DOESN'T pretend to understand how God sends him the boys he can help, how miraculously the means to help always turns up.

"If we are given a size 18 jacket one day, the next, a size 18 boy will show up, hungry and cold," he smiled.

A Providence House is Donaldson's next dream.

It would mirror the ideals of Half-Way House but be a haven for girls.

ASKED WHY it wasn't already functioning, he blamed public complacency.

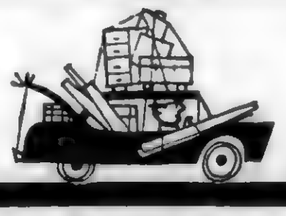
"Today people insulate their homes against heat and cold," he stated, "and themselves against the pain of knowing their neighbors' need."

Many may not understand Donaldson's psychic belief.

But after talking to him, there is no mystery about the basic goodness of the man and his goals.

KNOWING TRAGEDY and poverty and insecurity intimately, he is well-equipped to understanding those who are fighting such problems.

And he is willing to help —graciously.



Sunday he even made it easy for a hungry youngster who admitted "too good a time two nights in a row" had left him broke to borrow a 10 till payday.

Citizens Committee Backs OEA In Findings Against School Board

The findings made by a citizens' committee appointed by the Mayor of Martins Ferry have just been completed, according to Don Force of the Ohio Education Society Association.

In general, the board concurs with the resolutions made by the Professional Rights and Responsibilities Commission of OEA who threatened (and are still threatening) professional sanctions against the school district.

THIS STEP, considered a drastic one, would decree it to be a breach of professional ethics for a teacher to accept employment in the district. (Unexpired contracts would be honored).

The investigation was the result of conditions described as "grossly unprofessional."

The Board of Education is accused of taking upon itself powers far beyond those of policy making as prescribed by law.

HARRASSMENT of superintendents, refusal to meet with teachers to discuss either educational or salary problems, intimidation of citizens, and the spreading of rumors are among the accusations made against certain board members.

The PR&R report asked the formation of a citizens' group, dedicated to the "purpose of a better education for every child in Martins Ferry."

This committee was asked to see if it could take action to establish "meaningful dialogue between the board and teachers without sanctions."

AMONG THE recommendations made were that the board "stop meddling in administrative duties," the superintendent be given the security of a three-year contract, that the superintendent assume all administrative powers that go with the office, and that building principals adhere to accepted channels of communications with board members on school matters.

The Mayor's committee, according to Force, is hoping its action will forestall hasty action by "vigilante" committees who are reported ready to seek ouster of the majority of the board if they refuse to resign.

THE FIELD service consultant indicated the OEA would rather see the board's compliance with the recommendations than a full-pitched battle which will further disrupt the normal educational program.

No indication had been made at press time by the board which is allegedly "either unwilling or incapable of assuming its proper role as a policy-making agent of the public" whether it will acquiesce to the demands of either the OEA or the committee of local citizens. (It has a broad base including a doctor, a lawyer, a union official, a businessman, a construction worker, etc.)

HOWEVER the storm, Force believes, will benefit the schools all over Ohio by effecting the calibre of men and women tempted to run for school board positions in the future.

"The Martins Ferry fracas shows that a man should have a better reason to run for a position of such responsibility than that he has enough personal friends to elect him," he stated.

THE GADABOUT

By PRISCILLA LENOX
HI. 4-1051

In previous columns we discussed early Columbusites for whom our South Side streets may have been named, and our records show we ended with the Heyl family.

Today, we'll begin with Gilbert and our candidate for the honor would be Matthew Gilbert. His name is recorded as a school examiner, a member of council, and as one of the founders of the local Republican party (1854). His family owned the land where Ohio's first penitentiary stood (W. Main-st and Second-st).

When the correctional institute was moved to its present site, Gilbert sued to regain the property in 1847. He regained possession in 1854, then sold it in 1856.

Lest residents of Carpenter think we've forgotten them, we'll mention that there was a Tom Carpenter who was a school trustee in 1827, and a Dr. William Carpenter, Presbyterian minister, who came to Columbus from Ross County in 1856. When in doubt, we always decide that the street was named for the politician!

Reuben Champion, a veteran of the Revolutionary War, was the father of the Champion who eventually made his home in Columbus. John, born in 1797, is listed as a partner in a dry goods store with Lathrop in 1834. The family owned a 300-acre farm between Broad-st and Livingston-av. John's son, also named John, was born in 1838. This younger John married a woman who was related to George Washington. A third John, son of the second John, was born in 1861. In his working career, he first worked for a railroad company, then went into the business of manufacturing dental specialties.

A William Wilson was elected as judge in 1810; Henry Wilson was elected Council president in 1855 on the 119th ballot, and was noteworthy because he helped to bring an army fort to the city in 1862. A Wilson Jr. was on the Board of Trade in 1866. Our choice for the street-naming would be the Hon. Henry Wilson. He sounds like he'd be full of derring-do!

The "wedding bells" set for the week includes Nancy Jo Mary Baptiste, 480 E. Sycamore-st, Ralph Thompson, 612 Mohawk-st, who will participate in the marriage ceremony at St. Mary's Church, Saturday, Aug. 6. Also on Saturday, Aug. 6, in St. Mary's, Judith Engle, 446 Stanley-av, and Frederick Gischel, 200 E. Sycamore-st, will exchange their vows of marriage. Sharon Anne Standard, 1206 Geers-av, and Michael B. Whitehead, Ironton, have chosen Saturday, Aug. 6, as their wedding date in the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Carol Ann Scheiderer, 1920 Ellsworth-av, and Ford Earnest Adams Jr., Galloway, O., will be married in the Emmanuel Lutheran Church, Friday, Aug. 5.

Miscellaneous data from here and there . . . Ted Turner is the listed conductor for the Aug. 7 date on the Schiller Park Summer Band Concert, scheduled for 8 p.m.

The monthly euchre party held at the Harmony Glee Club, 435 E. Kossuth-st, will be Saturday, Aug. 6, 8 p.m.

Area residents who have already vacationed include Glenna and Dale Edwards, 66 E. Innis-av, who visited historic spots in the eastern part of the country; the Hendrickson family, of Moler-st, who spent the summer in Michigan; Eldeva and Zane Marshall visited relatives in their native Michigan; the Craggs family, Berkeley-rd, tried the fishing in Michigan this year, instead of vacationing at Lake Erie; Greg Absten was the guest of relatives in Michigan; the Compson family spent their week of relaxation at Lake Erie; Alberta, Dianne and Darrell Hughes Sr. spent their vacation in Florida; the four daughters of Norbert Cowan visited relatives in Michigan for their vacation; the Passante family visited relatives in the East. Rev. and Mrs. J. O. Lang have also been among the vacationers this past week.

Though this week is generally a peak one, vacation-wise, the peak of the week is a birthday observance for our listed area youngsters: Norman Marshal, Barbara Ferris, Kathryn Fuller, Ronald Bibb, Cindy Parker, Elaine Copley, Deborah Sagstetter, Gregory Cunningham, Lawrence Genheimer, Vicky Bivens, Donita Brumfield, Brenda Neel, Mark Speakman, Patricia Pinson, Trudy Tope, Barbara Dorn, Ralph Oberkonz and Donna Chapman.

A philosophical acceptance of birthdays is noticed in the adult segment of the list, which includes Jane Robinson, Mary Long, Phyllis Donovan, Helen Yockey, Sharron Miller, Edsel Steele, Ruth Friebis, Laura Haughn, Erma Daugherty, Lucille Stephans, Hilda Baumert, Matilda Held and Maude Sigafoos.

Wedding anniversaries are noted for Flo and Merl Kenney, Mary Catherine and Ronald Girard, Su Ellen and Don Wishon, Billie Rae and Jay Gramlich, Agnes and Edward Dorn. Belated wedding anniversary greetings to Mr. and Mrs. Minor.

Fashion Stays Same In New York City

By Marianne Tomlinson

Just before embarking on my recent visit to the American Designer's showings in New York, while waiting in line at the American Airlines ticket counter, I chanced upon a marvelous little booklet that answers many questions and solves the problem of what to take for all seasons of the year.

Even though I was past the point of no return as far as my packing was concerned, I'd like to pass on some of their sage advice.

"New York . . . New York, it's a glorious town . . . where clothes make the man but fashion makes the woman. Marvelously cosmopolitan with international celebrities and suburban housewives . . . Old Society and the Jet set . . . business women and U.N. ladies . . . school girls and dowagers creating the most fantastic market mix in the world. London, El Paso, Paris, Chicago, Calcutta, and Everyplace are the home towns of the ladies who visit the theaters, the restaurants, the museums and the fabulous shops of this 'Baghdad on the Hudson.' The jet plane has made it all possible. Is it any wonder there is such a feeling of universal fashion?

"Now you're getting ready to visit Manhattan and your head's abuzz with what to pack. But of course . . . there have been so many modes of late . . . the Op Look . . . the Wild Look . . . the Young, Young Thing Look . . . and more. You do the same thing as the New York fashionables —and take extreme styles with 'tongue in chic!"

"If there is a fashion flash that appeals or enhances, the clothes-wise woman will adapt it for her own wardrobe. She knows that true elegance is found in the fine fabric, the excellent tailoring, the flattering color that showcase her own looks and personality. Most fashion authorities agree that New York vogue is one of tasteful 'total costume' . . . becoming to the wearer. The 'New York look' combines grooming and poise with raiment. Style is still a very individual choice.

"A hint of what is being worn elsewhere is sufficient for the female. She can take it from there and adjust her own travel wardrobe accordingly. The object being that when you unpack your suitcases and sally forth on Gotham activities, you'll be one of the attractions that make New York beautiful.

"Daytime suits and coats: technically, summer suits are two-piece dresses and it would be a most unusual day in the city that sprang skyward from old New Amsterdam if a coat were needed in summer. An attractive sweater, a dress jacket or stole are quite sufficient to accommodate air conditioning or a slight drip in outside temperature.

"Dresses: all the rainbow colors . . . fashion embraces them all and forms them into little sheathes, skimmers and shifts . . . tent dresses and tailored classics. Linen has a special place — as does the cotton lined silk. While pastels and white rule the early part of the summer, right-about-now New Yorkers switch to the darker hues.

"Shoes: ye of the sightseeing overfond, remember that, for you, the style you choose must absolutely-positively have built in comfort.

"Hats: new snood styles hide a multitude of coiffure sins and present a sleek front to the world until madam can reach her hairdresser.

"Accessories: little white cotton gloves are summer standbys. Purses of white or shoe matching leathers are especially good.

"Rainwear: should you run into a sudden summer shower, the very lightest of raincoats will protect you . . . and those clever little folding umbrellas are a boon to travelers.

"Night time: for a midsummer night's dream of an evening, Manhattanites love tailored linens . . . dressmaker silks . . . printed organzas and chiffons . . . mere wisps of sandals or fabric pumps . . . little clutch purse."

"What To Wear In New York" . . . a four season fashionscope . . . has been prepared especially for the woman who is planning a vacation in that city . . . however . . . the advice is good and practical and should be helpful in planning trips most anywhere at all.

Governor's Daughter, Saundra Ann Married Dr. John Jacob Saturday

For the first family of Ohio and the first family of the nation, June isn't the month for brides. This Saturday Luci Johnson will be an August bride and last Saturday Saundra Rhodes became a July bride.

Governor and Mrs. James A. Rhodes' daughter was married to Dr. John DeWitt Jacob in the Overbrook Presbyterian church by Dr. R. E. Drosfield, pastor, before about 600 guests.

The governor gave his daughter away and Saundra's younger sister, Sharon, served as the maid of honor.

FOLLOWING THE wedding, a reception was held on the lawn of the Executive Mansion for some 1200 invited guests.

The reception was the second held during the Rhodes administration as the governor gave his oldest daughter, Suzanne, away in marriage three years ago.

She wore a mantilla of double rose pointe lace and carried a tumbling cascade bouquet of gardenias, sweet peas and a garland of stephanotis.

HER SIX bridesmaids . . . Mrs. Suzanne Moore (sister), Mrs. Rodney Cooke, Miss Diane Leis, Miss Sharon Neff, Miss Edmonds and Mrs. David Nuell . . . wore floor-length gowns of silk shantung in primrose. They carried cascade garlands of smilax and forever yours roses. Headpieces were styled to match bouquets.

Governor and Mrs. Rhodes' granddaughter, Melissa Sue Moore, was her aunt's flower girl.

Ohio's first lady wore a formal length gown of ginger pink crepe embroidered in crystal and iridescent paillettes. Mrs. Rhodes wore a shoulder stole of silk chiffon and matching pink velvet.

MRS. JACOB, mother of the bridegroom, wore a floor length gowns of French blue alencon lace with a scalloped scoop neckline. Matching accessories completed her attire.

White Japanese lanterns were strung throughout the garden and a small white tent covered the table which held the five foot tiered wedding cake.

THE NEW Mrs. Jacob graduated from Stephens College in Columbia, Mo., and is a senior at Ohio State University. Dr. Jacobs is a graduate of the College of Dentistry at Ohio State and is a member of Beta Theta Pi Fraternity and Psi Omega. He is an orthodontist in Worthington.

Following the wedding trip the couple will reside in Columbus.

International Hospitality Committee Tea Slated

The International Student Hospitality Committee will hostess a tea at the Jeffrey Mansion, 165 N. Parkview, from 2 to 4 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 6, for the representatives of the United Church Women, the Diocesan Council of Catholic Women and the Council of Jewish Organizations.

The purpose of the tea will be to acquaint members of these groups with the functions of the International Student Hospitality Committee, whose aim is to fill the gap between the families these students have left behind and the loneliness of life in a strange and often perplexing culture.

There are over 600 international students at Ohio State University.

The International Student Hospitality Committee works to enlist volunteer host families who will offer their hospitality to international students in their homes or in their activities, on at least four occasions during the academic year. There are no financial obligations and no overnight obligations.

The objective is to establish rapport on a peer level beween the host family and the student or students.

For many years the United Church Women have actively promoted international student hospitality as have the Diocesan Council of Catholic Women and the Council of Jewish Organizations. This year these organizations will cooperate in promoting the activities of the International Student Hospitality Committee to make this truly an ecumenical effort.

The members of the International Student Hospitality Committee who will serve as hostesses at the tea are: Mrs. Si Sokol, 2560 Riverside-dr, chairman; Mrs. Delbert Byg, 1360 W. Henderson-rd, Mrs. William Slatter, 1950 W. Granville-rd and Mrs. E. J. Fogarty, 162 Brevoort-rd, organizations; Mrs. William Everton, 364 Bienheim-rd, Miss Doris Bower, 16 Tulane-dr, Apt. E, and Mrs. Robert Riebel, 2216 Leeds-rd, refreshments; Mrs. Sydney Levoff, 2653 Fair-av, Mrs. William Swank, 2200 Buckley, and Mrs. Merle Maffit, 287 Richards-rd, arrangements; Mrs. Pep Sinton, 4435 Haverford-ct, hostesses; Mrs. A. C. Foreman, 3400 Sawmill-rd, decorations; Mrs. Raymond Cray, 2390 Canterbury-rd, Mrs. Paul Dilley, 199 E. California-av; Mrs. Frederick Staub, 2127 Glenmere-rd, Mrs. Leo A. Breen, Jr., 455 Torrence, Mrs. Bernard Friedman, 71 N. Merkle-rd and Mrs. Andrew Keseg, 1744 Westwood-av, publicity. Pouring for the occasion will be Mrs. William Jansen, 3386 Beulah-rd and Mrs. Sinton.

Speakers for the occasion will include Mrs. Ruth Bailey, international student advisor at Ohio State University; Mrs. Leo A. Breen of the Diocesan Council of Catholic Women; Mrs. Bernard Friedman of the Council of Jewish Organizations; and Richard Phalin, executive director of the Central Ohio Council for International Visitors, who will show a film on person-to-person hospitality.

Petitions Ask Local Option

Residents in Wards 21 and 22 who live along High-st between Henderson and Morse-rds are circulating petitions calling for "a local option on the sale of 3.2 percent beer" in their area.

C. C. Laffer, 44 W. Royal Forest-blvd, a spokesman for the informally - organized group, said that the petitions have been in circulation for several weeks in an attempt "to prevent a foreseeable and undesirable situation from occurring."

LAFFER SAID that residents in his area voted "many years ago" to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquor. He said that the courts have ruled that the low-percentage beer is not an intoxicating liquor, hence new laws must be passed to prevent its sale.

While Laffer is actively aiding the circulation of the petitions, he said that no one concerned is necessarily against the sale of the beer. "This is not a temperance issue," he said. "The question concerns the possible undesirability of loud bars and messy carry-out stores."

HE SAID that he felt that tavern owners have shown that they cannot control the noise or the discard of bottles so his group intends to control it.

"We're not shooting at anyone. There's nobody here yet so nobody will be out of business. We just want a vote on whether to let them (tavern owners) get a foothold in the neighborhood," Laffer said.

Author Claims Literary First

It all began in November 1959 when Truman Capote saw a two column story in The New Yorker about the murders of a wealthy Kansas farmer, his wife, 15-year-old son and 16-year-old daughter.

It ended five years later with the completion of a book entitled "In Cold Blood."

THE CRIME HAD SO intrigued Capote that shortly after reading about it in the newspaper he headed for the farmlands of the Middle West.

Here he spent three years interviewing, researching, and traveling all across the country and down to Mexico.

Then he spent nearly three more years converting 6,000 pages of notes into his book which was to be in Capote's words, "a non-fiction novel."

CAPOTE FINISHED the book a year ago when the two killers, five years, four months and twenty-nine days after their heinous murder of the Clutter family were hanged on a gallows in a warehouse in the Kansas State Penitentiary.

The 343 page best seller has already brought Capote around $2 million. New American Library has paid $500,000 for paperback rights, probably the highest price ever for a non-fiction piece.

COLUMBIA PICTURES has given Capote another half million, reportedly the largest sum ever for film rights to a book.

When Capote began to write the book he incorporated a special theory, "I've always thought that if you brought the art of the novelist together with the technique of journalism it would have most depth and impact."

"Besides," Capote added, "Murder, was a theme not likely to darken and yellow with time."

FROM HIS FIRST sight of the shotgunned victims in a police photo ("You've never seen two eyes staring at you from mouth level. Well, that's the way Mr. Clutter looked.") to the moment when the 36-year-old killer Perry Smith kissed Capote's check, said "Adios, Amigo," and stepped to the gallows, the reporter-novelist intricately retraces all the details surrounding the murders.

The book begins by setting the stage for the killings, "The village of Holcomb stands on the high wheat plains of western Kansas, a lonesome area that other Kansas call 'out there'."

IN TIGHT, concise, journalistic style it takes Capote only one paragraph to catch the weather, the shape, apparel, and speech mannerisms of the people and conditions who inhabit Holcomb, Kansas.

In a few lines Capote types the individual members of the Clutter family, "Here is the family of Herbert Clutter, a well-to-do farmer and paragon citizen, with his sweet daughter, sensitive son, and a neurotic but gentle mother who seems to have taken on the tensions of life for her family."

CAPOTE, THE sophisticated author of "Breakfast at Tiffany's" would often enter the realm of the grotesque to describe the murderers.

Perry, half Cherokee, has the "thick, crouching torso of a weight lifter . . . But some sections of him were not in proportions to others . . . when he stood up he was no taller than a twelve-year-old child."

Richard Hickock, aged 36, was the other killer. He was described by Capote as "composed of mis-matching parts. It was as though his head had been halved like an apple, then put together a fraction off center."

SOME CRITICS have already called "In Cold Blood" "Dostoevskian," but it is without a doubt a brilliant and sobering epitome of the lives and deaths of six people. It has been hailed as a masterpiece.

A crucial moment in Capote's book comes when Perry (who kills all four Clutters) describes the first murder to the detectives. "I thought he was a very nice gentleman," says Perry of Clutter. "Soft-spoken. I thought so right up to the moment I cut his throat."

Guards Protest Prison Working Conditions

By VICKI HOY

and

BOB TENENBAUM

Unrest is brewing among guards at the sprawling Ohio Penitentiary, and it threatens to break out into a full-scale revolt of employes of Ohio's Department of Mental Hygiene and Correction.

The chief problem is an old one — not enough money, understaffing and too much overtime — but feelings among prison guards and mental hygiene employes in general are apparently nearing the boiling point.

The first open manifestation of the unrest came last week when employes at Athens State Hospital staged a demonstration outside the hospital grounds to protest what they termed "unfair labor practices" by the hospital staff.

The demonstrators were members of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes (AFSCME), whose Local 1148 represents Mental Hygiene Department employes in the Columbus area.

Local 1148 has called a membership meeting for next Wednesday to discuss the grievances and plot strategy — severely limited because of a "no-strike" rule under which prison guards work.

Robert Haynes, a prison guard and president of the local, told The Spectator that a demonstration such as the one at Athens is "seriously under consideration."

Prison officials are quick to back up the guards' claims. Deputy Warden Troy Harris admits that "we just can't hire qualified men at our starting salary."

Rookie prison guards start at $345 a month. There is no prospect of another pay raise until the legislature meets in its bi-annual session in January.

"We're short about 40 guards here," Harris said. But O. L. Henry, director of Council 21 of the AFSCME, claims at least 83 more guards are needed at the Spring-st institution.

Harris also agreed that the guards are being worked overtime to the point of exhaustion. Henry claims some guards have worked as many as 100 days without a day off. And prison guards, as other state employes, are paid only straight time for overtime. They plan to push next year for time and a half pay for overtime.

Henry and Haynes both feel the inmates in the penitentiary are beginning to realize that the guards are tired and disgusted. Harris says he has noticed no security problem but Haynes says, Mr. Harris doesn't get inside the prison much."

In an effort to get some satisfaction, the local petitioned Gov. James A. Rhodes for more pay.

Rhodes turned them over to chief assistant John M. McElroy, who told the group that only a special session of the legislature could get more money for the guards. And he told them that "the governor doesn't feel this is an emergency warranting a special session."

"There's an emergency if I ever saw one," Haynes counters. "These aren't kids you're dealing with up there. We get concerned when in-

Tom Moore of Canal Winchester will leave Monday for the University of Wisconsin. For two weeks the assistant vice president of the Canal Winchester Bank will attend the Graduate School of Banking with 1,300 other bank executives from the U.S. and several foreign countries. The school, with a faculty of over 100 that is sponsored by the Central States Conference of Bankers Association awards certificates of graduation to candidates who attend the courses in banking, economics, government, law, business and other phases of banking for three years.

Hurry Home, Sarge

Mayor and Mrs. James Horner of Lockbourne, are expecting a visitor—their son, Sgt. James Horner. The former Hamilton Township High School student, who is serving as an aerial gunner on a helicopter in Viet Nam, has been cleared for rotation and is awaiting "Port Call." Seven months ago the sergeant left Hawaii for the combat zone and his return by way of Europe will complete his round-the-world tour of duty. He also served a three-month stint in Viet Nam last year.

Whipple Kept Busy

Police Chief Al Whipple of Groveport is charging two juveniles as delinquents in Juvenile Court. Accusing them with forced entry of a safe depository, Whipple believes the 14-year-old local boy and his 17-year-old out-of-county guest, are responsible for theft and vandalism on two consecutive weekends at Hunter's Laundromat and other Main-st businesses. Acting on a tip from a neighbor, Whipple called at the home of the 14-year-old and found pop and watermelons taken from Norm's Market. He states that although the boys admit the second weekend's activities, they deny being involved the week before. The local boy will be brought before Franklin County Juvenile Court and his friend will be charged by Whipple in Allen County.

HAMILTON'S SAVEL SETS UP NEW TABLE OF ORGANIZATION

Chain Of Command Spelled Out

Making it clear board "meddling" in administrative detail is unwelcome, Superintendent John Savel of Hamilton Local Schools gained board approval for a table of organization which spells out the chain of command this week.

Teachers, secretarial help and cooks are directly responsible to their building principal, who in turn is answerable to Savel.

Custodial help will work under Ronald McMillin who, as the assistant administrative principal and bus drivers, is also directly under Savel. The superintendent and clerk only are in direct line of communication with the board members, who, Savel pointed out, are the servants of the people of the township.

FULLY AWARE that public reaction may not be completely favorable, Savel reported it is necessary to bus the 28 kindergarten children from Obetz to the new complex at Central which will also absorb the overflow from South.

The decision was made to take advantage of the modern compound at Central and avoid the make-do arrangements at Obetz where kindergarten is held on a stage.

In line with his announced policy of a close relationship with the community, Savel got an okay on his proposal to have the clerk send a report of board proceedings to local leaders and the various news media.

HE ALSO announced that the first meeting of the Hamilton Local Advisory Board will be held this Thursday with principals and eight representatives from local groups.

Apparently facing up to the fact that money doesn't flow like water in Hamilton the board indicated economy is the word of the day.

Board Okays Plans

An okay by the Madison Board of Education this week on the final plans for the elementary building to be built on the Herderick site paved the way for advertising to begin immediately and construction bids to be opened the third week of September.

At about the same time, bids will be opened for the central office facilities proposed at the Junior High site. According to Phillip K. Williams, local superintendent, he hopes the simple concrete block office building will be ready for occupancy after Christmas vacation.

UNTIL THAT time, he and Clerk Charles Dean will use the business office in the new junior high school, freeing their present office for a work shop for both men and women faculty members.

The board made the decision to name the new school "Madison Elementary" until streets in the area are dedicated.

THANKS to the generosity of Bob Bickel and her own talents, Sandy Bean, 235 E. Mound-st, is sporting a brand new transistor radio. The watercolor on the right was her entry that was judged "Best of the Show." Her portrait of Teddy Roosevelt was also a winner.

Sandy Bean's Floral Painting Wins Top Honor In C-W Art Show

The works of more than 100 students who enrolled in Canal Winchester's summer art classes were displayed at a sidewalk show in front of the Canal View Pharmacy last week.

Judged by Bill Woodward, Mrs. C. Seale, Mrs. Lewis Glendenning and Bob Young, the entries were placed in six categories by Mrs. Kathie McBride, instructor of the seven-week course.

SANDY BEAN'S watercolor was judged "Best of the Show" and earned her a transistor radio, donated by Bob Bickel.

The other prizes which included five $2 gift certificates were all donated by Don Gilchrist, owner of the Canal View.

Susan Ricart's Japanese scene won first place in the Open Class. Second place went to Brenda Root and the entry of Tim Everts, Gary Ardrey and Billy Gabbard took third.

THE ALMOST - LIFE size doll of Nancy Sinatra which was hooked up to sing a recording of "These Boots Are Made for Walking," created by Vicki Wood and Theresa Stevenson was judged tops in the papier mache category. Paula Miller and George Blower took second and third.

In the painting class, Jo-

Shamansky Cites Devine Statements

Democratic congressional candidate Robert N. Shamansky has answered the challenge of a Spectator reader that he specifically cite instances on which Rep. Samuel Devine appeared on radio with Dean Clarence Manion, a member of the national council of the John Birch Society.

Mrs. Mary Sherman, in a letter published in last week's Spectator, challenged Shamansky to specifically cite programs he mentioned in a campaign statement several weeks ago.

The appearance he referred to, Shamansky said, came on June 11, 1966, on the Manion Forum. In it, Devine reportedly proposed that 10 percent of all estimated government revenue be used to reduce the national debt.

"In the light of modern economics, this notion of Mr. Devine's is so bizarre that support for it is found exclusively among the right-wing extremists," Shamansky said.

He said even Manion referred to it as—among other things—"radical."

"I believe 'hare-brained' is a most apt description of Mr. Devine's scheme," Shamansky told The Spectator. "At the very least it calls

FOOTBALL WAS THE TOPIC . . .

Shade-Link Carries Local Hopes Into Regional Tournament Here

The Shade-Link Insurance baseball club of Columbus won the Ohio semi-pro baseball championship for the second straight year and will exercise its option to host the Bi-State Regional Tournament next weekend (Saturday and Sunday) at the Watterson High diamond on Cooke-rd.

The Ohio National Baseball Congress tournament, held in Mansfield, was a double elemination tourney with 16 entries from all over the state.

THE WINNER of the State classic then plays a best two-out-of-three series with a neighboring state to determine which regional team will win a trip to Wichita, Kans., for the National Championship playoffs.

Shade-Link Insurance won the Ohio Tourney and the regionals held in Warren, Penn., last year but due to injuries and work responsibilities of the players, S-L was unable to make the Nationals.

This year manager Don Albert says, "We are all healthy and arrangements are cleared. So, if we're lucky and win the regionals, we're on our way."

THE BI-STATE playoffs will be a repeat of last year's performance as the Warren Beverage team also repeated as Pennsylvania champs, and will travel to Columbus for what is expected to be another exciting series between these two fine ball clubs.

Tickets will be on sale at the gate. The Pennsylvania team's roster is dotted with ex-pro players and Shade-Link has a strong balance of experience and youth.

The S-L nine has been one of the strongest representatives in the semi-pro circuit that Columbus has seen in several years.

Their two-year record to date is 68-6, including last year's state and bi-state tourney wins. They have played several Invitational games, highlighted by the series which they played in Kokomo, returning victorious over an excellent Indiana club.

The team's strength is indicated in its current statistics — team batting average .333 with four batters hitting at a .385 clip, and team fielding .970.

Tournaments seem to bring out the best in the Insurancemen. Left fielder George Steele won his eighth Louisville Slugger "Scroll" at Mansfield Tourney awarded each year to the player with the highest tourney BA.

GEORGE PROVED he was worthy of it this year by finishing the tournament with a healthy .611. Besides Steele, there were three other members of the team on the State All-Star Team — Ken Schultz (third base), John Durant (pitcher) and Tedd Ellerbrock (catcher).

The Insurancemen's lineup will be:

PITCHERS include: John Durant, Ron Kitchton, Dennis Swetnam, Hal Theis and Skip Martin with Bud Miller and Curt Tong (outfield) and John Knox (infield) serving in utility roles.

Don Albert is the S-L manager and Al Diez is coach.

Saturday's Regional opener is scheduled for 3 p.m. with Sunday's tilt getting under way at 12:30 p.m. A second game (if necessary) will follow 30 minutes after the first game.

Entries Pouring In For Annual 'Buckeye 100'

Entries for the annual running of the "Buckeye 100" midget auto race at the Ohio State Fairgrounds on Labor Day are pouring into State Fair manager E. J. Keirns.

The Fair week 100 lap feature race is expected to have a field of 55 cars headed by defending champion and two time winner Bob Wente of St. Louis.

Also registered is Ohio pro Eddie Johnson, who will compete in his fourth Buckeye 100. Johnnon finished seventh in the Indianapolis this year.

With the Ohio State Fair's policy of free entertainment for the second straight year, fairgoers can enjoy the running of the fourth annual "100" without grandstand admission charge.

MAVERICK

With Muddy Shoes

By RICHARD L. PAUGH

I was happy to hear that the Wildlife Council outlawed the use of walkie talkie radios during deer season.

The Virginia Whitetail deer is Ohio's most prized hunting trophy. Delicious to eat and beautiful to mount, it is recognized as the most intelligent game animal in North America.

TODAY'S HUNTER, with his modern weapons, scopes and binoculars, fast cars, camouflage clothing and overwhelming odds, seems to have a vast advantage over the noble buck.

PAUGH

Surely, we don't need the added edge of electronics to outwit our quarry. I can't think of a better way to lose interest in an exciting hunt than to have my concentrated efforts interrupted by hearing "GET HIM! HE'S COMING OVER THE RIDGE RIGHT PAST THAT BIG OAK." It's much more fun to depend on being alert to all possibilities.

I WOULD be in favor of making the electronic game callers unlawful in deer hunting also. The game caller consists of a small, portable record player equipped with a high fidelity loudspeaker.

A record of deer calls is played and the calls resound over the hills, calling deer to the player. These callers have already been outlawed in many states and are illegal everywhere on waterfowl.

Although they are not widely used by deer hunters, it could become a factor.

THE MOST effective use for electronic callers is crow-hunting. I have seen two hunters call up 16 crows in a half-hour period. Varmints such as foxes, bobcats and coyotes are effectively brought into shotgun range with the help of the record players.

The deer record is the mewing of does and brings the lonely bucks into the area. The records for ducks, geese and pheasants are the sounds of birds feeding.

The varmint records are the sounds of a rabbit caught and squealing shrilly. Records of moose, elk, turkey and antelope are also available.

When Ohio's first turkey hunt took place, the Division of Wildlife thoughtfully placed a ban on the use of the mechanical callers.

A BIG PART of the hunt is the pitting of one's skills against the instinct of the wilds. It is in a sense a test of the hunter's field knowledge. I cannot help but rule out the drive as a means of ethical hunting. To see a dozen men methodically combing whole sections is hardly a sport.

By pushing the game with overwhelming odds into the range of hunters posted at the far end of a given area, the hunters are relying only on a superiority in numbers, not intelligence.

The man who will take his weekends and study the movements of the deer in advance of the season, post himself along their trails and use his forest acumen instead of purchased inventions is indeed an honest hunter.

Keglers' Korner

By NORMA KIRKENDALL

The newly selected Miss Ohio is an enthusiastic bowler — as was last year's Miss America. That goes to prove something!

Local pro bowler John Fabro has decided to join the PBA circuit. It will be good to see Columbus on some of the winners lists.

THE ALL-America Youth Bowling Championships in Washington, D.C., have been postponed until Aug. 5 due to the airline strike. High school graduates from 37 states will be competing for 21 college scholarships worth $10,500 based on a combination of 70 percent scholastic and 30 percent bowling achievement.

Why not make this "Take Grandma Bowling Week?" Remember there are both ABC and WIBC Senior Leagues with members 55 years of age or older. Special awards are available in this age range. Oh yes, you could take Grandpa, too.

IF YOUR ball is not feeling right do not hesitate to have it plugged and redrilled. A professional job will make your ball as good as or better than new and may increase your average.

A new gimmick — a husband and wife bowling bag —which holds two balls. But we predict that hubby will have to carry it so it may not be too popular.

Trivia — of what material were the first wooden bowling balls made?

Answer to Trivia — Wood, of course!

Don't be so quick to say "no." A wood fiber is often used as a part of the plugging compound.

We've been assured that Pikeon Lanes will be open for fall leagues.

Wednesday this past week there were three bowling banquet picnics at shelter houses at Griggs Dam, and by sheer coincidence two of them were accidentally scheduled for the same shelter.

Junior Livestock Sale To Be County Fair Event

An annual highlight of the Franklin County Fair is the Junior Fair 4-H and FFA Livestock Sale, which will be held this year on Thursday, Aug. 18, beginning at 7 p.m., at the County Fairgrounds, in Hilliard.

Co-chairmen for this year's event are Rolland Pestal, 8395 Central College, and Paul Lehnert, 1391 Norton. Again serving as secretary-treasurer is Richard Kuhn, 3001 Walcutt-rd.

This will be an offering of literally "hand-raised" lambs, hogs and steers. More than 250 animals will be sold at auction.

Interested parties are urged to attend the auction in person. But if you are unable to do so, you can make arrangements to support the sale by contacting one of the above sale committee officers. And, if you do not care to keep the animal, or have it processed, arrangements can be made to resell it to a local stockyard at current market price.

Also, if you would like to buy for your own home freezer, the sale committee will make arrangements with a local processor to handle the animal from the time of purchase.

Further details on the sale can be obtained from any of the committee officers: Rolland Pestal, UL. 8-7275; Paul Lehnert, TR. 8-5289, and Dick Kuhn, TR. 6-7646.

WILLIAM S. WHITE: Calm Rears Its Head

WHITE

WASHINGTON — An earthquake of change on civil rights is breaking massively through the surface in Congress. It is now possible to believe that calm reason is at last rearing its head over this harsh and delicate national problem.

It is not that Southern extremists are gaining ground; it is that their opposite numbers, the Northern extremists, are losing it. The moderate center of Congress, in both parties, still has no intention whatever of arresting the legitimate and right and necessary movement toward Negro equality before the law.

To see how far — and how healthily — the atmosphere has changed one need only look at the current progress of the Johnson Administration's mostly good omnibus civil rights bill. Even the House of Representatives, which has heretofore been ready to shout through almost anything so long as it could be called "pro civil rights," is now profoundly softening the one aspect of that bill which was legally indefensible.

This is the open-occupancy section by which originally it was proposed to take away the fundamental right of an owner of truly private property to sell or rent or not sell or rent on his own choice. The purpose here was to forbid racial discrimination in such transactions.

Ethically, the aim was sound; for it is ethically not right to refuse accommodation to a family because of its color. But in a constitutional sense the thing was not sound; for in this sense the very right to own private property implies the right to dispose of it as one may choose.

Now, the House is preparing to stipulate that while commercial-housing people are still to be forbidden to discriminate, the owners of single-family homes and small owner-occupied apartment buildings are to be exempted from the bill.

It would be pleasant to say that Congress has returned to moderation simply upon a rethinking of principle. The blunt truth, however, is otherwise.

In a word, Congress has been reading the off-year election returns and Congress has also been talking to ordinary people who are genuinely for civil rights but are fed up with civil wrongs done under the mask of a search for racial justice. (Copyright, 1966, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

BARRY GOLDWATER: Free Enterprise Works

GOLDWATER

Certain facts of life exist with which even the most convinced socialist cannot argue. But they can ignore them. It is to be hoped that others, interested in the truth, will not.

Where industry is socialized or where government substantially interferes with industry, the result is economic illness. Great Britain, rocked by crises day after day, is pitiful proof. Its Socialist government is a failure, but rather than face facts it moves deeper into the red by further restricting, rather than freeing, business and industry.

Government easily could have controlled one important U.S. industry, but, thanks to Dwight Eisenhower, it was released instead. That is the peaceful atomic power industry, the production of electrical power through controlled nuclear reaction.

Government held an absolute monopoly on nuclear know-how at the end of the war because of its development of that power for military purposes. President Eisenhower wisely realized the equally great potentials in peace for nuclear fission.

Industry responded with major commitments of resources and a willingness to assume risks (a key to enterprise).

As recently as 1962 the government estimated that our nuclear generating capacity would be only five million kilowatts by 1970. But by then our capacity should be well above 10 million kilowatts.

There is hardly an area of the country where one or another utility company does not have a nuclear plant working or plans for one in the near future. This dream of nuclear power for peaceful uses, which seemed like science fiction a decade ago, is now a work-a-day reality thanks to the adventuresome spirit and the risk-taking of American businessmen, men we might truly call white-collar frontiersmen who have pushed the darkness farther back for all of us.

But what of the worries of the left-wingers that private development of this power would go for "bloated" profits and gouge the consumer? The fear was a fraud. The cost of this power has dropped steadily; in some cases it is one-fifteenth what it was when the development programs began in the late 50s.

The facts are there to face: freedom of enterprise works; socialism does not. How long will how many have to suffer because politicians won't admit this simple truth? (Copyright, 1966, Los Angeles Times)

Tax Cuts Slash

(Reprinted from The Catholic Universe Bulletin)

Gov. James A. Rhodes has been advertising in the Wall Street Journal that Ohio is the one state in which state taxes, instead of going up, have been reduced.

This is in line with the "no new taxes" banner under which Gov. Rhodes ran for election four years ago.

He has kept that campaign promise. But what he does not tell readers of the Wall Street Journal is that the tax line has been held at the expense of obligations which the state ought to be meeting and isn't.

For example, Cleveland's "slum priest," Father Albert Koklowski has published an open letter to Gov. Rhodes.

Speaking for Ohioans on relief he wrote:

"We are waiting. Not to hear what you may say. Rather to see what you will do.

"Will you have the courage to make the right decision — even if it may not be popular?—

"To restore relief allotments to 100 per cent of the minimum needs of persons and families, instead of 60 per cent of minimum?"

Father Albert was talking about the fact that Ohio's Relief payments amount to 73 cents a day per person (munificently raised from the 67 cents which prevailed until recently.)

"Sixty per cent of minimum need," wrote Father Albert, "means 60 per cent of the absolute least that people ought to have for the most frugal lives possible in human decency."

Sixty per cent of minimum, Father Albert went on, "creates cesspool living."

That, he said, is the reason that women on relief trudged the long and painful miles to the state capital at Columbus to protest against "the indignities of substandard, sub-minimal, questioned and re-questioned existence."

Father Albert is not the only person who is calling for change. Similar appeals have come from the Ohio Citizens Council, the AFL-CIO, the Cleveland Welfare Federation and others.

In such fields as mental health and education, too, Ohio has been lagging.

A thorough reassessment of Ohio's attitude toward such needs is overdue.

It is good to try to attract new industries to the state in order to provide more jobs. But there is such a thing as first things first; and it is intolerable that poor families should be made to bear the brunt of being deprived of the basic necessities for a frugal living. Relief allotments should be increased promptly to 100% of minimum needs; and if a special session of the legislature is required, it should be called.

Cat And Mouse

Metropolitan school districts and those of the suburbs eye each other's annexation policies with the wariness of two cats stalking the same mouse.

When one or the other catches the mouse, it is laid at the taxpayers' feet with the same pride and virtuous air of a tabby cat.

"Look what I've done for you, my master. It was a tough one, but when it comes to education, your children must have the best."

Canary feathers.

Education is irrefutably the aim of any decent school system, but each also has a fine sense of prey.

Locally, the prey is the potential industry and wealth that will be baited to the suburban area by the outerbelts soon to ring the city.

This industry and wealth is what we believe the county and city schools are stalking in their boundary disputes.

Each faction concedes (privately) it does not have a monopoly on the ability to provide an excellent education for the 160,000 students in Franklin County.

Yet each wants the privilege of expanding its kingdom — for the power, for the glory and for the Almighty dollar.

Isn't it about time the caterwauling stopped and the mother cats concentrate on the serious business of raising the kittens they already have?

Take Me Where?

By The Spectator's
TED BEARDSHEAR

Attacking baseball falls into the category of being almost un-American.

Baseball has achieved national stature along with Home, Mother, Flag and Apple Pie.

Yet if any more boring game has ever been invented, I have yet to see it.

BEARDSHEAR

In the average baseball game, the ball itself is only in play for a tiny fraction of the time.

Most of the time, the pitcher rubs it, fondles it and squeezes it before he manages to get into his windup.

And the windup has all the qualities of a full-fledged anxiety ritual.

Once the ball is delivered, the batter has a choice. Frequently, the batter can take up to seven pitches before his decision is final.

And the spectator, during all this time, has to sit and sit, wait and wait, and look and look hoping against all probability that the batter will hit a ball.

Even in this event, the batter usually lobs one to a fielder (which is a simple out) or buzzes one to the shortstop (which is another simple out).

No wonder hot dogs and beer sales at a ball game are so high. With practically nothing to look at, putting bread in the breadbasket is the next best thing.

The best a spectator can hope for is one single incident which results in a run. It is, however, not worth sitting through an entire nine innings.

In addition to being boring, the effort required to view a game is prohibitive. First one has to buck traffic to park some thousand yards away so that one can get into the stadium.

Once in the stadium, one has to swim through a sea of humanity to find one's seat.

After the game, one can look forward to the granddaddy of all traffic jams.

TV fans can skip the attendance hazards. They are stuck, though, with the natural non-action of the game itself.

Perhaps a friend of mine has the right idea. He turns on a ball game and opens a beer. He watches it intently for the first few innings and sips grandly at a beer.

By the seventh inning stretch, he's lucky to be pointed in the direction of the TV . . . much less to care about the outcome.

At the risk of being labeled un-American, that seems the best way to handle it.

MARQUIS CHILDS: War End Possible

CHILDS

WASHINGTON — Talking about eventual peace in Viet Nam would seem an exercise in total futility as each day's headlines report the fighting in the elephant grass, growing casualty lists and the roar of falling bombs. Yet at the top level of government, the word is the same — we are waiting for the slightest sign that Hanoi is ready to negotiate.

The greatest mystery in this war in which so much is obscure and mysterious is why — if only for tactical reasons to confuse opinion around the world — the North Vietnamese have, without fail, rejected offers to meet at a conference table. They have denounced as "fools" Administration critics, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy and Sen. J. William Fulbright, for putting out suggestions modifying the official American stand yet stopping short of Hanoi's demand for immediate withdrawal of American forces. Repeated diplomatic soundings that continue month after month in Hanoi draw the same blank response. This was as true during the 34 days of the bombing pause last winter as it is now with American troops approaching the 300,000 level.

The faint glimmer of hope today is in Point No. 1 of the 14 points summarizing the American negotiation position. It states: "The Geneva agreements of 1954 and 1962 are an adequate basis for peace in Southeast Asia."

The Soviet Union refused to join in a call for a conference under the Geneva accords. As co-chairman under the agreement, Soviet approval of another meeting is essential along with that of Britain, the other co-chairman.

So with a stalemated war a hardened stand of Moscow casts a longer and darker shadow threatening a wider conflict. The Soviets have resisted a separate conference on Cambodia and the fear is that the Viet Nam war will spill over into this neighboring state. But even Southeast Asia, in the more somber view, is not necessarily the boundary for a greater war.

There is some reason to believe that after the Geneva conference of 1954 Ho Chi Minh, the Vietnamese Communist leader, was told by the Soviets that he had only to wait a short time and all of Viet Nam would be his. He had just defeated the French and he had reason to believe this was true. Now in secret diplomatic correspondence, Hanoi is embarrassing Moscow by demanding help to make the assurance a reality.

Rusk is coming to the view, which American military and diplomats in Saigon have held for several months, that no peace negotiation will be initiated. The Communist guerillas as they are pressed harder and harder will fade away. Hanoi, perhaps even with the sanction of Peking, will decide to wait two of three years in the conviction that American troops will depart and will not be returned when the Communists resume the attack. That may not be peace as defined by diplomacy but it could mean an end of the fighting. (Copyright, 1966, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Letters To The Editor

Defends Bert Korte

To The Editor:

In 30 years of volunteer community service I have been called many things, but an ostrich I am not.

However, because of my long association with Bert Korte, I feel it necessary to make these few observations.

I must admit that it is the privilege of any group to dismiss personnel as they wish, but always with concern for the rights and dignity of the individual.

Also I admit it is the obligation of a newspaper to print the facts and truths of an issue in a fair and unbiased way. That the YMCA story created a sensation was not due to your reporting, but the material furnished you. The handling of this situation has been unfair to Mr. Korte, and will create a lack of confidence by the public in the other participants.

Mr. Korte's 11 years of association with the Hilltop community has left no doubt as to his ability and integrity, his dedication to the welfare of the youth of this area, and through his work with many groups and the Hilltop Community Council in particular, his concern with the growth of our community.

We do regret the loss of such a man; we need every person in our community working and pulling together, not divided by pettiness and with a few holding power.

We have witnessed a period of terrific growth and hard work and many problems for the Hilltop YMCA, both for Mr. Korte and the board of management.

We wish Mr. Korte the very best and the Hilltop YMCA our support and continued success.

Very truly yours,
Mrs. H. C. Booth
Past-President

Shamansky Desperate?

To the Editor:

The campaign remarks of Robert Shamansky impressed me as those of a desperate man. Many of us are accustomed to irrational accusations made by some inexperienced office seekers, but Mr. Shamansky, in his "speech" of July, 1966, set a new high for absurdity.

I thought his subtle inference that because Mr. Devine appeared in Mr. Dean Manion's radio Forum, he (Mr. Devine) embraced Mr. Manion's political views, was the most astonishing of his many unsound statements. Also he was only specific in his vague accusations.

If Mr. Shamansky's conclusion is correct, then, to use his own phrase, I submit that he owes the public an explanation as to his views toward the American Civil Liberties Union. Many TV viewers in Columbus recall Mr. Shamansky's appearance on the Sunday "Town Meeting" program in support of Mr. John Gilligan, prominent member of the ACLU.

If we are to use the same spurious reasoning as did Mr. Shamansky in the Devine-Manion relationship then we, the voters, cannot be blamed for concluding that Mr. Shamansky supports and is possibly a member of the ACLU.

Knowing, from their own publications, that the ACLU supports such actions as banning prayer in public schools, chaplains from the military, recognition of God in all aspects of public life, including the phrase "under God" from the pledge of allegiance to the flag, and further, according to the Florida Coalition of Patriotic Societies the ACLU has had adverse citations by Federal and State investigative bodies, I would like to see Mr. Shamansky's statement regarding my conclusion.

For fourteen years the American Legion, with its 3,000,000 plus members has asked the House Committee on Un-American Activities to conduct a Congressional investigation into the activites of ACLU because of its un-American activities. (For details of the above write to Maricopa Advisory Council, 18 E. First St., Room 201, Scottsdale, Arizona.)

Does Mr. Shamansky's appearance on the aforementioned program with a prominent ACLU member carry a significant implication?

In conclusion, if this is an example of the type of reasoning that would be used by Mr. Shamansky, as a member of Congress, I would certainly vote for his opponent even though he might not be of as high a caliber as Mr. Devine.

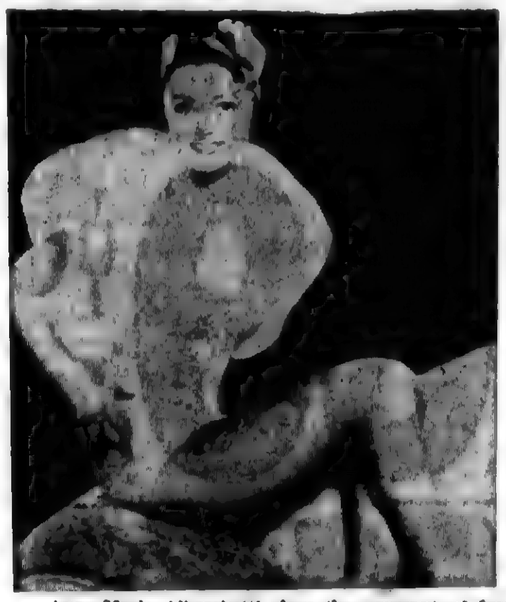
The Community Stage

BY CLAUDIA ELKINS

The second president to be introduced in this series of Community Theatre Presidents is Dave Scott. Dave was recently elected president of Village Little Theatre for the coming season.

Since joining VLT in 1963, Dave has primarily worked as chairman of stagecraft and lighting, of which he is considered the best in the city. He has spent a lot of his time in helping other community theatre groups better their lighting equipment.



Scott's plans as president of VLT include a strong membership drive, producing more musicals to help attendance and a bigger publicity program to attract more people to the shows. Two musicals are planned, including "Lady in the Dark." Several Gilbert and Sullivan productions are also under consideration. Scott also hopes to do "Trial by Jury" as an experimental play.

Besides Dave's close association with VLT, he is a paid technical director for Columbus Junior Theatre of the Arts where he advises and teaches.

Another activity of the new president of VLT is developing a new type of dimmer board which is inexpensive and simple to assemble. He hopes to market this for use in small community theatres. Stadium Theatre is currently using his dimmer board for its entire season.

DAVE calls Springfield, Mass., his home town. He now lives with his parents in Columbus while working on his Ph.D. in biophysics at OSU. He is employed at the university as a research assistant in chemistry. However, it looks like Columbus will lose Dave when he graduates next year. He has a job offer in Syracuse, N. Y. You can be sure, community theatre in Syracuse will benefit from Dave Scott.

IN & AROUND TOWN

EDITED BY ROLAND SUNKER

A guide to performers and performances in the Columbus area this week

AMERICAN MUSICAL THEATER CLUB: IT'S NEW! IT'S DIFFERENT! IT'S GREAT!

A great new concept in theatre is coming to town for the '66 and '67 season under the banner of the American Musical Theater Club. This is a new subscription club producing musicals and nothing else. It is under the management of a young brilliant and experienced man by the name of Martin Tahse. If the name sounds familiar, but you can't place it, Martin Tahse was the Broadway producer of "Funny Girl." Other Tahse productions have been presented at the Hartman during the past few years. Besides the "Funny Girl," the shows he brought to the Hartman were "Two for The Seesaw," "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum," "Fiorello" and many others. Martin Tahse plans on keeping the same fine quality of theatre in this year's shows.

SCHEDULED for the coming season are four popular musicals. First to play Columbus is "On a Clear Day You Can See Forever." It will arrive at the Hartman Sept. 26, Oct. 10 is the date for the opening of the hit musical comedy, "Where's Charley?" Sigmund Romberg's "Desert Song" begins Nov. 14 and "Funny Girl" comes back to Columbus on Mar. 6. All shows will play one week engagements and all dates are guaranteed.

TAHSE has arranged other benefits for club members, besides being able to see four top shows. All members of the American Musical Theater Club receive two special Columbia LP records of Broadway's Greatest Musicals—1926 to 1966. These are in a handsome case with a 16-page booklet on the history of American musical theatre. You also get a free souvenir program for each of the shows, a monthly newsletter, and a 30-40 percent discount on any book or record published. Another special feature for members planning a trip to New York is a guarantee of tickets to any Broadway show at regular box office prices.

TO JOIN the American Theater Club Club costs you a $5 membership fee. You pay the regular box office price for your guaranteed seats. This $5 fee also entitles you to free tickets for opening night of "Funny Girl" which is going to be a festive occasion. Champagne will be served, compliments of the management. Tahse will personally act as host along with other celebrities. If you have seen "Funny Girl" and don't care to see it again, you still get all of the other benefits without paying the $5 membership fee.

As you can see, this is truly one of the finest offerings made to theatre-goers in the history of the theatre.

AFTER seeing many of Tahse's former shows, this promises to be a spectacular season of theater in Columbus. "The response to the new subscription club has been terrific," according to Tahse. So be sure and get in on the fun by calling Theda Cobbs at 221-6893. This is the Columbus representative. She will be able to give you all the details and make certain you have seats for all the shows.

Galaxy Of Stars At State Fair

We are in August, and this is Fair month. Beginning Aug. 25 through Labor Day, Sept. 5, are Ohio State Fair Days. To use a tried and old saying, but very true in this case, this year's fair is going to be the biggest and best of all Ohio State Fairs.

There are a host of top names in show business booked for the 1966 fair. The following is a thumbnail listing of the shows scheduled. On Aug. 25 and 26, Art Linkletter headlines a revue with Jody Miller including several acts. Then Saturday, Bob Hope flys into town as star of another musical revue. This show has Columbus' own Rhodes Brothers, the four Step Brothers and other acts of nightclub and television. Also on Saturday is the national finals of the Miss U.S.A. Pageant. Sunday begins a full week of entertainment at the Grandstand. Bob Hope, Perry Como for three days, the King Family for two days and Jimmy Dean, last year's fair pleaser, is back for two more days.

There are many more acts, shows and special events scheduled for the fair. As was true last year, all grandstand shows are free. There is a $1.00 admission charge to the fair. Children between six and 12 have to pay only 25 cents. Be sure and write these dates down and see your favorite entertainer. With these prices, it's possible to see several of the star studded at the fair.

One of the galaxy of stars to be at the Ohio State Fair is Ohio's own funny man, Bob Hope. Hope is just one of the many personalities in show business to play the Grandstand Shows at the Fair this year.

SHREWD SUGGESTION TO CUT WINTER HEAT BILLS
It's the Gas Company's 12-month Budget Payment Plan. With this plan, you avoid peak Gas bills in the cold winter months. You spread the cost of winter heating over the entire year by paying the same amount every month.
The amount you would pay each month on the Budget Payment Plan is shown on your Gas bill under "Budget Amount."
Don't let the ups and downs of the thermometer make downs and ups in your Gas bill. Enjoy the convenience of the 12-month Budget Payment Plan. It helps you plan your budget months ahead by simply slicing up your yearly Gas bill into equal monthly bills. And that's slicing it pretty thin!
Read all about it on your next Gas bill.

high school wing they will remain and old furniture will be utilized in the new kindergarten rooms.

WORD from Savel and McMillin that the stadium is a "white elephant" which can be remedied only by about "20 sticks of dynamite" brought no practical solution to the problem but they are "working on it."

Among the more interesting of the seven resignations accepted were those of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Baughman.

Baughman was employed a few weeks ago as dean of boys and athletic director and his wife as junior high librarian. Baughman's proposed duties will be absorbed by Don Vansant, junior high principal, and George Hamerick.

THE OTHER faculty members leaving are Mrs. Joyce Cummins, Mrs. Polly Fugate, Mrs. Lelah Sloan, Mrs. Helen Thornton and Mrs. Karen Garrett.

Reemployment of 11 teachers on a one-year contract and 18 newly certificated personnel leaves only two vacancies on the staff—an elementary remedial reading teacher and a teacher for possible second special education class.

Action was tabled on a request by the Obetz Tigers to use the stadium on Saturday night. There is some doubt whether the Little League football team is largely made up of boys who are residents of the township.

APPROVAL of the senior and junior high curriculum showed the addition of a third year of Latin, French and Spanish and several innovations at the junior high level.

Study halls for seventh and eighth grade students will be abolished in the interests of giving them supervised study periods under their classroom teachers.

Double sessions of English in combination with fine arts will be introduced and an increasing emphasis made on creative writing skills.

WESTERVILLE Creamery Co. was awarded the contract for milk for the coming year, bread will be purchased from the Continental Baking Co., bus insurance went to the Ohio Farmers in Circleville and Al Lipfert won the gasoline contract.

His bid of $.2145 a gallon for gas was slightly over that of Sinclair Refining Co. which bid $.2063. However his bid was considered the most desirable because of past service and the news that within the year he will build a station at the intersection of Rathmell and Lockbourne-rd.

The next meeting is scheduled at 6 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 31, at the Southern Manor Restaurant. Eight members of the State Department, Guidance Section, will be present.

anne McKitrick and Katrine Johnson were second and third after Sandy.

Greg Sams' prize fighter won first place in the ceramics and sculpture class with Sara Hockman and Mike Swiger coming in second and third.

"PREPARING FOR a Date," a collage, was a winner for Coleen Fagan. John Kemmerling came in second and the runnerup was Dennis Maddy.

In the drawing and printing, Sandy's portrayal of Teddy Roosevelt was first and Mike Swiger and Sandy Richardson took the next two places.

All the entries were judged on the basis of workmanship and originality.

American Legion To Hold Officer Installation

The American Legion Southway Post 144 will have installation of 1967 post officers Wednesday, Aug. 17, at 8 p.m. in the post home at 874 S. High-st. Commander Joseph F. Baumbusch will be the presiding officer.

Commander Talbert Steen and his 12th District Council Degree Team will do the installing of the officers.

The following officers will be installed:

Thunderbirds Arrive At LAFB For Airman Appreciation Day

The famed artist in the sky, the U.S. Air Force "Thunderbirds" aerobatic team arrived at Lockbourne AFB today (Aug. 10) for a special salute to airmen tomorrow.

Airman Appreciation Day will be a very special day, according to Col. Frank E. Sullivan, base commander who commented, "It's a tribute to their outstanding performance."

"IT IS difficult to imagine the vast amount of work accomplished by each individual at Lockbourne enabling us to meet our stringent mission requirements . . . thus Airman Appreciation Day is an expression of "Thanks" . . . to all . . . for a job very well done," he said.

Six of Lockbourne's finest airmen will represent their organizations as the outstanding "Airmen of the Year."

They are: A2/c William M. Taylor, 317th Troop Carrier Wing; A1/c Donald L. Langley, 301st Air Refueling Wing; A1/c Milton Broom 87st Fighter Intercepter Squadron; A1/c Byron R. Murray, 840th Combat Support Group; A1/c Lynn M. Mailliard, 840th Tactical Hospital; and Laurence M. Gabler, 2023nd Communications Squadron.

FESTIVITIES include a parade review of 2,000 airmen, which, according to base officials, will be the largest review of troops since the founding of the base in 1942. Military dignitaries from the Tactical Air Command Headquarters at Langley AFB, Hampton, Va., Ninth Air Force, Shaw AFB, Sumter, S.C., and base senior officers will be on hand to view the ceremony.

Following the 3 p.m. Thunderbird air show, squadrons will hold open houses and picnics for their families wrapping up the day's activities at an Airhaven Service Club dance featuring the Tactical Air Command Band from Langley AFB.

Highlighting the day's activities will undoubtedly be the Thunderbirds as they show their team work, coordination, discipline and precision flying in their North American F-100 Supersabres.

THE TEAM derived its name (Thunderbirds) from American Indian folklore. Many Indian nations believed the Thunderbirds to be in control of almost all the powers man can imagine.

Indian legend of the Thunderbird—thought to resemble a huge hawk or eagle — was that thunder and lightning were caused by these enormous birds. Thunder was supposed to have been caused by the opening and closing of the bird's eyes or to arrows carried in its talons and bolted down to earth.

North American Supersabres, since first breaking the sound barrier, have been setting records for speed, endurance, range and maintenance. Later models of the F-100 are capable of speeds in excess of 1,000 miles per hour.

THE OHIO Air National Guard's 121st Tactical Fighter Wing based at Lockbourne flies the F-100.

'SLAVE SALE' HELD

HIDE-A-WAY HILLS teenagers participated last Saturday in a slave sale work project. Parents bid for their services for a specified number of hours. The industrious youngsters went to the highest bidder, the proceeds going to a Hide-A-Way Hills Teen Fund. Hide-A-Way Hills President J. W. McGough, after buying four slaves, said he thought the slave sale was a good one and hopes to see more in the future.

standing airmanship while stationed in Viet Nam.

A 20-YEAR service veteran, he flew 243 combat missions throughout Viet Nam operating from bases such as Da Nang, Bien Hoa, Cam Ran Bay, Pleiku and Nha Trang. While an AC-47 pilot there, Col. Rickelman served as commander of the First Air Commando Squadron at Bien Hoa.

Col. Rickelman's plane, better known as "Puff the Magic Dragon," is a World War II vintage cargo transport which was converted to provide tactical support with its three six-barrel Gatling-type machine guns (7.62mm cannons) capable of firing 18,000 rounds a minute.

Recalling one combat mission, Col. Rickelman says, "During a single daytime mission, 'Puff' prevented a 700-man Viet Cong force from taking over a fort defended by only 150 people."

COL. RICKELMAN returned from Viet Nam in May. He now resides on Mary-rd near Lithopolis with his wife, Catherine and three daughters, Joan, Melinda and Bonnie.

Shamansky also charged that on Sept. 20, 1961. Devine inserted into the Congressional Record a speech attacking the U.S. Army for reassigning Maj. Gen. Edwin Walker after Walker was reprimanded for distributing John Birch Society literature to his troops in West Germany.

"Mr. Devine was assisted in his attack on the Army by John Rousselot, now of the John Birch Society staff, who was then a Congressman," Shamansky charged.

He also cited a March, 1960, statement by Devine supporting an attack by a former California representative calling the National Council of Churches "communist-infiltrated."

Shamansky said he would be "happy to supply Mrs. Sherman or anyone else" with Devine's voting record, which he said "places him at the top of the Americans for Constitutional Ation Index, which is a gauge of his good standing with the extreme right wing of his party."

Lipfert Oil Company of Groveport won the gasoline contract for the coming year with their low bid of $.2095 per gallon. The Standard oil bid of $.215 was rejected.

The insurance for the 14 buses, half ton pick up, half ton truck, 1956 Chevrolet sedan and 1966 Ford wagon was given to Murray-Hughes Insurance Agency of Groveport on its bid of $737.65. This bid was almost four hundred lower than the next lowest of the four received which ranged up to almost $32,000.

THE WETHERALL Dairy of Pickerington was again the low bidder for the milk contract.

Reemployment of 10 teachers who hold temporary certificates and four new teachers has eliminated all teaching vacancies except one kindergarten and one second grade post at Groveport.

The new teachers include Miss Barbara Driver of Columbus, who is assigned to Asbury, James Donohue of Forest City, Iowa, who will teach junior high health and assume some coaching duties, Mrs. Lillie Gehring of Columbus, who will become Columbus elementary librarian, and Brenda Simms of Groveport, who will teach second grade at Groveport Elementary.

What you can do for your community

Every citizen is vitally important to his community. UNIQUE! SECLUDED!
Beautiful vistas among 100-year-old trees. 3-bedroom house was built when only first-class materials were used. Families are raised and gone, yet the home shows very little visible wear. Living room ceiling soars two stories. Fireplace is big enough for the "Yule" log. There's a sun room, a big tiled patio, and a screened-in porch off the kitchen. On the acre of ground are a multitude of flowers and trees, trees, trees! Also a smaller home and garage apartment that brings in $150 mo. You'll enjoy seeing this Twenty minutes from Broad and High. FISHIN' FACTS

If you're a "minnow man" don't scorn the fisherman who snaps an artificial lure on his line. Conversely, a plug caster has little business disparaging we of the "garden hackle" fraternity.

The controversy of live-vs.-artificial bait has raged ever since an early-day "cane poler" ran out of crawdads.

ONE POPULAR story is that he ripped a piece of his brightly colored shirt-tail and baited up, proceeding to astound his fellow anglers. Actually, use of "phoney" bait dates far back into antiquity.

Regardless of when it began, the dispute has split fishermen into two warring factions. Ask the man who dunks a worm or helgrammite what he thinks about plug casters and he's likely to flip the lid clean off his bait bucket.

The advocate of artificials holds his adversary in about equal contempt.

ACTUALLY, both methods catch fish but man-made lures enjoy an edge in effectiveness. This was proven when scientists in Illinois conducted a survey to determine which technique caught the most fish. Artificials proved far superior, both in number and in size.

The style of fishing probably accounts for this wide difference. In casting, a man covers a lot of territory and exposes his lure to many fish.

Savings And Loan Add Some 134,000 New Investors

Ohio's insured savings and loan associations added 134,000 new investors on their long list of savers during the six months period ending June 30, according to Joseph E. Linville, executive vice-president, of the Ohio Savings and Loan League.

This brought the total depositors in Ohio savings and loan associations insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation to 3,232,000, highest in history.

Linville pointed out that one of every three persons in Ohio entrusts his savings to a savings and loan association. "Besides making the majority of home loans in Ohio, the savings and loans also carry more savings than any other financial group," Linville declared.

Generally, the increase in number of savers annually has been about five percent. The first six months of 1966 increase amounts to 4.3 percent.

Total savings increased to $7.700.000,000 and total assets reached a new high of $9 billion, $171 million as of June 30.

The the same token, Ohio savings and loan associations continued to supply more money to the real estate mortgage market this year than in the same period in 1965. A total of $892,852,000 was loaned to Ohioans for the purchase of new or existing homes, Linville said. This is an increase of 360 million or 7.2 percent over the first half of 1965.

The total mortgage loans held by Ohio institutions reached a new high of $8 billion by the end of June, a boost of $171 million.

Haynes says more than 70 percent of the guards have held second jobs at one time or another to make extra money, but that they are being forced to work so much overtime now they have had to give up their second jobs.

Henry agrees that "these men simply don't care any more." He says the low morale of the guards is jeopardizing security at the penitentiary and points out that "in the past few months, they've had more troubles at the pen than in the past several years."

State Rebuff Sends ADC Mothers To Canton

Mrs. Coleen Agnew of the South Side and Mrs. Gloria Bondurant, Windsor Terrace, ADC mothers, will accompany Bill Whitacer of the South Side Settlement House to a meeting in Canton of the Ohio Steering Committee for Adequate Welfare. (Whitacer is secretary-treasurer of the state group).

The meeting was scheduled after ADC mothers were rebuffed by Robert Canary, assistant director of Public Welfare in their efforts to obtain "decent school clothing allowances" for their children. Denver White, state welfare director, consequently refused them an audience, backing up Canary's stand that money is not available.

WHITACER questions the estimate of Richard Krabach, state finance director, that total cost of the program for the year would fall between six and seven million dollars. He explained that Krabach's figures were reached by averaging clothing costs for elementary and secondary children and multiplying by the 100,000 AD children in Ohio receiving public assistance. Whitacer pointed out that elementary children outnumber older children, and Krabach's estimates are probably quite high.

The petitioners are aware of the announced surplus in the state treasury, quoted at about $20,000,000.

"They say this is being held for a 'rainy' day," Whitacer stated, "and for welfare children it is pouring right now."

THE SOCIAL worker reported that under state law, counties are authorized to grant a $5 clothing allowance to each ADC child. However, Franklin County does not even appropriate this sum.

Asked whether, in states where adequate clothing allowances are given, provisions are made to guarantee the money is actually spent for school clothing Whitacer conceded there is not. He claims however, statistics show that up to 95 percent of such money is channeled into its intended purpose.

"This unusually high figure," he said, "is due to the fact that most parents are genuinely interested in having their children decently dressed."

THE SECRETARY-treasurer states that statistics show that in cold weather school absenteeism spirals in poverty areas where clothing is inadequate.

"Although clothing is important for adults as well as children," Whitacer said, "school clothing is essential if we ever hope to break the powerty cycle that is accentuated by lack of education."

The minimal winter clothing costs was set by the Welfare group at $44.25 and $51.74 for boys and girls respectively under junior high school age. The figure for older girls and boys rose to $78.03 and $96.78.

THREE SETS of underwear, four pairs of socks, three shirts, two trousers, a sweater, shoes, boots, caps, mittens and coat is asked for the younger boys, with a similar list for the elementary age girls with two blouses, two skirts and a dress sub-

Groveport Area Flood Plains Seen As Buffer

ED HURLEY, with Clark-Turner Associates of Yellow Springs, the organization which is developing the Groveport "Blue Plan" along with Regional Planning, brought the preliminary sketch showing proposed land usage in the area.

Study of the map throws a different light on the flood plains, always regarded as a cross the area must bear.

The problem of flooding in areas to the north and west of the village is expected to be accentuated as the higher land is developed for residential and other purposes.

THIS LAND, Hurley believes, makes the plains between the outerbelt and Groveport a natural buffer zone between Groveport and the City of Columbus. This he explained makes it practical to plan on Groveport retaining its identity as an incorporated village.

With a population 20 years from now predicted at between 15,000 and 20,000, city-status should not be too far away.

Residential growth is seen in three general areas other than the northeast section of Blacklick Estates which probably will eventually be annexed to Columbus, and certainly never to Groveport.

THE LARGEST block is seen south of Groveport-pk between Wert-rd and the proposed extension of Noe-Bixby, and north of Groveport-pk between the present Noe-Bixby and the extension of 665 proposed to allow it to become a thoroughfare hooking up with Hamilton-rd.

The second subdivision area mapped lies on either side of Hamilton-rd from just beyond the railroad tracks back to Noe-Bixby.

The other is between new 33 and old 33 east of Hamilton. However, Baer indicated that it is very doubtful whether Groveport would push its annexation policies beyond new 33.

The present commercial zoning along Main-st is recognized as inadequate for the predicted population and relatively small shopping centers are proposed on Groveport-pk just east of 665 and also north of the Big City Garden Center.

A large industrial park area is the use suggested for the tract beyond the railroad tracks and east of the Walnut Creek power plant. The swamp area along the tracks east of Hamilton-rd, will, if the plan is followed, continue to be utilized for light industry and similar zoning is proposed for the acreage south of Williams-rd and west of the Ricart Ford Agency.

ON THE NORTH side of new 33, just across from Ricart's an "auto-related" commercial zoning is proposed, such as a drive-in theatre, drive-in restaurant etc. Again, this will most likely be outside Groveport's corporation limits.

Across Hamilton-rd and also just south of the new junior high school and proposed vocational school, land is set aside for "special facilities."

Hurley explained construction here should be related to the schools, either as more educational buildings or, perhaps industry which could provide on-the-job training for students.

ALL THE LAND that is not already residential between Groveport-pk and the railroad tracks and west of College and east of the proposed 665 extension is designated for a community center, new churches, schools and a city park.

The land north of Groveport-pk between the Canal

M-F Alum Due Home

After being wounded four months ago, Marine Pfc. William Morrison is back in Viet Nam combat with the Second Battalion of the Fourth Marine Regiment of the Third Marine Division. According to his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. William G. Morrison, 1112 Moncliff-dr, Hamilton Meadows, he still carries a bullet lodged near his spine. The Marion-Franklin alumnus who has spent half of his two years with the Marine Corps in Viet Nam is due to return to the States in the first of September. His battalion has taken part in eight major operations during the last five months, including Operation Jay which netted more than 400 Viet Cong killed, wounded or captured. The battalion's primary mission is to meet and capture or destroy the enemy by weapon fire, maneuver or shock action.

Ohde Annexation Seen

Ready to exercise its option on the 24.5 acre elementary site owned by Mrs. Henry Ohde of Hendron-rd, the Madison Local School Board anticipates asking her to first petition for annexation to Groveport. This, according to Supt. Phil Williams, was a condition of the option, made to protect the proposed school site from the City of Columbus by its inclusion in a corporation. It is probable that when the annexation papers are filed, the residences to the west (in Grovedale) will be included. Homeowners of Grovedale have evidenced interest in becoming part of Groveport to rid themselves of the expense of the higher water rates charged to non-residents by the village.

OH, WOE IS ME!

ONE PAYS FOR the error of one's ways, and this fact is made quite plain to youngsters at the Groveport swimming pool who let high-spirits tilt ther halos. Actually the picture of Hank Sparks and his sister, Jerry, children of Mr. and Mrs. Verlen Sparks, Henderson-rd, was posed, but even they agreed with assistant manager Tom Wilson that it wasn't the first time either had been temporarily banished to practice up on a little "bench warming."

Bob Steele Named Publicity Chairman

Bob Steele, representing Scioto Downs, was named publicity chairman when the newly-created Hamilton Local Advisory Board met last week.

Serving with him will be Ron McMillin, head custodian of the school system who is a resident of Lockbourne; Bob Thiel, president of the Hamilton Meadows Civic Association; Don Russell, president of the Hamilton Local Teachers Association and a man or woman from Obetz who has not yet been named.

Although other committees have not yet been organized, the publicity committee is considered the first step in coordination of the efforts of the district to promote a better school and better community relations.

THE BOARD originally proposed by Superintendent John Savel is considered representative of each facet of the district but will be presided over by Savel with Board Clerk Al Knodel serving as secretary.

Principals, teachers and PTA members (in that order) representing the various schools are: Central — Cliff Elliot, Mrs. Barbara Stewart and Russell W. Swope; Hamilton South — Evan Evans, Mrs. Helen Varley and Mrs. Nellie M. Reddix; Obetz — Dan Fulks, principal; Hamilton Junior High School—Don Vansant, James Immelt and Mrs. Genevieve Knouff (the last two are teachers) and Hamilton High School—John Ruehling and Dick Hensler, teachers.

OTHERS SERVING (in addition to the committeemen already named) and their organizations are Ralph Mouser of the Hamilton Township High School Boosters; James E. Drake of the Hamilton Meadows Civic Association; Paul Burcher, Lockbourne AFB education officer; and Tim Gibbs, vice-president of the Hamilton Local School Board.

The Township Trustees, the mayors of both Lockbourne and Obetz and the local Ministerial Association have also been invited to appoint representatives to the Council.

ONE OF the problems faced at the organizational meeting was the fact that the Boosters Club is at "low ebb."

According to Mouser, al-

Harrison And Peters Chair ASC

Frank Peters of Lockbourne, and Virgil Harrison of Canal Winchester have been elected chairmen of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Community Committees of Hamilton and Madison Townships.

The election was held by mail and the results tabulated by the incumbent ACS county committee Aug. 10.

At the County ASCS convention slated for this Wednesday, the delegates will elect a committeeman for three years, two alternates for a term of one year and the chairman and vice-chairman for the coming year.

Lewis Eakin, 3850 S. High-st, will serve as vice-chairman under Peters. L. B. Morehead, Rt. 1, Lockbourne, was named the regular member, and Harold Fishburn, 903 Rathmell-rd, and Jean Dill of Lockbourne are the first and second alternates for Hamilton Township.

The vice-chairman of the Madison Township committee is Carl W. Schacht of Canal Winchester. John N. Miller of Braun-rd, Groveport, is the regular member and Neal F. Schi[illegible] and Dale H. Rahn, both [illegible] Rt. 1 Canal Winchester, were elected as first and second alternates.

Open Meeting Called Against The Squeeze

Youngsters in Obetz have hit on something that makes rock 'n roll seem a lullaby to worried parents.

It's the "squeeze play."

Rumored to have started at slumber parties, the "squeeze" has now hit the streets and school yards.

THROUGH a combination of breath-holding and compression of the rib cage by another child, the youngsters, according to a report made at council this week, are reaching a stage of unconsciousness.

Potentially lethal (one boy has reached the emergency room this week, allegedly after being given "the squeeze") the dangerous fad has led Mayor Ronald Perry to call a public meeting of concerned parents at 7:30 p.m. this Thursday in the Municipal Building.

It has been suggested the 15 or 16 boys on a list compiled by Police Chief Virgil Peter[illegible] be issued special invitations to the meeting. They are the teenagers believed to be playing with a game as dangerous as glue-sniffing.

PARENTS attending the meeting will be alerted to the danger signals for which to watch.

Mayor Perry relegated the recent ruckus over the practice session of local rock 'n roll bands to neighborhood feuds and made it clear council isn't going to legislate against teenage music.

He indicated that since the whole affair seems more or less a personal matter between two families they file charges and counter charges in juvenile and municipal court, but keep the matter out of council chambers.

HE STRESSED that he sincerely hoped that pouring of a slab in the park on the west side of town for dual use as a basketball court and dance floor would provide at least a partial answer to the problem of lack of recreational facilities in the village.

Lamenting the lack of sustained interest in such a program he pointed out, "The kids are behind us, but any worthwhile program must have the support of their parents and all adult residents of the community."

The decision was made to continue the use of radar in cooperation with the Hamilton Township Police who have secured use of such equipment from the county.

"IT CERTAINLY has proved to slow traffic down, and that is what we want," said Perry.

Another step toward traffic safety was the ordinance authorizing the expenditure of $847.90 for a signal light at Groveport-pk and Chillicothe-st. (Most of the money has been contributed by local merchants).

Other business included the mayor's recommendation that the new auto ordinance regulating "junkers" be modified to prevent hardship cases, the report that a farmers' market will be established at Williams-rd and Groveport-pk and that the Columbus Speedway has been ordered by the State Health Department to drill four wells and build four septic tanks to provide water and sewage facilities for the 7,000 spectators attending the track on Sundays.

Canal-W Seeks Funds For Remedial Reading

Application was made last week by the Canal Winchester School District for federal funds to carry out a remedial reading program for grades one through 12.

The school board also approved participation in the proposed county-wide multi-dimension program to be set up under Franklin County Board of Education.

THROUGH the new program study and research will be made of improved curriculum and teaching methods and the results implemented in the individual county schools.

Three contracts were awarded including the milk contract to Wetherell Dairy, the bus insurance to Murray-Hughes of Groveport and the voluntary school accident policy to Harry Doan, representing the Pioneer Mutual Casualty Co.

THE EMPLOYMENT of David Beenendall, a 1966 graduate of Capital to teach math, science and reserve basketball, and of Mrs. Doris Straley of Lancaster as an elementary teacher, leaves only two elementary posts vacant.

Ralph Williams of Lithopolis was hired to bring the custodial staff up to six.

No action was taken after a discussion of the advisability of once again selecting a valedictorian and salutatorian from the graduating class. For several years scholastic excellence has been recognized by designating those students with a 3.5 average as "Honor Students" at commencement.

THE BOARD did resolve to boost the requirements for honor roll status. During the Winchester and Groveport is considered undesirable for development because it lies under the flight patterns of Lockbourne AFB, and the high noise factor "blights" it.

Also the slope in this acreage makes it engineeringly impractical for it to be served by Columbus sewers.

THE PLAN is predicted on the supposition that the sewer freeze enforced by Columbus will be lifted. Although Groveport's present sewage disposal plant capacity is not yet taxed, it could never be expanded to meet the demands of the 25-32,000 people planners say will be living in the total area by the late eighties.

Hurley stressed that the plan is not in its final stages.

Neighborhood parks as well as recreational areas in the flood plains that may be developed at miminal cost under the Federal Open Space program have not been pinpointed, and convenience neighborhood shopping facilities are not yet mapped.

THE $12,000 plan for which the federal government is picking up two-thirds of the tab, is expected to be completed before the end of the year.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Blast Shamansky

To The Editor:

Spectator readers were recently treated to a prepared statement by Robert N. Shamansky which seemed to oppose the re-election of his opponent to the U. S. House of Representatives in the 12th District. A more succulent heading for his release might have been "Sam, This Is Your Background."

In the same spirit with which the challenger has educated us to his opponent's sometimes associates and alleged causes I would like to speculate (?) with these same readers as to the background and motivation of the sterling men of virtue that certainly must (sometimes) surround such an upstanding and ethical lawyer as Mr. Shamansky.

For instance, he managed during the last primary, which he won, to place his benevolent countenance upon what appeared to be an almost countless number of the very largest billboards throughout many sections of the city.

However, I saw only one small placard of his opponent, the Mayor of Reynoldsburg, who was backed officially by the Democratic party, and this one on a tree, yet. Please tell us Mr. Shamansky, if your party didn't "donate" the boards, who did?

Could your "angels" be wealthy members of the American Civil Liberties Union whose publication, "Civil Liberties," is reported to subscribe to the belief that "under the first amendment guarantee of free expression, any kind of publication may be published regardless of its contents?"

You do remember appearing on the same Columbus Town Meeting program with and in support of an admitted member of ACLU, don't you? You know, Mr. Shamansky, many people including clergymen, particularly in New York City have seen the implementation of ACLU's apparent philosophy as they witnessed the leader of that area in recorded debates admit ACLU's role of smut defenders.

I'm sure most parents in Columbus who vote would like to know if you agree with the ACLU philosophy or would you agree with most American who are trying to raise children in a healthy environment, that the extremist American Civil Liberties Union is radical, dead wrong, and simply bad when it defends smut peddlers (to use your words but changing name and cause). Perhaps you would like to tell us if you are now or ever have been a member of ACLU (give dates).

Perhaps your angels might have been an association of theater owners who are now showing their gratitude for your legal council regarding how much trash they can show on their screens before being arrested; or just maybe some of the more wealthy anti-Viet Nam war protesters have decided you're their boy since they haven't been able to win by open infiltration of the Democratic party. Permit me one last speculation. Your apparent deep sympathy with the Republican party as indicated by your criticism of Mr. Devine and his failure "to defend President Eisenhower against the Birch Society's Welch" . . . and Devine "as a discredit to the Republican party" prompts me to speculate that you might be dissatisfied "mainstream (Rockefeller)" Republican who has infiltrated the Democratic party. Please inform your prospective constituents concerning your "Golden" background, Mr. Shamansky, or will you force your opponent into the garbage dump with you to the disgust of all but those who don't vote?

Most Confused

To The Editor:

Candidate Shamansky in his recent outburst in The Spectator, seemed quite happy to state that "prominent Republican leaders and William Buckley" have attacked the John Birch Society.

In this instance, Mr. Shamansky seems quite willing to accept the analytical ability and the conclusions of the aforementioned "Republican leaders and William Buckley."

Many voters in this district would like to know if Mr. Shamansky also endorses the opinions of many "prominent Republican leaders and William Buckley" on the Americans for Democratic Action (ADA), the Anti-Defamation League (ADA) and the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU).

As far as the opinions of "prominent Republican leaders and William Buckley" of the John Birch Society, I merely recommend to The Spectator readers to read what I read: "The California Report on the John Birch Society" as presented in the 12th Report of the Senate Fact-Finding Committee on Un-American Activities of the California Legislature, Sen. Hugh M. Burns, chairman. This report is available to those interested, by writing to the State of California Legislature, Sacramento, Calif.

Many voters will be looking forward to Candidate Shamansky's position with respect to the ADA, ADL and ACLU.

Ladies' Undergarments Keep Up With Fashions

BY
MARIANNE TOMLINSON
Spectator Fashion Editor

The years may come . . . the years may go . . . and a lady's figure does likewise.

As the years come and go, fashion also changes and we females are supposed to keep up with the trends. Believe me, it isn't always easy.

THEY RAISE the skirts . . . our slip is apt to hang. They narrow the skirts . . . we look lumpy. They narrow the shoulder and bodice of the garments and our feminine attributes become problems.

What to do?

First of all, we must realize, this is not a singular problem. Our problems are what inspire the designers in many instances. All of the fashion innovators work together, from head to toe. It would be sheer suicide (in a business seanse) if a designer of hats, for example, ignored silhouettes of fashionable ready-to-wear.

Each must complement the other.

UNDERCOVER designers also must respect the current fashionable silhouette and create underpinnings that will control the lady behind the fashion. Because, let's face it, the right look of outerwear depends entirely on the right underwear.

For Fall and Winter glamour things look bare . . . and there's one line of bras that has built their whole reputation on keeping up your good front . . . and that's Lady Marlene. For wandering necklines and even the barest bodice, they have calculated an invisible support with your comfort in mind. (This line is available in the better stores in Columbus).

WARNER'S IS A line of undergarments that is also respected here and they have a couple of noteworthy items.

Super short slips that are determined to follow the shorter skirt, be it slim, bias or flared . . . the new Chateau Chemise, 5 inches shorter than the average lengths and the brand-new Mini-slips, even shorter than that.

And what happens beneath the slips? Just about everything a fashion woman hopes for. Introduced for the first time is the revolutionary "Dres Garter," a clever garter concept that eliminates the familiar garter bulge beneath a skirt. Warner has bumped-off the bump! Honestly . . . they're as flat as can be. They gave us some in New York to try and they're great . . . I mean flat.

ANOTHER CLEVER new hidden trick is the "Nonstop" . . . a girdle and runproof textured hose all in one that smoothly eliminates both the stocking welt (top reinforcement) and garter to guarantee that nothing shows when the wearer does the Boston Mary (a dance that replaced the Frug that Columbus hasn't even seen yet). The general term for these is "Pantihose" and they promise to be great (really great) under Fall tweeds and the new pants suits.

One of America's best known sportswear designers turned his talents this year to underpinning. John Weitz visited Columbus quite a few years ago as an aspiring designer and I had the opportunity to work with him then. Now, he too, has delved into fashions behind fashion and came up with a completely new concept of an undergarment for the woman who lives vigorously and wears fashionable clothes.

WEITZ SAYS, "I conceived the 'Constant Contour' girdle as a result of a secret I discovered while designing clothes for men: that the human torso is essentially constructed like 2 baskets . . . joined together in the center by tissue. Encasing the tissue causes it to roll and bulge. Therefore I must avoid constriction of this region of the body."

The Constant Contour girdle hangs from the hip bones and dips deeply in front and back . . . to avoid the tissue area. It sheaths the leg and the overall look is sleek.

So you see girls . . . we have lots of news from the designers of the unmentionables I just mentioned. As a matter of fact, there are many more who will help you keep things under control.

NO HAPPY HELLO . . .

. . . is ever quite equal to the warm welcome extended to newcomers by the Welcome Wagon Hostess.

WILLIAM S. WHITE: A Recoil Is Possible

WHITE

WASHINGTON — The West is sending powerful and sustained signals that it is so fed up with extreme liberalism it may now widely recoil to extreme conservatism.

The message for political moderates in both parties is being put with ominous clarity: Get away from any association whatever with far-out liberalism or suffer consequences that will be heavy, indeed.

The great turn was visible enough in the California primaries to all who had eyes to see. These gave the Republican gubernatorial nomination overwhelmingly to a political novice with a past, at any rate, of ultra-conservation — actor Ronald Reagan. Moreover the same primaries struck a damaging blow to an only moderately liberal Democratic Governor, Pat Brown, by rolling in a million Democratic protest votes for a maverick conservative challenger, Mayor Sam Yorty of Los Angeles.

But the basic common explanation for the near-disaster that has overtaken Brown is not hard to isolate.

He is a victim of a public notion, however oversimplified and however wrong in fact, that he is too close to something called "liberal" that is now wholly unacceptable to vast numbers of voters. They had rather switch to the Far Right than to continue to tolerate not simply the Far Left but anything that could, by the most enfevered imagination, be called leftist at all.

The patent actuality of this groundswell, this angry upheaval at the grass roots, threatens not alone the far-out and grandiose effort developing among Eastern super-liberals to cure crime and racial disorder by Federal urban spending not merely on the order of some billions but of many, many billions. It threatens as well the patient attempts of moderate liberals — President Johnson for the Democrats and practically all of the present Republican leadership of Congress — for sensible and workable schemes to get at urban blight and deprivation without turning metropolitan America into one vast public works project like those of the Great Depression.

Pressed far enough, the ordinary people of perfectly good will are going to throw the baby out with the bath water and conclude that all plans for reform in this field are rubbishy and thus to be cast away. For they know that bad housing is not the sole reason for crime and that sometimes unemployment happens because people simply won't work. (Copyright, 1966, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

BARRY GOLDWATER: Presidential Reply Awaited

GOLDWATER

Law abiding Americans are waiting in vain for the President to either repudiate or otherwise repair the damage done by Hubert H. Humphrey in connection with rioting in our major cities.

The vice-president, in effect, has put an official stamp of approval on the riots. If he had to live in one of the riot-torn areas, he told the nation, "I think you'd have more trouble than you have had already because I've got enough spark left in me to lead a mighty good revolt under those conditions."

He went on to predict "open violence in every major city and county in America" unless the administration's rent-subsidy plan is accepted.

This double-barreled affront to law and order amounts to nothing less than the vice-president of the United States threatening the nation with burning, murder and looting unless it follows his party's particular political program. He is telling the nation that burning, murder and looting are justifiable for particular people living in particular sections of our great cities.

No apology or explanation alone can undo the damage of this top-level invitation to riot. Only a forthright statement from the President could damp the fires the vice-president has set.

The president issued a luke-warm warning that violence might damage civil rights gains already made. But he has not clearly put the power of his office absolutely on the side of law and order and against those who support violence.

He still encourages a connection between civil rights and riot. It would seem to many observers the riots have no connection with decent striving for the rights of citizenship. They involve criminality and sheer power and are clearly wrong.

No one is more obligated to say these things than the President. He must, to my mind, speak without ifs, ands or buts, and speak without reference to voting blocs and popularity polls. He should act as the President of the United States, not the boss of a vote-counting political party.

If that is too much to ask, however, the President at least should try to remove the seal of the United States from the riots, so brazenly put there by the vice-president.

THE SPECTATOR

OHIO'S LARGEST WEEKLY NEWSPAPER

"I have sworn upon the altar of God eternal hostility against every form of tyranny over the mind of man."—Thomas Jefferson

Robert Burdock, Editor and Publisher — Don R. Bucknam, Advertising Director — R. H. Rogers, Business Manager

Columbus, Ohio, Wednesday, Aug. 17, 1966

Your 'Good News' Paper

An awful lot of people read The Spectator Newspapers each week and often in their travels around Franklin county they will see a different Spectator from the one they receive at home.

This leads to some confusion in their minds.

There are actually six Spectator Newspapers with a total of eight editions, each with its own editorial content and its own advertising. Of course, some of the stories and some of the advertising appear in all editions.

The Spectator Newspapers represent a unique form of journalism in Ohio, although its counterparts flourish elsewhere in the country. Chiefly, The Spectator Newspapers are devoted to "good news," the news of a particular section of Columbus or its suburbs. However, these newspapers also contain comment on state and national affairs from sources and representing viewpoints not found elsewhere.

The Spectator you read each week may contain 16 to 20 pages, or in some areas up to 32 pages or more on occasion. But if all the news and all the advertising of all the individual papers were published in one edition, your paper would number about 70 pages each week.

That's just one of the reasons The Spectator is Ohio's largest weekly newspaper.

Dangerous Economy

Statistics show that the prison has only one guard for every 10 prisoners —far below the recommended minimum levels.

Prison guards are complaining that they are overworked and underpaid and that the prison is understaffed. Yet Governor Rhodes told the group recently that nothing can be done without a special session of the legislature—and that is considered out of the question at this time.

Thus far, there has been no trouble at the pen due to the guard shortage. But one of these days, the inmates are going to catch on and try to surprise some tired guard who hasn't had a day off in months.

If that happens, all the economy in the world won't prevent bloodshed and untold destruction.

The time to remedy the situation is now, before it's too late.

Roadblock Removed

The latest roadblock in the path of construction of the Alum Creek Dam appears to have been removed by some far-sighted action by the City of Columbus.

Westerville had threatened to break off negotiations on dam problems if Columbus continued its objections to annexation by Westerville of a large tract of land inside the Columbus outerbelt.

Columbus could have stuck to its guns in the annexation dispute but the consequences would have been far-reaching. The negotiations are the only hope the area has of reaching agreement in time to keep the project on the Army Engineers' priority list.

With the way cleared again for negotiations, The Spectator urges both sides to get down to business again and settle their differences for the good of all of Central Ohio.

The Urban Trend

By The Spectator's
TED BEARDSHEAR

The trend today is away from the country and toward the city.

Though not without charm, a way of life in the country is fast becoming part of a heritage, rather than a reality.

BEARDSHEAR

Because of its tradition, the country has become a part of the nation's way of thinking. Who in school has ever missed the message that the country was the backbone of the nation. . . . sort of a repository of all good things.

The way of life in the country was idealized. School children all over the nation have envisioned a sort of mystical and personal "Walden."

Nuts.

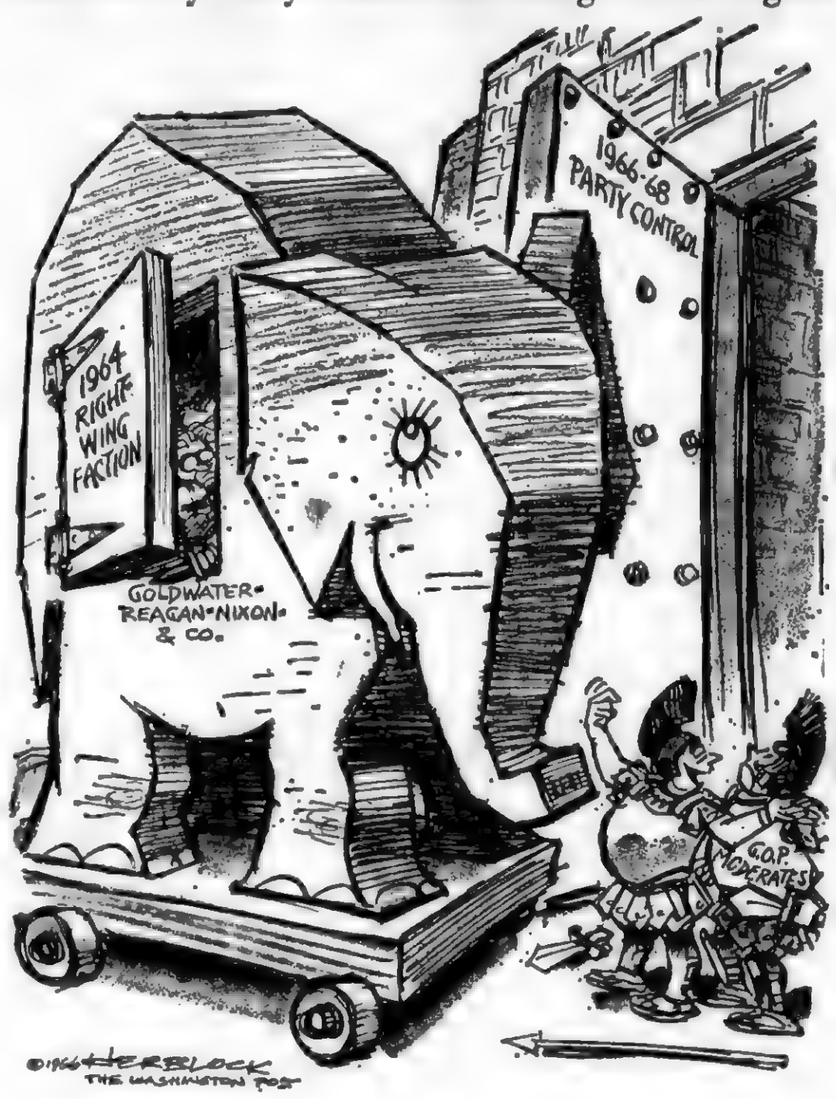
The city has spawned a whole new generation and a whole new philosophy. It, not the country, is true apple pie Americanism.

Any lesson that can be taught by country living can be assimilated faster, quicker and more meaningfully in the city.

For it is the city and not the country that is truly representative.

This strange nostalgia wrapped in Americana that so surrounds the magic of country will soon be placed in the past, where it belongs, as the country continues to become urbanized.

And it isn't too far fetched to think that poets, sculptors, artists and writers will speak as feelingly of the city as their predecessors spoke of the country.



In fact, it is only a matter of time before the arts reflect the heart and soul of America.

The trend is here.

They Said It

"Two states, New York and California, are trying a new approach to combat the growing tendency by the general public to ignore a crime being committed instead of trying to prevent it and apprehend a criminal or help a law enforcement officer do his job. Recently California made its first payment under its 'Good Samaritan' law . . . California last July became the first state to adopt such a law. It compensates a private citizen for injury or damage suffered while trying to prevent a crime, apprehend a criminal or help a law enforcement officer."—Thompson Falls, Mont. Ledger.

"Don't Worry. They Couldn't Be Doing It To Us Again'

MARQUIS CHILDS: Big Brother? Big Business

WASHINGTON — Big Brother has become big business and if this is not 1984 it is close to it. Snooping by electronic devices coming in sizes as small as an aspirin tablet is today an industry with a turnover in hundreds of millions of dollars.

The dogged inquiry directed by Sen. Edward V. Long of Missouri is dredging up some astonishing evidence on the extent of snooping in both government and so-called private life. Whether the right of the citizen to be free from invasion of his privacy as guaranteed by the Constitution has any meaning today is one of the questions Long and his staff are considering in trying to draft legislation to present to the next Congress.

CHILDS

So far as government is concerned Senator Long concentrated on the Bureau of Internal Revenue and the Post Office Department. He has been criticized for not going into the use by the FBI of wire taps on telephone lines and other listening devices. His response is that the FBI makes the case in each instance that national security is involved.

This hardly applies, however, to the Las Vegas gambling and crime investigation which is, in turn, related to the Bobby Baker case. Senator Long was fearful in this instance that if he publicized the widespread use of wiretaps by the FBI in the gambling center he could be accused of spoiling the case the agency was trying to make. With the disclosure by Solicitor General Thurgood Marshall that the FBI was guilty of illicit eavesdropping on Fred B. Black, Jr., a Washington lobbyist convicted of income tax evasion, the reason for such restraint no longer existed.

But here high stakes along with high reputations are involved if, as the cynics now believe, Baker will go free on the ground of wire tapping and invasion of privacy. The Department of Justice denies that taps were used in the Baker case. Sen. Robert E. Kennedy, then Attorney General, said on television that he had not ordered wire tapping. While this is believed to be technically true those familiar with the whole squalid tangle believe that a Kennedy order to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue and the FBI sanctioned the use of electronic devices.

A section of the communications act is the only statute that governs wire tapping today. Divulging information obtained by a tap is a crime. Senator Long's investigation has shown that Federal law-enforcement officers get around this prohibition. Disclosure to another agent is not regarded as a violation of the law and the second agent may go into court and testify to information obtained this way.

Should the manufacturer of snooping devices be licensed under Federal law and required to show how and where his wares are used? Can a Federal statute be devised to restrain the use of snooping within the constitutional guarantee of the right of privacy against unlawful invasion? Should such trick devices as the bug in the olive in the martini be outlawed? These are only a few of the questions to be answered before a remedy is proposed early in the new Congress. At the very least the jurisdiction of the Federal government should be clarified — not only for the protection of the citizen but for those agencies that want to stay within the law.

The cost of "security" is becoming an increasing burden on industry. The president of a large California corporation found that not only his office and his board room but his private lavatory were bugged. The bill to insure his privacy was in five figures. This is a sick form of behavior unbecoming to a free society.

Letters To The Editor

For Shame!

To The Editor:

Shame on Mr. Beardshear for writing that nasty article, "Take Me Where?" criticizing my favorite sport—baseball! If he had attended the cliff hangers at Jet Stadium recently, he would not have had any ammunition for that attack—twenty innings nip 'n' tuck innings for only one dollar, and the Jets won the double header as an extra bonus. In fact, the whole season has been thrilling!

If Mr. Beardshear must knock a sport in his good humor column, I would suggest ole football as a worthy target. For example, when football will soon dominate the sports pages, glowing write-ups will mask the fact that the game requires much brawn on the part of many players, but the skills of only a few, who will be able to carry, kick or pass the ball.

Finding a place to park near the stadium is usually a frustrating adventure in itself, even for the hardy, dedicated fan, and if he isn't half-frozen and numb after walking a long distance from his parking space to the stadium, he will be shortly, after being seated in his over-priced airy, backless, armless bleacher seat in bone-chilling weather—miles from the "action."

This exciting sport, of course, must be played during driving rains, too. Right? That makes the game even more fun, fun, fun, especially for the management, which never has to issue rain checks.

As for the game itself, it's fine if the endless huddling of hunched over bodies or masses of grounded beef stirs one's soul, but the intervals are lengthy between those occasional passes and flashy hikes toward the goal posts.

For entertainment though, there is sometimes the sauced but jolly fan hopping about, blocking what view of the elusive pigskin there is. And too, there are those perennial purple-legged cheer-leaders and majorettes who never have found weather reports credible, and probably never will.

To carry the whole business to moronic proportions, exhibition football in 90 degree temperatures is already in progress! Wonderful. Especially for the purple-legged cheerleaders and majorettes.

I'll tolerate football, in season, but give me good ole baseball anytime for pure pleasure.

Are Not Suspect

To The Editor:

With reference to your editorial of July 13, 1966 entitled "The Meddlers," I believe the activities of the Save the Scenic Valley Committee and the Watch Arlington Club should not be held suspect just because they are at odds with your particular interests.

It might be appropriate to recall the words of Plato, "The penalty for disregard of public affairs is to be ruled by evil men."

Is Thrilled

To The Editor:

What a thrill it was to receive the $50 Savings Bond today!

I thoroughly enjoyed working on the word contest — it was fun.

I have no immediate or long range plans for the bond and unless some unforeseen emergency arises I hope to keep it to maturity. I applaud your use of the Savings Bond—"A Share In America" is a very impressive prize, indeed.

Kiwanis To Hold Annual Golf Tourney

Jets Return Monday

The Columbus Jets return home from a Toledo-Toronto road trip Monday to open a four-game set (through Thursday) with Buffalo's Bisons in the local IL entries' second-last home stand of the '66 season.

Following tonight's game at Toledo, the Jets' remaining schedule looks like this:

AWAY—Toledo (1), Toronto (4), Richmond (3), and Jacksonville (4); HOME—Buffalo (4) and Richmond (5).

FISHIN' FACTS

The electronic part of fishing that invaded the scene not too long ago apparently has become established.

Alternately praised and cursed, these "fish-finding" devises have carved such a niche for themselves that they are worthy of the attention of every serious angler.

ESSENTIALLY, these units perform a type of sophisticated underwater snooping that enables the angler to "see" below the surface without getting wet.

By means of an electronic sound wave, signals are bounced off the bottom and objects in between in a manner like radar, or, more precisely, sonar, which is more commonly associated with complicated and expensive marine depth finders.

Reports of such signals are reflected on calibrated dials in the form of bands or slivers of light patterns.

THESE CAN be interpreted by an observer to determine the type of bottom, sudden drop-offs and depth. Even fish can be spotted and the level at which they are resting determined.

Obviously, to operate the devices a certain degree of skill and experience is needed, but that comes within a short time.

What's the cost of such equipment? About that of a custom flyrod. Will it catch fish for certain? Never! It may find them, but that's all.

MAVERICK

With Muddy Shoes

By RICHARD L. PAUGH

From Aug. 25 to Sept. 5, another spectacular Ohio State Fair will be held in Columbus. If you haven't been to the Fair in a long time because you feel it is basically an agricultural show, you're in for a shock.

What started out 113-years-ago as a horse-pulling contest, display of quilts and a jam judging is now the broadest possible exhibit of modern world interests. The flash and color of a circus intermingles with the delightful creativeness of the fine arts.

PAUGH

THE MANURE piles of yesteryear are replaced by spotless new brick buildings and the crowds themselves are as cosmopolitan as any large city. A large percentage of the vast complex is given over to the enjoyment of the outdoors. Commercial exhibits of boats and camping units are everywhere, manufacturers of outdoor gear have found State Fairs a lucrative place to show their wares.

The two best dates for outdoorsmen to attend the Ohio State Fair the the first day (Aug. 25) when, at 9 a.m., the brand new permanent Natural Resources Building will be dedicated and the Conservation Hall of Fame Award will be presented by Governor Rhoades.

The second date to plan on attending is Sept. 3. At 2 in the afternoon awards will be given in all active fields of outdoorsmanship. Huskie Muskies, trap shooters, Big Bucks, etc., will be honored. After the ceremonies, the recipients will be around should you have any questions or remarks.

The new Natural Resources building will have complete exhibits of almost all Ohio's native wildlife including whitetail deer. State Wildlife employes will be in attendance at all times to answer any questions.

In conjunction with the wildlife displays, the League of Ohio Sportsmen will have an exhibit and personnel on hand to assist you. If your question is not answered fully by the Wildlife people, crosscheck with the League men. Also expected to be popular as in the past will be the free fishing for the youngsters.

To say the price of the Ohio State Fair is right would be an understatement. When you stop to think that all the high-priced talent will be included in the tab of one buck for adults and two-bits for children, it can't be beat. The big drawback in the whole scheme is that no one can see the fair in one day. You must plan carefully how to cover the major exhibits of interest to you and expect to come back a second day.

Metzka Named FB Head At New Albany

New Albany's naming 26-year-old Gerald Metzka to the head football job marked the 10th new coach added to the area's list for the upcoming season.

Metzka, a 1965 graduate of Youngstown University, served as varsity assistant coach for Sarasota High School at Sarasota, Fla., last year. The Sarasota team ranked fourth in the Florida ratings.

Keglers' Korner

By NORMA KIRKENDALL

Have you noticed the new "our 50th year" sign in front of WIBC headquarters?

Jeanne Sweeney, Columbus, was representative to the All-American Youth Bowling Championship of BPAA — competing for a share of $10,500 in scholarships.

WHY NOT make this "Take your Church School Class Bowling Week?" Many church groups find the keggles a fine fellowship project.

In case you're interested, the second National Singapore Bowling Championships will be held Sept. 7-18. At least, it proves that our sport is getting around world wide.

An excellent article on "League Management" is available free on request from ABC, Dept. 4, 1572 E. Capitol-dr, Milwaukee, Wis. 53211.

FIREMEN have found that an old bowling ball will clear the incinerator shafts in apartment buildings better than anything else. Most of us have threatened to throw ours that way too.

Starting Sept. 12 you have 28 days to enter NBC's "Bring a Friend" Contest. Ask your proprietor for full details on this easy way to earn a trip to faraway places.

What lanes in Columbus are on two floors?

A RECENT survey shows that 17 large companies in Columbus have industrial bowling leagues scheduled for fall. And — 65% of their bowlers also bowl in another league.

Olympic lanes are on two floors.

Things we'd really like to know: who is the oldest bowler in Columbus? What league has been in existence the longest time? Where were the very first alleys in Columbus located? What league secretary has held office for most consecutive years?

IF YOU KNOW — please share with us at P.O. Box 23392, Central Point Station, Columbus 43223.

Garland Crew Retains City Horseshoe Title

By the narrowest of margins (one-half game) Garland Equipment retained its City Recreation horseshoe title with a big "assist" from Caskey Cleaners.

Two defeats by the Cleaners wiped out a 10-game bulge by Chillicothe, Caskey almost pinning a similar fate on Garland (champs won match 3½ to 2½).

S. CONLEY and T. Harris (each had 114 singles) paced by Garland's narrow margin over Caskey (paced by E. Turner and R. Johnson, each with 101) with J. Keller (447) and Johnson (480) taking series honors.

Johnson (128-535) also showed the way as Caskey's deadlocked (three-all) with New Rome in another series. J. Leach's 114-532 was best for Rome.

New Rome narrowly missed bypassing Circleville for third place in the final standings, downing the Roundtowners, 5-1, behind G. Hoddy (108) and H. Witter (510).

GARLAND, which also has won the Southern Division of the Ohio League, will play the Akron Goodyear team who deprived the repeat City champs of the state title four years ago.

Here are the final City League standings:

Team	W.	L.
Garland Equip.	56½	39½
Chillicothe	56	40
Circleville	54	42
New Rome	52½	43½
Caskey	43½	52½
Post Office	34½	71½

Nicklaus Is Usual Favorite But Firestone's A Geiberger 'Cousin'

Who, if anyone, will beat Jack Nicklaus in the official World Series of Golf scheduled for Akron's Firestone Country Club, Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 10-11?

WHENEVER Nicklaus tees off in a tournament he's the favorite. But again the field is a select one of major champions: Al Geiberger, newly crowned as PGA king, Billy Casper, winner of his second U.S. Open crown last June; Gene Littler, who qualified at the Canadian open champion when Nicklaus added the British Open title to the Masters which had already qualified him last April.

Because the famous Firestone 7,180 course is the annual scene of the World Series of Golf, Geiberger presents more qualifications as the man with the best chance to beat Nicklaus, than Casper and Littler.

First, he's long off the tee. He also is straight, although he doesn't get the distance of a Nicklaus, or an Arnold Palmer.

SECONDLY, he has the knack of playing Firestone unusually well. He won the American Golf Classic there In August of 1965, and added the PGA by the record margin of four strokes less than two weeks ago.

Casper, of course, is the most underrated golfer in the game, although the Casper bandwagon began to crowd up after his U.S. open victory at the very testing Olympic Club in San Francisco less than two months ago.

Billy has been, in his very quiet way, the most consistent player in the game over the years.

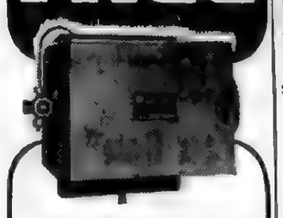
Including last week's Indianapolis 500 tournament victory, Casper's all-time official winnings are second only to Arnold Palmer's with $569,914.

AS FOR quiet Gene Littler, his game is so sound that he always is the darkhorse when he competes in a tournament.

Gene's Canadian Open victory qualified him because Nicklaus had won both the Masters and British Open while Casper added the Western Open Crown to his U.S. Open title.

The Western Open champion is first alternate, according to the eligibility standards set up by the National PGA and Walter Schwimmer, president of Walter Schwimmer, Inc., creator of the World Series of Golf. The Canadian Open champion is the second alternate.

ALTHOUGH he played Firestone poorly in the recent National PGA, Nicklaus usually plays this course extremely well. His is, by far, the best record in the World Series which will be televised over NBC-TV on both days.



He won two of the four previous series, the other winners being the late Tony Lema in 1964 and Gary Player last year.

His $115,000 in World Series winnings ($50,000 twice for his 1962 and 1963 victories and a second in 1965 worth $15,000) is a record.

JACK IS competing in his fourth World Series, which is a record. His winning score of 135, made with 66-69 rounds in 1962, is still the lowest made in this tournament.

Winning two straight is also a World Series record. Nicklaus won with two 70's for 140 in 1963.

Phyllis Burns Has No Gimmicks

Phyllis Burns, who is currently playing at the Scioto Lanes, 1400 Dublin-rd, is one of the most unique singers working in good ole Columbus town. Featured as a cocktail vocalist, along with Ray Vaske on piano, Phyllis possesses a style that is refreshing and pleasant

FORGETTING the excellent vocal quality of Phyllis, the thing I like most about her is the fact that she sings with no gimmicks and unlike other cocktail singers, she does not play drums. This gal has a sophisticated act. She doesn't need gimmicks or drums to clutter up the act and distract from the voice. Having good control with her own individual styling Phyllis ends up singing amost every song with a special flavor.

PHYLLIS BURNS

BACKING UP Phyllis on piano is one of the greatest players on the 88's in the business. Ray Vaske is a good accompanist for Phyllis and is a complement to the act. He has a beautiful touch and style. Employing a tremendous amount of creativity, Ray is a musician's musician.

A good technician, he used a lot of intricate chord structures which produces unbelievable and pleasing sounds. Mix Ray Vaske with a singer of the quality of Phyllis Burns and you have one of the finest, classic lounge acts in town.

Joanie Sings For Her Coffee

Joanie Stuart, the new vocalist on Spook Beckman's Coffee Club, is a perky, peppy little singer who keeps everyone guessing as to what she will say or do next. Even Spook, an old pro in show business, is taken back at times by the Stuart antics and witticisms.

Featured vocalist on the Spook Beckman's Coffee Club is Joanie Stuart. The perk and peppy Joanie is seen everyday on TV-4 at 2 p.m., along with Spook and the entire Coffee Club family.

JOANIE is also an old pro in the broadcasting field, having been on radio in her home town of Pittsburgh since she was six years old. She has continuously worked as a professional radio entertainer since her 14th birthday.

One of the radio shows she sang on was hosted by Walt Framer who later became the producer for "Strike It Rich" and "The Big Payoff." During her younger life in the world of show business, Joanie also did children's shows at the Steel Pier in Atlantic City. The "Chiquita Banana" commercials were recorded with the Stuart voice, but when it was discovered that she was only 12 years old, the sponsor would not permit the recordings to be broadcast.

"When I was a teenager, my hero was Dinah Shore," stated the pixie from Pittsburgh. She also adds, "the type of songs she sang are the ones I learned to like and prefer to sing today."

AND SING she does. Joanie has a rich, full voice with an ability to add her own interpretations. She has nice phrasing and a fine, distinctive manner of singing. John Costa, who has one of the biggest recording orchestras, was musical director where Joanie worked, and she feels that he was a big help in teaching her some of the tricks of selling a song.

When asked how she liked Columbus, Joanie said that "she is crazy about our town. It's a great family town. Families do a lot more things together in Columbus than in Pittsburg," believes the Coffee Club vocalist.

Moving here two years ago with her husband and three children, (two daughters 14 and 10 and a 12 year old son) Joanie points out that she is a housewife and mother first and an entertainer second.

Fall Fashion '66 On Tab At Lazarus Today

By
MARIANNE TOMLINSON
Spectator Fashion Editor

Fall fashion bits have been emanating from New York ever since the new batch was designed and offered to the retail buyers.

The goodies the local buyers selected are now appearing in department stocks ... and it hasn't been easy with the airlines strike. In addition to completed garments stacking up because of transportation problems, some houses can't even get their shipments of fabrics to cut.

IN SPITE of these complications, Lazarus showed the members of the "Press" a marvelous sampling of what will be their current looks in fashion for Fall '66 on Wednesday.

They showed a "Country Squire" scene, a fashion undoubtedly influenced by the hunt scene in the current Broadway musical "Mame." It was evident in the longer "Hacking Jackets" in the suits and pants suits and in the rough tweedy fabrics.

They showed "Fun Furs" (as opposed to frankly-fake synthetic furs) which are real, rather inexpensive, furs . . . calf or sheared rabbit . . . which have been stenciled to resemble more costly Jaguar, Cheetah or Zebra. They're witty and gay and assuredly warm.

ONE OF the most popular looks for Fall will be the military look . . . or as Lazarus deems it "Fashion Militia." Military touches will be obvious in all departments. How to identify it? Well, it's pretty obvious in the Junior Departments. There you can find good duplicates of regulation coats and suits but in practically every department you'll find brass buckles and insignia buttons, double breasted styling and epaulets. They invade the dress, coat, suit, sportswear and even the accessory departments.

Knits continue to be good wardrobe standbys. The new knits are colorful and usually turtle-necked, to fit comfortably under heavy winter coats.

Looking ahead to festive occasions, better put on your dark glasses because for After-five the prospect is dazzling.

THE AMC forecasters of fashion repeat what New York designers predicted, "The overall mood of Fall and Winter '66 is to be Dynamic . . . to Dazzle. Evening hours overwhelm with sequins, beads, pearls and the metallics . . . silver (newest), gold, copper and multicolor.

New ready-to-wear fashions always present accessorizing problems. My best advice to any lady is to watch the ads in the newspapers and the displays in stores and in the window displays. Many hours are spent, by experts in the field, depicting the right accessory touches the glove addition or the correct shoe.

As for the hemlines . . . a very current consideration . . . this season there's a very convenient guide. If you're a lady on the shady side of 30 . . . you'll be current and correct with your skirt at mid-knee. For younger ladies . . . about an inch above.

IT WAS GOOD to note in the Lazarus fashion show that they were promoting a sensible hemline. Recently while in New York, I was disgusted when designers showed sophisticated clothes one or two or even three inches above the knee to members of the press . . . then they pointed out they were shipping them mid-knee length. This unrealistic approach to fashion is ridiculous to my way of thinking, and I was happy to see the better designers and Lazarus didn't insult our intelligence to this degree.

Summing it up, the showing of fashions at the Lazarus party were very representative of the best looks for Fall . . . and very representative of the pickings in New York. No need to go shopping there . . . the buyers have done it for you.

THE GADABOUT

Two more street name derivations to add to this facet of South Side history project today — Champion and Wilson.

Reuben Champion, a veteran of the Revolutionary war, was the father of the Champion who eventually made his home in Columbus. John, born in 1797, is listed as a partner in a dry goods store with Mr. Lathrop in 1834. The family owned a 300-acre farm between Broad-st and Livingston-av.

John's son, also named John, was born in 1838. This younger John married a woman who was related to George Washington. A third generation — John, son of John II, was born in 1861. He first worked for a railroad company, then went into the business of manufacturing dental specialties.

Wilson a Judge

A William Wilson was elected judge in 1810. Henry Wilson was elected council president in 1855 on the 119th ballot and was noteworthy because he helped to bring an Army fort to the city (Ft. Hayes, now fighting for its existence). A Wilson Jr. was on the Board of Trade in 1866. We choose the Hon. Henry Wilson, he sounds like he'd be full of derring-do.

This "What can I do next?" segment of the area population is a bit luckier than their playmates for they have a birthday to contemplate this week: Michael Booker, Michael Rose, Randal Hamilton, Tina Backus, Connie Lucas, Keith McClain, Rusty Scarbeary, Judy Keller, Dale Castle, Charlotte Crites, Brenda Smith, Steven Thomas, Theresa McSweeney, Nancy Lyons, Kathy Houston, Joyce Dorn, Doug Hofmann and Phil Fugate, Jr.

Spiralling up the "age" ladder are these adults who are birthday-minded this week: Bob Floyd, Fred Beer, Anna Aschner, Woody Moore Sr., Tom Cahill, Mary Esselstein, Phil Ikehorn, Judy Renner, Howard Henry, Bob Franz, Lena Conkle, Bertha Eberhard and Ann Baum.

Wedding anniversaries to be celebrated include those of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Burton, Sally and Bob Floyd.

Convalescents Listed

The ailing and convalescent list includes: Rev. Paul Kaefer, Harold Gall, Lillian Clark, Harold Kromer Paul Neufong, Mrs. Lewis Smith, Adah West, Carl Zellers and Mrs. John Noll. Judy Leo is back in the hospital for further corrective work on her leg; Charles Sherrod lost the tip of his finger in an accident. Other ailing residents include Helen Griffith, Mrs. Pat Crombie, Wanda Sowers, Nelson Hennis, Otto Reichel, Nora Cornwell, Freddie Herron, Ronald Barclay, Robert Barclay, Richard Huff, Mrs. R. W. Conrad, William Kuhn, Mrs. Elmo Keene, Bernard Cook, Frances Woolridge, Edith Noice, Vernena Hoffman, Betty Smith, Oscar Witt, Emma Persinger, Mike Riesser, Roberta Tobias, Virginia Weber, Jack Botley, Jean Gemenhardt, Charles Souther, Mr. Lahrmer, Tommy Stigaro and Bunkie Allis.

Attends NAPH

John Rogers, 393 E. Gates, recently attended a NAPH convention in Des Moines, Ia., as an alternate delegate. A localite, Marguerite Bruce, was chosen as queen of the affair. Rogers is quite active in the organization which is the National Association of the Physically Handicapped.

A Vacation Bible School is currently in progress at the Sonshine Mission, 106 E. Barthman-av. George Hoyt is in charge of the activity.

The Swan Club, a 40-member organization, has planned a big rummage sale for Friday, Aug. 19, and Saturday, Aug. 20, at 627 E. Livingston-av. Proceeds from the sale will be used at Christmas to bring happiness for needy children. Men of this South Side Club have particularly enjoyed helping area youngsters and we do hope their sale is quite successful.

The St. Paul Luther League has planned a bus trip to the Mohican State Park Sunday, Aug. 21, following early church.

Corn Picnic Planned

The Adult Fellowship of the St. Paul's United Church of Christ has planned a "Corn Roast" picnic Saturday, Aug. 20, at the Mt. Pleasant Sunshine Park in Lancaster. John and Nancy Milhouse are in charge of arrangements.

Dartball players of Trinity Lutheran Church will hold a picnic from 1 to 7 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 21, at the Wind Bell Grove, 2714 Bixby-rd.

The Church School picnic of the South High EUB will be held from 2 to 9 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 20.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Reynoldsburg Citizens Extend A Thank-You

To The Editor:

We would like to thank the many citizens of Reynoldsburg who came to our assistance July 30 when we lost our home and automobile in a fire. It was an experience which proved once more what we have known about Reynoldsburg since we moved here two years ago—that this community is one of the finest in which we have been privileged to live, filled with the kindest, friendliest people.

As many know we were in the process of moving to North Dakota when the fire occurred. It is with deep regret that we leave the fine city of Reynoldsburg but we are grateful for the many fond memories we will be able to take with us —two years filled with good friends and happiness among other spiritual blessings.

We wish to extend a special commendation to the Truro Township Volunteer Fire Department who responded to our call within seven minutes and did such a superb job of fighting the fire under difficult, dangerous conditions—a car full of gasoline being in the garage where the fire began. Because of the efficiency and promptness of these men we found that most of our cherished belongings had been saved. The citizens of Reynoldsburg should be very proud of these men and feel more secure knowing that their community is blessed with such a dedicated force of capable fire fighters.

God bless all of you fine people. We appreciate greatly all you have done for us.

Sincerely,
Capt. and Mrs. Einar Samuelson and children

Farming Employs Over Six Million

The United States Department of Agriculture recently found that farming employs over six million workers, more than the combined employment in transportation, public utilities, the auto industry and the steel industry.

Farming is the biggest industry in the United States, the department goes on to say, has advanced more in the last 50 years than in all the prior years of our history, the department said.

IN THESE last 50 years, the nation's 4-H Club members have kept up with the new agricultural practices and have produced their share of food and fiber, says the Cooperative Extension Service. Scores of the nation's successful farmers today got their start in 4-H, according to the service which supervises 4-H Club work.

Right now it is alleged that some 106,000 young 4-H farmers are getting ready to harvest various kinds of crops. In the process, several thousand compete for county, state and national awards.

These junior farmers don't just plant the seed and reap the harvest. They make soil tests, practice conservation by rotating and terracing, restore arid and eroded land, learn to judge crops, maintain farm machinery, and also study marketing, according to a spokesman.

MANY of the older 4-H'ers have outpaced more experienced farmers with higher yields, it is reported. Some are already in partnership with their dads or are renting acerage on their own, specialists say.

With the aid of 4-H scholarship, six young people each year are helped with college expenses, agricultural short courses or other educational endeavors, the department said.

Any boy or girl interested in starting a field crops project can contact the county extension office.

FULL LINE OF SCHOOL SUPPLIES

Volunteens Capped

Ten teenagers were capped recently at the Chapel Annex at Lockbourne AFB as Red Cross Volunteens. The presentation of caps, pins and certificates—earned after 50 hours of on-the-job training in the base hospital and 12 classroom hours — was made by Col. Rose Shefup, chief nurse at the hospital, and Mrs. George J. Billy, volunteer chairman, with Mrs. Elliot Morrison, Volunteen chairman, presiding. The girls are Carol Carrillo, Gabriele Moore, Terri Olex, Marianne Lord, Shirley Eye, Sally Brackney, Maria Carroll, Linda Clem and Linda and Brenda Hardiman. The Hamilton High School students all live on base except the Hardiman sisters of 2998 Fairwood-av.

Mothers—

stituted for the shirts and trousers.

The list for secondary school children rose sharply with a $10 allowance made for gym clothing, and the cost of regular clothing much higher per item. (For example, teenage boys' shoes are listed at $15.99 while those for little boys are set at $5.99 and teenage boys' coats listed at $20.99 rather than $10.99 for grade schoolers).

Whitacer justified these prices in the name of economy, stating that good sturdy shoes could be expected to last the winter, while cheaper shoes would soon wear out.

HE STRESSED that such a clothing allowance could at best only alleviate the suffering anticipated this winter by welfare families who are living on allowances figured at beween 70 and 78 percent of the amount required to provide a decent standard of living.

"With Rhodes' refusing to consider a special session of the legislature, no help with this critical problem can possibly be implemented before July 1," he added.

(The cost of bringing welfare up to minimal needs has been estimated at $34,000,000).

STATING THAT the frustrations of many people around Ohio are "near the breaking point," one mother told Canary that "We aren't asking for enough to clothe our children like Luci Johnson. All we ask is enough for decency."

At Thursday's meeting each of the nine organized districts in the state will send three delegates, two of whom are welfare recipients, and one who is not.

Sporting Chances

The Division of Wildlife reports that the 1966 teal breeding population is up significantly from that of 1965.

Prospective Ohio teal hunters are again reminded that they must have a special teal hunting permit to participate in the Sept. 16-24 season. Application deadline is Aug. 19.

You can obtain your free teal permit by sending your name, address and county of residence to TEAL PERMIT, OHIO DIVISION OF WILDLIFE, 1500 Dublin-rd, Columbus, Ohio.

Sorry! Our Error

Through error in last week's Spectator the low bid price for the Hamilton Township gasoline contract was reported at $.2063 by Sinclair Refining Co. with the bid awarded to Al Lipfert's Texaco on his bid of $.2145 a gallon.

Those bids were bulk bids and neither accepted.

Lipfert's bid of 25.4 cents a gallon was the low at-the-station bid. (Sinclair did not submit a station bid.)

JUST ONE OF MANY

THE PICNIC table the boys of the Groveport-Madison FFA chapter made was just one of the 62 shop exhibits with which they hoped to bring home the Shop Sweepstakes at the Franklin County Fair this week. This would entitle them to the free trip to Kansas City this fall which is becoming traditional. Their exhibits include tool fittings, sheep feeders, slop troughs, hog hurdles and most anything useful around a farm that can be built with the proper know-how. The chapter's exhibits in the various fields total 436, and 221 of these will go to the State Fair. From the left are Jay Hart, Bill Bird and Don Werner.

Sales Still Brisk

When the sheriff's foreclosure sales began last Satday, 10 of the residences were in the Sun Vall area of Blacklick Estates. Seven were previously reported. The three additional were located at 3541 Clearwater-dr, 5375 Newport-rd and 3904 Wade-rd. Sales advertised for next Saturday, Aug. 20 in the area include 3571 Clearwater-dr. and 3549 Tremaine-rd.

Slow-Down Bonanza

With Blacklick construction slowed down, the Madison Local administration has announced that six graders will be placed on a full day schedule at Asbury Elementary. With the exception of those fourth graders who were on half-day schedules in both the first and third grades, the balance of the Asbury students will resume the half-day classes of last year.

Doctor Named

Anheuser-Busch Team Has Long, Proud Past

team of Clydesdales that will be appearing at Town and Country Shopping Center later this month has a long and colorful past.

The first team of Clydesdales was purchased by August A. Busch, Jr., for his father, August Busch, Sr., shortly after the repeal of prohibition in 1933. No longer practical for pulling the beer wagons, the eight-horse hitch became a company trademark. Since this first team thrilled outlookers in St. Louis as they came thundering down the street pulling their brass-trimmed, three and one-half ton wagon, thousands of people from coast to coast have marveled at the splendor of the show.

THE HORSES are so large they make the average horses appear as dwarfs by comparison. They are tended by four chauffeur grooms who take care of feeding, harnessing and currying the animals.

The Dalmatian mascot became a part of the Clydesdale hitch in 1953. On parade, the dog usually rides atop the wagon on the seat with the driver.

Named—

though the roll totals almost 150 members only nine or 10 of the members evidence sufficient interest to show up at meetings, let alone assume leadership and/or working roles.

It was also recognized that school spirit is lacking among student athletes themselves, with the result that team turn out has been poor.

AS ONE person pointed out, whenever the school is able to provide winning teams (especially in basketball and football) public interest will perk up.

A house-to-house canvass was suggested to revive lagging interest with particular stress laid to calling on the homes of potential athletes.

Some of the problems were typified when the suggestion of a Booster pancake breakfast was met with the exclamation, "Who the heck wants to get up on Sunday morning for a pancake breakfast?"

SUCH DIFFICULTIES arise, it was pointed out, when the few active Boosters attempt to make plans for the group as a whole when their feelings on various proposals are not known.

According to John Savel, no world-shaking answers were found at last week's meeting but the first step was taken when problems were recognized and discussion of them brought out in the open.

Although meetings were originally planned only twice a year Savel reported the next meeting is set for the first Thursday in October.

Penney Stores Issue Catalog For Fall

J. C. Penney Company's fall and winter 1966 catalog now being distributed has a strong "modern flavor," thanks to the collections of the company's four young international designers.

THE OPENING 31 pages of the 1,096-page book feature designs by John Michael and Mary Quant, both of London, and Ariel and Victoire of Paris.

In his first collection exclusively for Penney's, Mr. Michael brings the Young London Look to the U.S. One of England's top men's wear designers, Mr. Michael operates 17 shops in London which are considered fashion pacesetters.

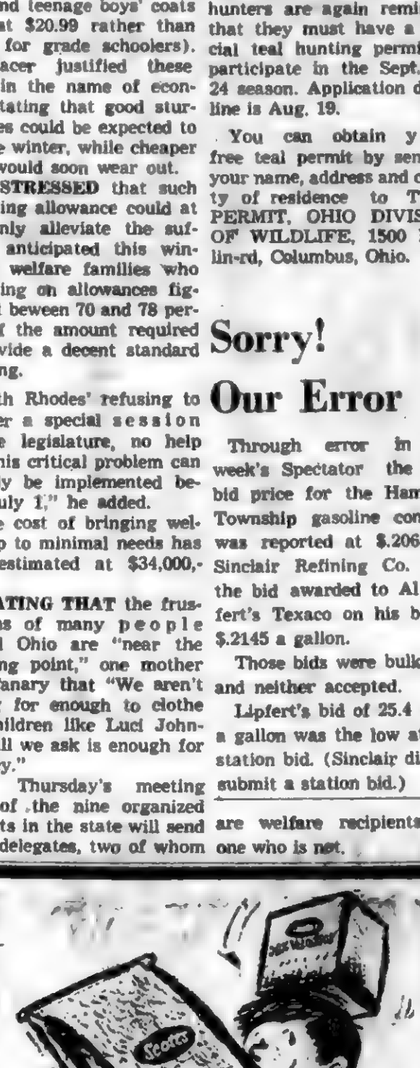
MISS QUANT, who with Penney's, first brought the Chelsea Look to this country, continues to set the pace for the youth movement in fashion.

Her ninth collection for Penney's features the practicality of corduroy; the appeal of red as a pace-setting color, and the addition of gold as a contrast in imaginative new prints. A special heather plaid group with skirts, skimmers, straight leg pants and low-cut jumpers offers a number of coordinating possibilities.

IN THE hard goods area, the automotive section features Penney's unique "Triple-Guard" passenger tire guarantee providing for free replacement during the first half of the tire's stated guarantee period if it fails due to defects in materials and workmanship or road hazards.

Other new items shown in this section are an eight-track stereo tape player which operates in car, boat or home and the Hurst three-speed floor shift.

A NEW fashion emphasis in furniture is introduced in the catalog reflected by a display of cane-trimmed chairs as well as a collection of Mediterranean and Italian Provincial style pieces.



The Penney Stores in this area are among the 500 in the country which have catalog sales desks.

John Michael, one of Britain's foremost men's wear designers, presents his first exclusive collection for J. C. Penney's new fall and winter 1966 catalog. In the collection, Mr. Michael brings the Young London Look to the U.S. For fall and winter, Mr. Michael, shown here supervising a fitting of his coordinated attire, emphasizes double-breasted coats bound in knit braid; low-slung pants with matching caps; large scarfs, and bulky, turtle-neck Shetland sweaters. The Penney store here is one of more than 500 in the Company which have catalog sales desks.

The eight-team hitch of Clydesdale horses are descendants of a Scottish breed of powerful draft horses. They are harnessed in gleaming brass-trimmed leather worth ten thousand dollars. Each horse weighs in excess of 2000 pounds.

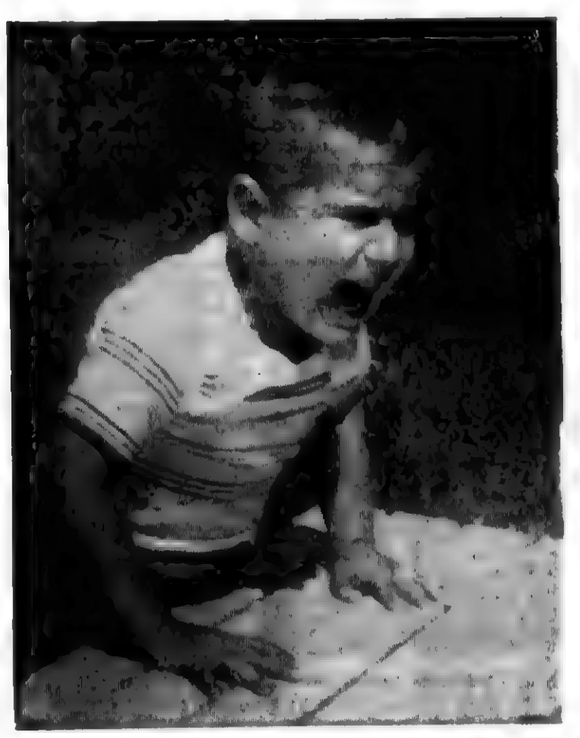
WHAT IS THE PECK O' WEE ONES?

A Home Where Tragedy Is In Birth, Not Death"

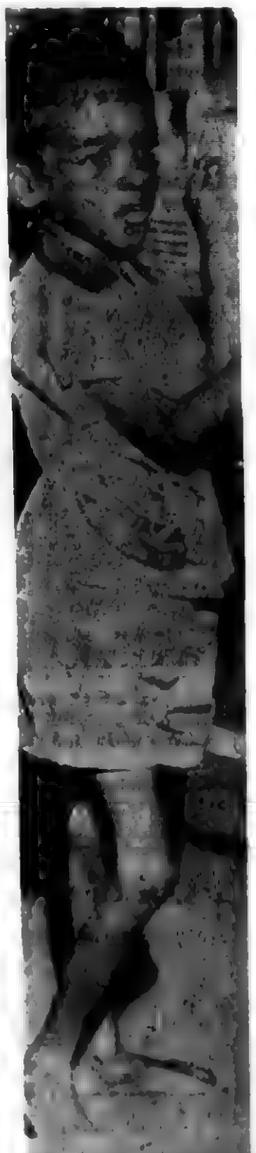
LOVE IS THE golden thread by which the little souls entrapped in misshapen bodies and captured by minescule mentality cling to life. This belief of Otto C. Heinzerling, director of the Peck O' Wee Ones, the home at 4216 E. Broad-st for uneducable children, keeps him on a constant search for women who can give the severely handicapped children who have found shelter there not only their hands but their hearts. The above charcoals of several of the children were drawn with the art of love by Miss Lyane Srba, 106 Woodcliff. The Whitehall-Yearling alumna who is now studying at the Columbus College of Art and Design came to know the children through her mother, Mrs. Joseph Srba, one of the women who volunteer their time to give everything from diaper-folding to cuddling-hours at the Peck O' Wee Ones. The nonprofit foundation had its beginnings when Heinzerling, an old sea dog, retired as a chief petty officer from the Navy and returned to Columbus and attempted to find housing for a day nursery. A local physician told him of the heart-breaking need of the children so severely handicapped that home care was impractical and so young they were ineligible for state care, and the Peck O' Wee Ones was born. Now 36 children whose tragedy lies in their birth, not their eventual death, are cared for with a tenderness rare even in a private home and the waiting list is long. Of these 36 children currently ranging from seven months old to the one 14-year-old out patient, none are toilet-trained, three can feed themselves and five can walk. A fund drive is now underway which Heinzerling prays will enable him to fulfill his dream of a new building, adequate to cope with the demands made by 100 children, handicapped for life by birth defect, traumatic injury or disease.

A YEAR AGO Emmy Lou came to the Peck O' Wee Ones, a nine pound two-year-old described as completely dissipated and completely withdrawn from the world around her. After a year devoted to stuffing her now plump little body, she is moving out of her isolation.

NO ONE BETTER exemplifies the slogan "Put Your Heart to Work for the Mentally Deficient" than Miss Kay Chase, nursing supervisor at the Peck O' Wee Ones. "Little Kay" as she is affectionately known by the staff is shown with "Dee Dee" so named because of his close resemblance to another little Mongoloid sheltered at the home before his death. The double jointedness evidenced by the position of the two-year-old's leg is typical of this type of birth defect.

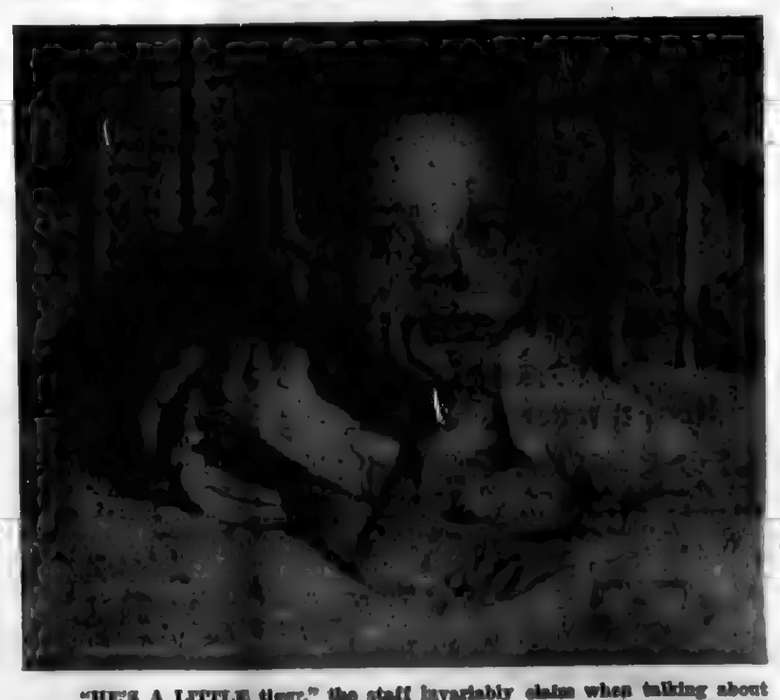


IT DOESN'T sound like a fortune, but the $200,000 it will take to translate into reality the architect's conception of a 100 bed facility to replace the pitifully overcrowded building now in use into reality haunts Director Heinzerling's dreams. It is planned with research, therapeutic and recreational facilities in addition to patient rooms and wards and the areas necessary for a self-sustaining institution. He knows it will rise, not from a federal grant or the bequest from a millionaire, but the quarter, dollars and tens of dollars given by those who feel, "There, but for the grace of God" goes my child.



SEETOMA'S INTERNATIONAL award for "Service To Mankind" went to Otto C. Heinzerling two years ago in recognition of his contribution to countless handicapped children through the Peck O' Wee Ones. Heinzerling has dedicated not only his retirement years but his personal financial resources to making the time spent on this earth (whether it's a few weeks or several years—few such children live through adolescence), as free from discomfort as humanly possible. His little buddy is Emmy Lou whose first words "O. C." (his initials) have sparked hope in the hearts of the staff that her apparent retardation was accentuated by her extremely poor physical condition, and that she may be the only child at the home where the prognosis is optimistic.

VICKI IS ONE of the fortunate ones at the Peck O' Wee Ones. Although she suffers from severe brain damage that can never be undone, she can walk. And she recently found, much to her delight, that a hobby horse is to be ridden and that she is just the little girl who can do it.



THIS YOUNG MAN at a play table in the tiny yard of the Peck O' Wee Ones shows he has a trait shared by many of the mentally handicapped—who are not completely vegetative—he's either very happy or very sad. The little ones with a capacity to emote seem to wear their feelings very close to the surface.

PHILLIP is ambulatory and like the other few who can move around requires a lot of attention. All little boys, whether they are normal or severely retarded as Phil, require a lot of using "that eye in the back of your head." With "color-blindness" a trait of the staff at the Peck O' Wee Ones, one soon becomes accustomed to hearing a blonde nurse say to Phillip "Come along, dear. Mommy wants to wash your face and hands."

AFTER A BOUT with encephalitis three years ago Wanda went into a deep coma. When hospital authorities gave up hope of her ever regaining consciousness she was brought to the Peck O' Wee Ones. Eventually she awoke, and occasionally responds with a slight smile when spoken to, but that is all. She is one of a half-dozen children kept alive through a nasogastric tube through which she is fed.

"HE'S A LITTLE tiger," the staff invariably claims when talking about little Brad. Brought under Heinzerling's care when he was six-months-old, he now weighs 13 and one-half pounds — and has passed his seventh birthday. His "Tiger" nickname comes from the tenacity with which the little one clings to life, weathering pneumonia and childhood diseases with flying colors. A delayed delivery deprived him of oxygen at birth and the brain damage was massive. Unable to speak or swallow, he is nourished through a permanently implanted tube placed in the abdominal wall direct to the stomach.

A VICTIM of cerebral palsy since birth, Sheryl shares little in common with most 13-year olds. But in spite of her handicap which ties her to a wheel chair and severely limits her ability to communicate (the range of IQ among the children at the Peck O' Wee Ones is between five and 25 with a child boasting a 30 standing out spectacularly) she is all too normal in one respect. She is a miniature "clothes horse" and has a fair share of vanity. To her picture-taking day is dress-up day and she thoroughly enjoys it.

UNIQUE! SECLUDED!
Beautiful vistas among 100-year-old trees. 3-bedroom house was built when only first-class materials were used. Families are raised and gone, yet the home shows very little visible wear. Living room ceiling soars two stories. Fireplace is big enough for the "Yule" log. There's a sun room, a big tiled patio, and a screened-in porch off the kitchen. On the acre of ground are a multitude of flowers and trees, trees, trees! Also a smaller home and garage apartment occupied by artists and are truly beautiful, that bring in $190 mo. You'll enjoy seeing this. Twenty minutes from Broad and High. In the low thirties. Call

Teenagers Seek Answers Through Alateen

By MARY BILDERBACK

There are some 10 teen-agers.

They have one item in common: an alcoholic parent.

Every Monday night a group of young adults gather at Columbus' Tri-Village recreation center for a meeting of Alateen, a nationwide organization for the teenage children of alcoholics.

There have been several of these groups in the area since 1961.

Alateen provides the opportunity for young people to join together to work out their mutual problems alone. The door is closed to adults, but they do have a sponsor who is a member of Alcoholics Anonymous. He mainly provides a shoulder to cry on, and advice.

Alateens are different, having had to face a serious problem much earlier than most people their age.

Sheri, a bright-eyed, pretty blonde of 18, who acts as the leader for the Tri-Village Group, said, "You meet people like yourself in Alateen. Foremost, you learn that you can't force your alcoholic parent to quit drinking but that you can change your bitter attitude.

"This is done by turning your life over to God and by seeking your individual understanding of Him. We then try to analyze our own shortcomings and how these contribute to family problems."

Each meeting opens with the Serenity Prayer, "God grant me the serenity to accept the things I cannot change, courage to change the things I can, and the wisdom to know the difference."

The meeting ends with the group holding hands and saying the "Our Father."

At the gatherings, the discussion centers on personal problems or topics suggested in outside reading material. Their aim is always to discuss their parents' problem, not their own.

As one boy said, "I can't help but hate Dad when he's drinking, especially when we are just scraping by financially. To see him go out and blow $10 on booze just tears me up."

Another pretty brown-haired girl finally conceded that she always dreaded bringing her friends home from school because she never knew when her parents were going to get drunk and fight.

She also admitted accusing her parents of not loving each other because they wouldn't seek help. Strangely, everyone in the group had felt similar to this at one time or another.

There are many things that Alateen is not. It is no a social organization, for nothing should detract from the seriousness of its purpose. Alateen does not promote self pity and it is not devoted to preventing alcoholism in youth. Nor is it affiliated with any particular religion.

How do Alateens cope with their parents?

They learn all they can about alcoholism. They recognize that it is a sickness, an abnormal sensitivity to alcohol plus an emotional compulsion to drink, and that to get well the desire must come from the alcoholic himself. Pleas and scolding only make things worse.

The teenagers also realize that they have done nothing to make their parent drink and nothing they can do will make him stop. They learn to show love and encouragement to both parents; not to take sides in an argument; and to get out of the way if the alcoholic becomes violent. Their aim is to put a more positive attitude into the home.

They hope to accomplish this through understanding and discussion of one another's problems.

Anyone wishing more information about Alateen may call the Alcoholics Anonymous central office at 224-6793.

Child Welfare Board Seeks Homes For 279 Children

The Franklin County Child Welfare Board is embarking on a systematic program aimed at increasing the number of children in foster homes or adopted.

CWB officials will meet Thursday to work out final details of the program which they hope will provide an "on-going" placement of children from Franklin Village.

Nancy Schilling, coordinator of the program, indicated it was not a new program but "merely a way of getting our problems before the public."

At present the board has 89 children waiting for adoption and 190 waiting for placement in foster homes.

The program will emphasize the placement of Negro children, who in the past have been the most difficult to place.

"We want to emphasize several changes in adoption procedures which we think will help this program," Mrs. Schilling told The Spectator.

Under the new requirements, potential adoptive parents need not own their own home, can be remarried and can be of different faiths. There are no minimum income requirements and couples need be married only one year to qualify.

"At present, our biggest need is for homes for all boys from two years of age on up and especially for Negro children of all ages," Mrs. Schilling said.

The CWB is now also attempting to place newly-born infants under a new program by which it aids unwed mothers. Mrs. Schilling said many potential parents were not aware of the relatively new service.

In adoption cases, the parents pay attorney fees and receive no monetary support for the child. The child, however, becomes legally theirs.

In a foster home situation, the agency grants a minimal payment for the support of the child. Foster parents, however, must give up their children at the request of the natural parents.

Made from a star-spangled recipe that's 25 years old

Star-Spangled Security 1941-1966

The cake above is something we whipped up to help celebrate the 25th birthday of the United States Savings Bond program.

Although there will be no confetti, no horn-blowing—in fact, no party—there are a number of reasons to celebrate this quarter-century observance.

Since the first one was sold on May 1, 1941, Americans have bought more than $150 billion worth of Series E and H Bonds and still buy them at a $4-$5 billion-per-year clip.

About $100 billion have been cashed and spent for homes, college tuition, new cars and furniture, emergencies—and helping dreams come true for millions of American families.

Over half the Bonds bought are purchased on the Payroll Savings Plan—a voluntary, automatic plan that works wonders for people who might not otherwise save a nickel.

Today there are outstanding almost $50 billion in Bonds—a solid financial rock for millions of Americans.

And today, Savings Bonds are a sure way for all Americans to support our men in Vietnam. While they are there, none of us can remain aloof on the sidelines.

CAC, MAPS To Stage Clinic For Cycle Drivers

The Columbus Automobile Club and Motorist and Pedestrian Safety Committee will co-sponsor a safety clinic for motorcycle and motor bike drivers Saturday at 9:30 a.m. at the Southern Hotel.

Russell H. Campbell, general manager of the auto club, said six recent motorcycle fatalities and an increasing number of injury and damage accidents had prompted the clinic.

Speakers will include Harry Seitz, director of the Auto Club Driving School; Maj. Walter A. Fruder of the Ohio State Highway Patrol, and a motorcycle officer from the Columbus Police Department.

The clinic is free and open to the public.

No Franklin County Farms Too Valuable To Urbanize

Although 58 percent of Franklin County is devoted to farming, the gross from this acreage is only one percent of that realized from urbanized land.

(Payroll of wholesale and retail trade in the area is almost 15 times the farm income, and the value added by manufacturing exceeds agricultural gross by 50 times.)

THESE FIGURES, reported in a recent Blue Plan study, led to the conclusion that no farm land in Franklin County is so valuable that it should be held in perpetual reserve against urbanization.

However, there are flood plains, according to the report, that can probably continue to be farmed profitably and represent too great a risk to life and property to be used either for residential or industrial development.

The summary stresses that a definite timetable should be set so that farmers will have a pretty good idea when their land will be claimed. (The agrarian beset with uncertainty as to the future use of his land is hesitant to go ahead with the intensive land conservation practices that are a prerequisite for today's modern farming.)

IT IS RECOGNIZED that topography and soil make-up in the west, south and northwest portions of the county generally lead to higher productivity. Thus it is contended that it is desirable to first channel urban development onto the lands of lower agricultural yield that are located east, north and northeast of Columbus.

It is pointed out that such over-all planning will tend to cut down the land speculation that has hiked farm land values, on an average, over $600 an acre. This figure is more than double that in Central Ohio as a whole.

WHEN LAND values go up, taxes also rise, often making agricultural use of the land prohibitive long before there is actual urban demand for it.

"Indiscriminate "leap frogging" or by-passing of land was also criticized in the study. A farm surrounded by a subdivision can be run profitably only if it is left large enough for an efficient operation. (Except for gardening, relatively large blocks of land are needed for a successful farming operation with today's incumbent heavy investment cost and high operating costs.)

Several devices are suggested for the channeling of urban growth to the north and east, and away from the better farm land.

THESE INCLUDE zoning (not to be feared, as it can always be modified); selective annexation and extension of utilities, both of which are stimulants to urbanization; preferential tax appraisals for desirable farm land and easement by which city government would have the sole right for development and farm use, for the present, would be undisturbed.

Pointing out that 79 percent of farm land is actually devoted to harvested and pastured cropland (a figure representing much more intensive agricultural land use than in surrounding counties) the survey draws a hedging conclusion: "There isn't anything particularly wrong with agriculture in Franklin County, compared to other counties. It's comparison with the city that hurts."

The tenor of the entire study indicated that, although Regional Planning isn't going to condone wholesale eviction of area farmers, a word of advice might be (with all due apologies to Robert Herrick):

Gather ye soybeans while ye may
But forget your homestead ties;
Where this same farmland lies today
Tomorrow a city will rise.

It Sounds Good

The Men of the Obetz Methodist Church have a treat in store for area residents. Serving will begin at 4 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 27, at the Lawn Festival. Accordi[illegible]bert Beery, chairman of the group, barbecue and assor[illegible] sandwiches and beverages will be topped off with homemade ice cream and cake. Proceeds are earmarked for church repairs.

Base Breaks Record

Two records were broken during the four-day semi-annual blood drive conducted at Lockbourne AFB by the Franklin County Red Cross. The 722 pints of blood (122 over quota) exceeded the previous high of 608 and the 200 pints of blood received in one day was another all-time high. Mrs. George J. Billy, chairman of volunteers on base, explained a large portion of the blood is used throughout Central Ohio and the balance will be included in the 300 pints shipped monthly from Columbus to Southeast Asia.

Electric Rates Cut

A rate decrease of approximately two percent for rural and urban farm and residential consumers was announced at the 30th annual meeting of South Central Power Company at Lancaster. Darwin Kindler, general manager of the locally-owned power company, explained the cut which is estimated will save member-users about $68,000 annually with the report of increased use of electric power by the consumers without a corresponding hike in costs. The decrease, effective Oct. 1, is the seventh such in the last six years.

During the year, 800 additional consumers were served, 20 miles of transmission line were added, 500 security lights installed, 35 miles of feeder circuits laid, and two substations built.

Aboating We Will Go

The children of St. Vincent's Orphanage are ready for the annual all-day outing this Saturday with the members of the Southeast Conservation Club their hosts. At the family-type picnic (each family takes a child or two under wing) limitless food, pony rides and boating on the lake off Hart-rd provide a red letter day for the youngsters.

AND HE LIVED TO TELL ABOUT IT

A CRUMPLED BICYCLE, the broken windshield where a body hit, a fire truck hosing the highway clear of blood. It all could well tell a tragic story, but Bobby Neal, 19, of Rohr-rd, apparently was leading a charmed life last Saturday morning. Traveling west a couple miles east of Groveport, he was struck by the automobile driven by Samuel Ramsey of the 804th Supply Squadron at Lockbourne AFB. Although when taken to Mercy Hospital by Madison Township emergency squad, his injuries were first believed to include a skull fracture in addition to extensive lacerations, they proved less serious, leading the investigating officer from the Sheriff's department to marvel, "He didn't even get a broken bone." (Mercy listed his condition as "fair" at press time.) The driver was issued a citation for operating a motor vehicle without assured clear distance ahead.

College-st Will Close

Groveport council learned this week that College-st will be closed from 40 to 60 days while it is widened this fall.

Mayor Bob Baer estimates that after work begins late next month that it will be near Thanksgiving before traffic is restored.

THE DELAY in getting the work started is the result of the county demanding that a concrete base be laid under the four-foot strip added to the thoroughfare which makes readvertising necessary.

The bid of Phillips Road Oil Co. for the tar and chipping of non-curb streets at $5,562 was accepted. This does not include the grader time which must be computed on an hourly basis.

Other street business at the lengthy council meeting included the news that the "Black Beauty" topping for the Main and other principal streets must be delayed until spring (although minor repairs will be made to "smooth" it up) and that Columbus and Southern is ready to proceed with the moving of 17 utility poles on College-st to allow the proposed improvements.

Junior County Fair Judges Smile On Southeast Entries

Canal Winchester and Groveport entries made an almost clean sweep of the field in the FFA Sheep contest at the Franklin County Fair.

They gave up only the showmanship award, the Hampshire yearling ewe, champion ewe, and three places in the Shropshire competition.

Tom Lamp of Canal Winchester might be called the star showman, with blue ribbons won for both his Shropshire and Corriedale ewe lambs, first and second places for his Corriedale yearling ewe and ram, first for Corriedale ram lamb, second for Shropshire yearling ewe and champion ram and ewe.

He took first and second for the ewe and ram lambs, for ewe and ram yearlings and was awarded ewe and ram championship.

Doug Watkins made a clean sweep by taking the top two places in all the Cheviot sheep classes. Clayton Coffey of Grovepart won the Best Fleece Award.

OTHER AREA FFA sheep winners were Rodney Rodgers of Canal Winchester who took first place in the Shropshire class, took first in the ram, lamb class and took second in the ewe and yearling lamb class; Vince Kisner of Groveport who took the Oxford ewe lamb first and Jim Stevenson and Keith Osborne of Groveport who took second in the Corriedale ewe and ram classes respectively.

Area entries also made an especially fine showing with open class market hogs. Jim Dill of Groveport earned both a boar and sow championship in the Tamworth class; Jim Stevenson's (Groveport) Duroc Jersey was named champion sow.

THE HAMPSHIRE boar of Leo Lamb in Canal Winchester was named champion in his class, and the hog exhibited by Leo Lamb and Son was named Grand Champion market hog.

Ron Lamb also won the FFA showmanship award and walked off with both the grand and reserve championship and the championship pen-of-three in the swine show.

Squeeze Play Alert Continues In Obetz

Most of the parents of Obetz boys issued special invitations to the safety meeting called by Mayor Ronald Perry, accompanied their sons to Municipal Building last week.

And, according to Police Chief Virgil Peters, all the guests left the meeting convinced of the potential tragedy involved in "the Squeeze Play."

IT HAD COME to light last week that both youngsters and teenagers were risking lives by indulging in a fad which had the aim of one boy aiding another to "pass out" after prolonged lack of oxygen.

Apparently the boys had not been aware that death has resulted from the so-called sport, and, now warned, are alert to its dangers as are their parents.

AT THE SUGGESTION of a local resident, Edwin Angel, Peters plans on alerting the local school authorities of the practice so they may also send the warning signal up and be on guard against any further play that could conceivably end with one or more players in the emergency ward—or the morgue.

Nobody, But Nobody Is So Busy

No newspaper reporter ever worked more frantically to beat a deadline than the Canal Winchester neighbors who have joined together to make the Labor Day parade another feather in the crown of community effort.

The parade, with the theme of Famous People and Places which is broad enough to make room for everyone from the Beatles to George Washington and everything from the old covered bridge to the Taj Mahal, will form on N. Waterloo and roll at 2 p.m. Monday, Sept 5.

JOHN DERR general chairman, will be assisted by old hands such as Bill Spires, Mayor Mike Miller, Jean Beatty, Sally Fagin, Harry Doan, Ken Eubank and a host of other hepped up village supporters.

Events on the big day will include an all-day dinner highlighted with chicken barbecue, with serving beginning at 11 a.m. Little League baseball and a teenage dance on the black-topped area of the high school grounds.

THE BEAUTY contest for small, middle-sized and full-fledged Canal Winchester belles will be held at 2 p.m. Friday, Sept. 2 in the school auditorium

Anyone who misses the crownings at which Miss Canal Winchester will receive a $50 Savings Band can see the winners as they lead Monday's parade.

DO YOU REMEMBER last year when the residents of Fairfield, Beatty and Trine-ste were inspired to cannonade themselves into the winners' circle along with Beetle Bailey? As usual, no one around Canal Winchester is talking as the residents get ready for the hoopla of the Labor Day parade, but according to back-fence gossip, it will be the best ever.

of confidence by council and his salary hiked $50 a month.

The solicitor was directed to investigate the possibilities of a contract with the Municipal Court. The City has threatened to refuse to hear Groveport cases until such a contract is arranged or the village solicitor personally prosecutes each one. (The Dinsmoore case and the Young case are now pending).

Other action included the decision to sell the old village truck, tear down the balance of the fence at the cemetery and wind up the street renumbering. (The area involved lies chiefly within the Kessler addition).

Russel Bennet showed the first place Ayreshire, and Jim Stevenson placed first in three Jersey classes. (Both boys are from the Groveport chapter).

In the 4-H classes it was the Canal Winchester exhibitors who shown with Don Klamfoth exhibiting both the senior and grand champion female Guernsey.

OTHER area dairy awards went to Neal F. Schirm and family of Canal Winchester for the Junior Champion female Jersey; the champion Jersey female of Glenn Lackey, Canal Winchester, the champion Guernsey dairy cow of Jim Klamfoth, Canal Winchester and the champion Brown Swiss dairy cow awarded to Helen Crumley of Groveport.

KEITH OSBORNE, Mike Grunkeemeyer and Mike Timmons took 23 out of the 34 first places in the vegetable division and Groveport was first over the other schools in Farm Shop display.

Other local winners included Carl Hoy of Canal Winchester whose Checkered Giant rabbit took a blue ribbon; the Brice Busy Bees which took fourth place in 4-H Booth competition; Linda Dean of Brice whose tailored coat won a first, and Barbara Van Fossen of Canal Winchester who was a winner in the miscellaneous class.

Crop Shows Fruit Growers Big Gamblers

Not all gambling is illegal in Central Ohio.

Just ask the local orchardists.

But when the big freeze hit May 10, they soon realized their rabbit feet were functioning improperly.

As any housewife who's attempted to find homegrown Red Havens or other varieties on the market might suspect, the peach crop was hit and hit hard.

FOR EXAMPLE, according to Alvin Lynne of the Pataskala orchard, the harvest from the 25-acre Lynne planting totaled 14 peaches. (A reasonable expectation would be from 10,000 to 12,000 bushels.) Their plums, cherries and nectarines met a similar fate.

However, manager Kenneth Conway reports at Hartman Farms on So. Higbst did a little better with the 35-acres expected to produce about 25 percent of a normal crop. (Everything but the Shippers Red are already in.)

FROM THE local reports, it looks as if putting an2 Ohio apple in a lunch pail this winter will be the privilege of only the housewife who isn't watching her pennies.

Harry Lutz, owner of the Sand Hill Fruit Farm at Carroll, who before that "Black Tuesday" in May could count on marketing 100,000 bushels, estimates his crop cut 75 percent.

Classifying his Winesaps and Red Delicious a total failure, he's at a loss to explain the fact that he has a full crop of Golden Delicious with the set so heavy thinning was necessary.

THE SPOTTINESS of the freeze damage is shown with the crop at Och's Orchard near Lancaster absolutely nil and Lynne's estimating their apple crop as high as 40 percent.

All the growers who have anything left agree that excellent size partially compensates for the light set; and that higher per bushel prices will help cut the financial losses. (Most believe prices for well-graded apples at the farm will be from $4 to $5 were smaller and off-grade fruit correspondingly lower.)

Lynne, who is a large cider maker, stated the customary carry-over from last year will keep apple juice prices stable.

CONWAY, though plagued by late heavy rains with resulting wild-fire growth of vegetation which makes ripening a problem, was quite optimistic about the harvest from the 59-acre grape planting at Hartmans.

"With the right kind of weather, we should be able to pick three-fourths of a crop," he said.

The apple growers surveyed believe fall apples to be from one to two weeks late. From this prediction, with summer apples pretty well gone, home-grown apples cannot be expected in any quantities until sometime after Sept. 15.

THE FIRST of the fall varieties on the market will be Grimes and Jonathans.

ALAN ABEL CAN SELL ANYTHING— EVEN JOCKEY SHORTS FOR HORSES

By JANE ROBINSON

Recently I interviewed an urbane, cultured and well educated housewife in one of Columbus' most affluent suburbs.

By chance, we shared the frustrations met in trying to convince our airedales the "panties" their respective veterinarians had ordered following surgery were more than a challenge to their ingenuity in removing them.

She added, "Did you happen to see that strange eccentric on television who is campaigning to clothe naked animals?"

SHE CONTINUED, amazed that the attractive woman appearing on an interview type program not only could adopt such a ridiculous stand but had a small army of supporters.

What amazed me was that she hadn't the slightest suspicion that the wife of Alan Abel was on the air aiding and abetting her husband in what he calls "The Great American Hoax."

Our suburbanite is just one of thousands of Americans who (though marveling at the apparent asininity of the members) bought hook, line and sinker — the Society for Indecency to Naked Animals.

PERPETRATED by an Ohio State graduate whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Abel, 4430 Josephus-ln, still don't quite dig their son's off-beat satire, the hoax has brought in some big fish.

His trophy case of "suckers" includes Walter Kronkite, Gypsy Rose Lee, Art Linkletter, Mike Douglas, and the 100-spoof-proof Bureau of Internal Revenue.

The published account of how Abel convinced the world he was the messiah of G. Clifford Prout, Sr., who left an endowment of $400,000 to put half slips on the Elsie Bordens of the world and Bermuda shorts on every male animal from Ferdinand to Caroline Kennedy's pony is a tribute to the monumental gullibility of the American public.

ACCORDING to his sister, Mrs. Stanley Wasserstom, 2436 Bexley-pk the "imagination and guts" of her brother allowed him to pull it off.

A talented musician (he was tops in the VFW percussion contest during his undergraduate career and wrote "Serenade To a Sand Dune" played by the OSU band in the Rose Bowl in 1950) a comedian and satire columnist for the San Francisco Chronicle, Abel tells all in the "Great American Hoax," published by Trident Press and purchased for future production at Paramount Pictures.

And the hilarity with which he tells his "all" is matched only by the degree to which the public enjoys being hoodwinked.

IT ALL STARTED at a Texas cattle crossing where Abel noted the mixed emotions of fellow motorists ranging from barnyard humor to cringing horror when Elmer stopped an Elsie in the highway to discuss the birds and bees.

Soon after, tongue-in-cheek, he delivered a lecture introducing Mr. Prout's benevolence and decrying the miserable fact that human beings share their food, love and homes with their pets, but keep decency to themselves.

Its enthusiastic reception led him, with the help of his wife who has since achieved nation-wide attention with her sham campaign for presidency of "Yetta Bernstein" and other kooky (no offense meant) friends to picket the White House, take on American Telephone and Telegraph and write in the form of Odes to SIPA, some of the lousiest poetry ever to hit the American literary scene.

AT FIRST BLUSH (and who wouldn't with all the animal nudity rampant) Abel's book might well be pain. d as just the usual summer reading.

But perceptive readers may find food for thought in its implications.

If a glib speaking man with no motivation beyond giving some people something to laugh about and to prove Barnum right can sell such a preposterous ism, one must stop and think.

CAN WE be sold anything — from pacifism to the contention "God is Dead"?

BEFORE devoting his talents to the promotion of the Society for Indecency of Naked Animals, Alan Abel, under the name of Julius Bristol, spread the gospel of the Perfect Putting Posture, recommending a duck-like ballet stance for the golfer weighing less than 160 pounds. He guaranteed 89 percent accuracy on the green for the heavier sportsmen if he would assume a stance with the toes pointed due right and left and remember to exhale at the precise moment of impact.

Southeast Businessmen Aid Auction

A number of southeast business men continued this year in their support of Junior-Fair exhibitors by buying livestock at the Junior County Fair Auction.

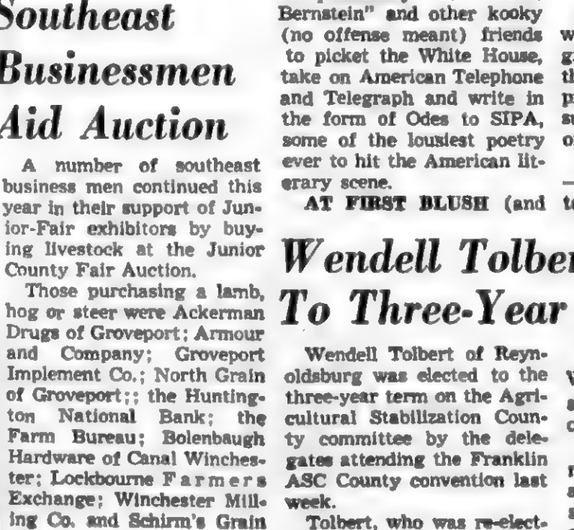
Those purchasing a lamb, hog or steer were Ackerman Drugs of Groveport; Armour and Company; Groveport Implement Co.; North Grain of Groveport;; the Huntington National Bank; the Farm Bureau; Bolenbaugh Hardware of Canal Winchester; Lockbourne Farmers Exchange; Winchester Milling Co. and Schirm's Grain Co.

H. M. (Pete) Everhart of Armour has served as buying agent for the above businesses, since the auction, now in its 12th year, was initiated.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Herron were among the originators of the sale, and Jean Dill has been helping at every auction.

Wendell Tolbert Is Elected To Three-Year ASC Term

Wendell Tolbert of Reynoldsburg was elected to the three-year term on the Agricultural Stabilization County committee by the delegates attending the Franklin ASC County convention last week.



Tolbert, who was re-elected vice-chairman of the committee, is completing a one-year term. (The present system of electing one committeeman to a three-year term each year was initiated in 1965 with one, two and three years terms set up.)

Owen Van Schoyck of Amlin is chairman and K. K. Krebs of Worthington is the regular member.

Carl W. Schatch, Canal Winchester, was named first alternate and Ernest Renner of Hilliard, second.

The county committee administers the various federal agricultural conservation and stabilization program at county level.

The above men were among those elected from 14 neighborhoods in Franklin County to act as community committeemen.

WILLIAM S. WHITE: Paradox Blooming

WHITE

WASHINGTON—Paradox is being piled upon paradox in the politics of the South in this Congressional election year as never before in all our history.

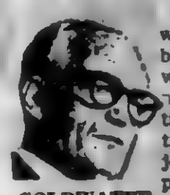
The deeply-entrenched Sen. James O. Eastland, for years the very symbol of arch-conservatism to national liberals in general and to civil rights advocates in particular, incredibly appears to be in some conceivable danger for re-election from Mississippi — on the ground that he is too liberal.

Historically, the chance for any Republican to win any statewide office in Mississippi has been, to put the matter plainly, something on the order of minus zero. But now Rep. Prentiss Walker, a Goldwater Republican, is seeking Eastland's seat and is clearly causing the Senator at least some modest concern.

Why? Well, Walker says that Eastland, who as chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee has been the most formidable bottler-up of civil rights legislation that old body has ever seen, isn't tough enough on civil rights and other liberal subjects.

And in Virginia, Sen. Harry Flood Byrd, Jr., son of perhaps the greatest authentic conservative produced by the South in half a century, is being seriously opposed by a Conservative party candidate, John W. Carter, who solemnly regards Byrd as quite dangerously liberal.

What has happened to the politics of the South?



The partial answer, anyhow, seems to be this: The nerves and the emotions of great numbers of voters have been rubbed so raw so long over the civil rights issue — and by the ceaseless poundings of Northern critics who are only now discovering that their own race problems are not so easily solved as they had once thought — that they are reacting automatically against all "ins" and finding something good in all "outs."

This is a deep emotional problem, for this is a politics basically of sheer unreason, and it will only be further inflamed unless it is treated by the rest of country with some tolerance, generosity and understanding.

Far too long there has been far too much finger-pointing at the South, too much demagogic breast-beating from afar. The most profound, the most indispensable of national interest requires an end to pulpit-pounding by the pseudo-parsons of politics in the North, who ought long since to have examined first the shortcomings of their own areas in the problems of race and educational opportunity and fair employment and all the rest of it.

BARRY GOLDWATER: Dream Comes True

GOLDWATER

In my Washington apartment last week I watched a conservative dream begin to come true. Meeting with me were representatives of four of the most active, responsible and influential conservatively-oriented organizations in the land. By the time we adjourned, each group had exchanged pledges to fully cooperate in the future.

Conservatives who firmly agree on the basic principles of a free society and free and individually responsible men and women are going to consolidate their skills and coordinate their efforts and programs as never before.

It's about time. There has been a growing impatience with the proliferation and duplication of organizational efforts. Particularly when it is apparent that the conservative philosophy represents an increasingly popular alternative to the collectivism and drift of the Johnson-Humphrey welfarists, it is vital that we speak with the force of unity.

The men who met with me and so wholeheartedly agreed to cooperate were Gen. Thomas Lane and Charles McManus of the Americans for Constitutional Action; Donald Jones of the Young Americans for Freedom; Congressman John Ashbrook of the American Conservative Union and Lynn Mote of the Free Society Association which, although not engaged in politics, penetratingly researches the philosophical ties that bind us together.

This does not mean a merger of these groups or any loss of identity for the memberships or charters. It does mean, however, that each will be able to attend to those areas in which it is most capable, with other assignments going to the ones best equipped and able. It will mean that things which are not being done, but badly need doing, can be assigned in the most effective, least-wasteful manner and without fear of the duplication that has plagued and bothered so many supporters.

Any American concerned that the alternative to the ruin, regimentation and rioting of the current administration might not clearly emerge because of lack of unity or purpose can be absolutely reassured.

Although our meeting was just a beginning, starting with just four of the major organizations, there is no question in my mind that one of the most potentially powerful forces has begun to roll and that the apparent quiet of many conservatives since the last election is about to come to a confident and clear turning point.

Behind The Badge

Most men who pin one on accept it as a symbol of a community's trust in him, the trust of civilized men who have surrendered their arms and entrusted their safety to a community-supported police force.

Some men, luckily the minority, think their badge is a license to arrogance, brutality and worse.

A good policeman is a better man than most. A bad one is a community's shame. Put a bigot behind a badge and send him into a ghetto with a night stick and disaster is sure to follow.

It takes a lot to be a good cop: a lot of patience with drunks and plenty of restraint with hoodlums. It often takes more courage not to squeeze a trigger than to squeeze one. It is far more difficult to apply only "necessary force" than to bash in a skull.

But something happens when a man pins on a badge. He becomes a trusted public servant and the trusting public expects the utmost of him.

The man who chooses to wear a badge should remember that . . . every time he pins it on.

Speak Up

Any newspaper worthy of the name expresses its opinions on its editorial page and then accepts the consequences.

It would be far easier to merely ignore the often perplexing issues of the day. When a newspaper takes a stand on a question, it often offends more people than it rallies to its cause.

Sometimes advertisers take out their wrath where it hurts a newspaper the most and often there are subscriptions cancelled in anger.

But still, a newspaper which strives to be more than simply an advertising medium should persist in publishing its opinions. Such a newspaper should also make available space for publication of opposing views. The newspaper should be the first to admit its own fallibility.

This, The Spectator Newspapers try to do through the letters to the editor printed each week. Our readers may not always share our opinions and The Spectator respects the opinions of its readers.

So speak up! We intend to.

Something New

The Spectator Newspapers are constantly striving in a fiercely competitive market to produce a better product each week for both readers and advertisers.

Toward that goal, The Spectator Newspapers will switch in Sept. 7 editions to a tabloid format, featuring color. Localized news will continue in each edition and zoned display advertising will continue to be available to those merchants who do not need the blanket circulation of all editions.

Something new will be added to the classified advertising pages. At present classified display advertising is sold only on an "all papers" basis. Now The Spectator Newspapers will offer classified display advertising in zoned editions at lower rates.

The new tab pages will enable The Spectator to offer more attractive full page rates to advertisers and will also expedite the complex task of remaking pages for the various editions.

We hope you'll like the new Spectator suburban "tab." Watch for it Sept. 7.

Rewards Of 'Educashun'

By The Spectator's
TED BEARDSHEAR

Back to school! Hi ho, it's back to school.

What a disappointment to thousands of children. Especially since, according to one commencement speaker, half of everything we teach them is wrong. We just don't know which half . . . that's all.

BEARDSHEAR

But one good thing about education, it teaches one to deal with a crisis. Granted, a major school crisis usually consists of a difficult exam. Deal with enough exams and a real crisis holds little terror. Warm up on enough creampuffs and one builds enough jaw muscle to masticate a little gristle now and then.

A second and related value of education is perseverance. Take for instance this student in accounting. He was a senior in college and was finishing up his final stint. The only thing between him and graduation was one accounting final. Everything depended on this single paper. He went to the exam, sat down and waited for it to be passed out. When it was put in front of him he took one look and panicked. He stood up and sobbed, "I can't pass it!" stayed there, clutching the exam in his hand, until he had to be led from the room.

Creampuff crisis? Perhaps not. But what a lesson in perseverance could have been learned if the accounting student had gone ahead and done his best and taken the results.

Another advantage of education is the formulation of method. In dealing with an array of facts, one has to organize. By repetition, a student learns how to deal with his subject matter. Hopefully, he will apply this method to his life.

I once knew a professional journalist who was inspired to his calling by a creative writing professor. The professor gave him a "D" for his first semester's effort.

"That 'D' so infuriated me I resolved to make writing my career," the man said.

So much for method.

A failure can be just as important as a success in the shaping of the final person.

So it's back to school. What unique experiences will shape the adults of the future?

It'll be interesting to watch.

They Said It

"In the feudal days, the lords of the land used to protect their castles by means of a moat. Now and then they would sally forth and wage battle, then retreat to their castles and pull up the drawbridges. Since it is said that a man's house is his castle, why not carry out the same idea when we enter our homes after the fight of each day is over; pull up the drawbridges and thus separate ourselves from the problems, perplexities, confusion and difficulties of our business tasks. — Petersburg, Tex., Journal

"No, The Beatles Went That Way — This Group Of Performers Is The Committee On Un-American Activities"

MARQUIS CHILDS: Johnson Vs. Nixon?

WASHINGTON — The word that Richard Nixon is starting his Presidential campaign and is soon to open a Washington office underscores a question asked with increasing urgency: What is the alternative to Lyndon Johnson?

Republicans who regard the prospect with nothing but dread nevertheless see the prospect of a Johnson-Nixon campaign two years hence. Because there is no active, serious challenger determined to take over the party and win the nomination, it will go to Nixon as it were by default. Perhaps never before has one of the two great parties been so lacking in men of stature who were willing, eager and politically positioned to seek the highest office in the land.

CHILDS

The only other Republican contender is Gov. George Romney of Michigan. Romney, absorbed in his own campaign for re-election, has thus far not moved onto the national scene except in a limited way. In the light of the extraordinarily difficult task of putting together a nationwide organization to round up delegates, it may already be too late for Romney.

Romney's partisans are increasingly impatient. Why, they say to each other, does he have to play it with such caution when his re-election in Michigan by a large majority is as certain as anything in the uncertain game of politics?

It is the pros, knowing the magnitude of the job of putting together a national organization, who are most concerned by the way time is running out. After the election on November 8, there will be hardly more than a year and a half in which to move. With many months of unadvertised search for delegates already behind him. Nixon is now readying his active and open campaign. Around the country he has put innumerable party workers in his debt.

In groping for an alternative to the Johnson Administration some leaders talk wistfully of policy alternatives on the submerged issue of the Viet Nam war. Here, of course, Nixon offers consistency if nothing else.

In 1954, in a background talk to the American Society of Newspaper Editors, the then Vice-President suggested that American ground troops be sent to Indo-China in the face of an imminent French collapse and a takeover by the Communists. When word of this leaked out, President Eisenhower vetoed the idea Earlier, Nixon had been quoted as saying:

"It is impossible to lay down arms until victory is completely won."

Sen. Thruston B Morton of Kentucky, a former Republican national chairman, spoke feelingly of the "degenerating" situation in Viet Nam, expressing the hope the newly-formed Asia Pacific Council might be the instrument for a new aggressive peace offensive. These men and others like them cannot be dismissed as deluded doves.

The Republican party today is like a jigsaw puzzle, the pieces of which have been scattered on the floor. There are many pieces that indicate a new and challenging pattern. But putting them together calls for perceptivity, skill and, above all, dedication and determination.

Those who dread the Nixon prospect see him as the supreme opportunist. While he knows the value of the pieces in the puzzle, he will use them not so much with the goal of reshaping the party but to get as much as possible for himself out of each one.

And that kind of jigsaw, granted that it can be assembled, suggests that the nomination in 1968 will be worth little more than it was in '64. As Nixon surely knows, however, an escalating war and large casualties could conceivably create a situation in which the opposition candidate would win if only by default.

Letters To The Editor

To 'Most Confused'

To The Editor:

Attention, "Most Confused":

My ten-year-old once wrote in a school paper: "We don't have to go to Viet Nam to fight a war, we have a war to fight right here in Columbus — the war on poverty." Our Congressman Devine's voting record should show such concern!

Poverty was my daughter's theme. I will add bigotry, extremism, complacency, and yes, even confusion.

I have been witness to the results of unpublicized acts of bigotry in our city in the past year. The John Birch Society preaches and practices extremism. Thank you, Robert Shamansky, for the courageous stand you have taken against them!

The Franklin County Democratic Organization has been seized by a fit of complacency for a number of years and our leading news media leaves the poor citizens in utter confusion.

Now, "most confused," since the Democratic Party doesn't have money to buy much more for their endorsed candidates than sample ballots (probably donated by Mr. Heer) and if Mayor Twyford unwisely chose to spend his money on hundreds of little, ineffective cardboard signs — for that can we blame Robert Shamansky?

And, "most confused," you certainly are confused in your understanding of the American Civil Liberties Union. The ACLU does not stand for anything except the implemetation of the rights spelled out in the Constitution of our United States. Thank God we have those rights and thank Him again that we have men fearless enough to defend them, even when the accused takes an unpopular stand.

"Most confused," I do not call smut anything but smut, nor do I call censorship anything but censorship. Smut does not amuse me, many times it insults me; however, my husband and I do not hide the unpleasantness of life from our children.

They are exposed to the bigotry and ugliness around them, they see it and that is why at 10 years of age they want to do something about it. But even they know you cannot sweep dirt under the rug and expect it not to slip out.

Since you are so confused I know you would be unable to tell me where, if consorship once begins, it will end. In Germany it began with Jewish books — it ended with the concentrated murder of six million Jewish people!

We are living in a country governed by a Constitution written with men of great foresight and defended by men of great devotion to those Constitutional rights. American Civil Liberties Union, we thank you. And I will sign my name.

Mrs. Richard Ramey

Replies

To The Editor:

"Most Confused" aptly signed his (or her) most confusing letter attacking me.

On one point, however, "Most Confused" was one hundred percent correct. I admit that Governor Rockefeller and I are "mainstream," along with Gov. Romney, Gov. Scranton, Charles Percy, and my Harvard Law School classmate, Gov. John Chaffee of Rhode Island, all Republicans. We are "mainstream" as distinguished from Mr. Devine and his ally, former Sen. Goldwater, who occupy the far right.

I am honored to be in such company.

Columbus Polo Club Forfeits Match Because Of Wet Field

Columbus El Rancho forfeited to Mahoning Valley, last Sunday, as Columbus captain, Walter Shapter, Jr., announced: "I refuse to risk the lives of my men and their ponies on a wet, slippery field."

Shapter called off the contest shortly before game time after deciding that the field had not dried sufficiently following early morning rains.

Sunday the Cincinnati Polo Club will be in Columbus to play El Rancho. Cincinnati is rated best in the Mid-States Polo League and is a four goal favorite.

Game time Sunday will be 3 p.m. at El Rancho, Rt. 161 just west of Interstate 71. Proceeds benefit the American Cancer Society.

IN & AROUND TOWN

EDITED BY ROLAND SUNKER

A guide to performers and performances in the Columbus area this week

Swings Like A Pendulum Do

Even though we are in the so called "dog days" of August, there is still plenty of things happening in and around Columbus. At the Everglades on W. Broad-st, Lucille Linwood and Karen Carney are back again and packing them in. Always a favorite in town, Lucille is not only a good singer, but a real showman (gal in this case).

She teams up with the talented Karen on the 88's, which makes for a duo that is fun to see and hear. If you don't like this combine, you just are not with the in crowd.

Speaking of the "in" crowd, you'll find hundreds of them every night at the Olentangy Inn, poolside, listening to Bill and Glen. These two boys are not packing them in, they are literally jamming them in under the patio and around the pool. In fact, on Friday nights it's so jammed there is hardly any room to bend your elbow for sipping your favorite beverage.

If the night air is too cool for you, why not try the Americana Brass who are finishing out their last week at Danny Deed's Maramor. This is the new group that everyone is talking about. After they close in Columbus, there are big cafe dates brewing for them in New York. If you haven't caught this act, be sure you do, because you'll be missing one of the most refreshing new acts in the business.

Another new act that is doing well and has been held over is Phyllis Burns at the Scioto Lanes on Dublin-rd. Phyllis has a complete new approach to show business in presenting a song. A new addition at the Scioto Lanes is Vivian at the piano. No newcomer, Vivian is well known and has been pleasing audiences for a long time. It is rumored that a well known act is to open at the Scioto Lanes within the next two weeks.

An old show is currently being presented at Playhouse-on-the-Green for the next two weeks. "The Man Who Came to Dinner," is the final production of the season at POG. Attending POG is always a pleasant way to spend an evening. Remember, the popular tent is air conditioned.

As you can see, Columbus swings like the old pendulum. Speaking of pendulum, have you been to the Pendulum? Located at 2822 N. High-st, the Pendulum is a beautiful, new, intimate lounge. It has a sunken bar and decor is a blend of old English and modern. Seating 75 people, it is completely carpeted and serves all of the legal stuff, plus good food. Tom Bardjokas is the host.

So, climb aboard your pendulum and swing in and around town.

Two Groups Plan Tryouts

Harold Eisenstein, Director of Gallery Players, announces tryout dates for their initial production of the year, the musical comedy "Do-Re-Mi." Anyone interested in auditioning for a role in this musical, having its Columbus premiere in December is asked to come to the auditorium of the Jewish Center, 1125 College-av, Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 7 and 8 at 8 p.m. There is also an audition to be held Sunday, Sept. 11 at 2 p.m.

Director Eisenstein encourages chorus and solo singers to tryout for this show which lampoons the juke box and record industry. There is also a need for a choreographer and dancers. Talented teenagers are also needed.

Futher information may be obtained by calling Players office, BE. 1-2731 or Mrs. David Roth at BE. 1-4730.

Independent Players of Columbus will present the musical "Guys and Dolls" at Veterans Memorial Auditorium Nov. 18 and 19.

Tryout dates for their show are to be held Wednesday, Sept. 7 at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday, Sept. 11 at 2 p.m. in the club room, located at 261 S.High-st.

Anyone interested may attend the auditions. Men are especially encouraged to tryout as there are several male parts available. Further facts can be received by calling president Dick Herzog at 488-7045.

'REAMS' NIGHT' AT KENLEY

Smiling Columbus Mayor, M. E. (Jack) Sensenbrenner accepts tickets for the Kenley Players production of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" from Henry W. Eckhart, Franklin County Chairman of Reams for Governor Committee and Patricia Rudy, office coordinator of Reams' Headquarters. Sunday, Aug. 28, has been designated as "Reams' Night" at the Kenley Players. Tickets are available through local Democratic Clubs and at the Reams' Headquarters, 41 S. High-st. Frazier Reams, Jr., will attend and be introduced during intermission. For further information, call 221-5381.

TIME FOR GREATEST FAIR IN HISTORY

The Ohio State Fair opens Thursday, Aug. 25, having the greatest line up of stars, the largest livestock exhibits and a host of new buildings, making the 1966 fair the most spectacular fair in the history of Ohio State Fairs.

Some 1.5 million fairgoers are expected during the 12 day fair, many of whom will attend the free entertainment presented in the newly redecorated grandstand. Rehabilitated at a cost of $65,000, the grandstand sports bright red, blue and yellow aluminum panels, giving the popular showcase a complete new face lifting.

Scheduled to appear in the grandstand during fair time are Art Linkletter, Jody Miller, Bob Hope, the Rhodes Brothers, Perry Como, Jimmy Dean, the King Family, Candy Candido and a host of other stars.

For those who are interested in livestock, over 40,000 heads will be on exhibit with record breaking premiums offered totaling over $410,000. This includes the record breaking 7,000 head in the Junior Fair division with premiums totaling $55,000.

You will have a chance of seeing your favorite TV stars at the fair, as well as having an opportunity of being on television yourself. WLW-C will originate more than 55 live color broadcasts from the fair.

A huge new pavilion, centrally located at the north end of the midway, will mark "WLW-Land," where most of the shows are to be telecast.

WLW personalities appearing at the fair will be Spook Beckman, Clark Smith, Jerry Razor, Joanie Stuart, Hugh DeMoss, Jimmy Crum, Al Wasion and the Coffee Club Band, Paul Dixon, Bob Braun, Dean Richards, Bonnie Lou, Peter Grant, Cliff Lash and his orchestra and Bruce Brownfield with his orchestra, plus other well known WLW radio and TV personalities. In addition to the programs broadcast from WLW Land pavilion, "50-50 Club" and "Midwestern Hayride" will be colorcast from the grandstand.

Besides the new WLW pavilion, there are several other new buildings at the 1966 fair. In fact, Fair Manager E. J. Keirns stated that the state fairgrounds has taken on a new look, provided by $3 million spent on capital improvements during the past year.

Circular in design with a diameter of 135 feet and outside construction of glass walls, the new Highway Exhibits Building is the hub of the new look. Built at a cost of $290,000, it will serve as headquarters for the Highway Patrol and provide general restroom facilities. The single greatest expenditure in new buildings belongs to the "world's largest horse barn," $1.3 million has gone into building the new multi-purpose facility, which at fair time will house 1,000 horses, and, following the fair, it will be used as a large exhibit building. Covering five acres of land, the new barn is three times as large as the Buckeye Building.

It is promised that even the annual fairgoer will not recognize the fair grounds this year.

TWO four-card suits that DO NOT touch—
Bid your LOWEST rank — of such!
TWO touching four-card suits—DO dare—
Bid the HIGH rank — of that pair!

If you have both a minor and major card suit — always start with the minor—so you and partner can slowly build your way up to the suit you BOTH want! BUT as the next rhyme states—if you have four hearts and four diamonds, bid the HEART — because if partner responds, you still could not go back to the one level and bid the heart!

IT'S A BIG SPLASH

PARENTS IN HAMILTON Township know a good deal when they see one and 144 youngsters turned out for almost-free swimming lessons recently when the YMCA portable pool packed at Hamilton Central Elementary for two weeks of daily lessons. Instructor Gene Leiter of Bexley, seminary student at Capital's Lutheran Theological School, explained the unusually large turn-out by the Board of Education's subsidy of the program which lowered tuition for township residents to $1 for the course of 10 lessons.

Shamansky Backs Bill To Protect Federal Employes

Democratic congressional candidate Robert N. Shamansky has received assurances from both of Ohio's U.S. Senators that they will support a bill aimed at protecting the status of federal employes.

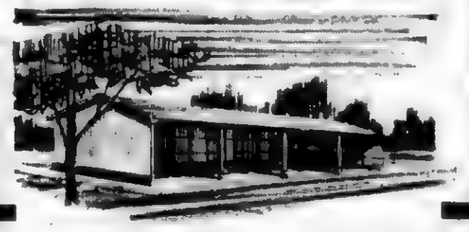
Shamansky, seeking to unseat U.S. Rep. Samuel Devine in the 12th District, had written to Sens. Stephen M. Young and Frank J. Lausche urging them to back the bill, offered by Sen. Sam Ervin D-North Carolina.

The bill would protect federal workers from invasion of privacy and economic coercion by heads of their respective agencies.

Shamansky, in his letter to Young and Lausche, said that the Ervin bill was "in sharp contrast to the spirit which moved my congressional opponent, Mr. Devine, to offer a bill which would abolish a whole federal department because its employes were, in his opinion, 'career, sedentary, odd-ball, self-satisfied, empire-building bureaucrats'."

Shamansky said that Devine's words "raise the fear that federal employes are not really free of the oppression of the late Sen. Joseph McCarty's heyday in Congress."

Lausche wrote in reply that he "will promptly speak to Sen. Ervin" about the bill.



Young pointed out that he was a "co-sponsor of the senator's bill to protect employes of the executive branch of government in the enjoyment of their Constitutional rights and to prevent unwarranted governmental invasions of their privacy."

Shamansky also announced the appointment of Stanford Ackley, Sr., as campaign chairman and Mrs. Donald B. Leach as co-chairman.

Ackley of Waggoner-rd, near Blacklick, is a well-known area realtor. Mrs. Leach is active in numerous civic groups and has been long active in Democratic party politics. She is a resident of Bexley.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR:

Shamansky Stand Defended Again

To the Editor:

In reading last week's letters to the editor, I was interested to note that some of my fellow citizens are beginning to see congressional candidate Robert Shamansky as the threat he really represents. As one such letter commented, did he not appear together with Congressman Gilligan, an "admitted" member of the ACLU?

I for one can not help but assume that Mr. Shamansky is aware that this organization blatantly states that its purposes are "To maintain throughout the United States and its possessions, the right of free speech, free press, free assemblage and other civil rights, and to take all legitimate action in furtherance of such purposes."

He must know that documented evidence has shown has shown that the ACLU has furthered its purposes by representing on occasion fascists and even communists whose civil rights were being violated.

I rest confident in the conviction that Congressman Devine would not venture such close association nor identify with the stated scheme of such an organization of the ACLU.

No, to those of us who are watching this congressional race develop, the difference in political philosophy is becoming daily more apparent. Mr. Shamansky and his fellow travelers like Congressman Gilligan stand indicted on the charge of being soft on democracy. I for one find them guilty . . . thank God.

City School Registration Under Way

With the exception of the kindergartens, all Columbus Public Schools will be open for business Wednesday, Sept. 7. The kindergarten will open Monday, Sept. 12.

WITH ONE OUT of five families in Columbus moving each year, it is anticipated that a number of children are not registered.

PHYSICALS + EQUIPMENT ISSUE + PRACTICE EQUALS SEPT. 9 OPENERS

'King Football' Plans Return To Area High Gridirons Sept. 9

By JACK WITTENMEIER

"King Football," Central Ohio's "favorite son," comes home for a 10-week stay two weeks from Friday on some 40 acre grid rectangulars.

No fewer than nine new faces of '66 will occupy head coaching positions when preseason practice gets under way Friday.

THESE INCLUDE John Biltz (replaces Frank Howe at Central), Bill Groce (replaces Jim Veeley at Bishop Ready), Earl Gray (replaces Ray DeCola at St. Mary), Bob Geiger (replaces Bill McProuty at Carroll), Bill McProuty (replaces Dario Gatti at Hamilton Township), Don Wyncoop (replaces Ralph Webster at Walnut Ridge) and Gil Lakeman (replaces Tom Vernon at Mifflin).

Two new schools begin football programs for first time—Northland and Wehrle Memorial, both wading into reserve schedules in preparation for entry in City and Central Catholic Leagues respectively.

Ex-Central pilot Frank Howe will be handling the coaching duties at Northland while Jerry VanScoy, late of St. Mary, will be doing likewise at Wehrle.

THE '66 campaign will find a larger number of schools than usual tackling independent schedules, largely due to the evaporation of both Central Buckeye and Franklin County leagues.

One new league — the Metropolitan — will be looking for its initial grid champion to complement first baseball and track kings settled last spring.

One interesting quirk of the season's schedule finds the Buckeye Athletic Conference lineup (Bexley, Grandview, Delaware and Urbana) engaging in twin meetings during the season on a home and away basis.

LOCAL HIGH fans, who pleaded for a meeting of the two area giants (Watterson and Upper Arlington) last fall, get their wish granted in a fitting finale Nov. 11 when the Golden Bears and Eagles clash head-on at UA.

Marv Moorehead's Bears, who carry the most impressive win streak into the '66 season (18 straight) will be operating independently this fall, awaiting entry into the Central Ohio League circle.

Included on that UA schedule, incidentally, is a visit to Massillon on Oct. 21, to play the perennial state-ranked Tigers.

IF IT serves as any consolation to area elevens who had to cry "wait till next year" last season, several of the '65 "toughies" have lost heavily in the graduation ranks.

For example — six area squads which piled up a composite 48-6 won-loss mark last fall will be short 117 seniors from their '65 lineups.

Arlington was the hardest hit with 27 departees, followed by Bishop Hartley (21), DeSales (19), Brookhaven (18), Bishop Watterson (17) and Reynoldsburg (15).

THE LATTER'S senior loss figures out to be just about average for some 40 area squads.

THE SPECTATOR SPORTS

Jets Close Next-To-Last Home Stand Tomorrow

The Columbus Jets, heading down the home stretch in their quest for a second straight International pennant, wrap up their next-to-last home stand with single night (8 p.m.) games with Buffalo's Bisons tonight and tomorrow.

Tonight will be K of C "Father and Son" Night and the third of four Dan Dee (Potato Chip) Nights with some fan winner of a month's supply of groceries.

TOMORROW night will be Central Ohio Restaurant, Dan Dee and Home Plate Club Nights, with the latter presenting its annual trophy to the outstanding Jet player of '66 in pre-game ceremonies.

Dan Dee will award another month's grocery supply and two bicycles.

Jet attendance, ahead of the '65 pace most of the season, has now fallen behind the number attending the same number of home openings (53) last summer. The deficit — 1342 fans.

FOLLOWING tomorrow's game with Buffalo, the Jets journey on their final road trip of the season (three games at Richmond, four at Jacksonville) before returning here for a season-ending six game set with Richmond, Sept. 2 through Sept. 5.

FISHIN' FACTS

"Danged jackfish!"

This utterance is often heard from bass addicts when their favorite pursuits are interrupted by a spray of greenish gold, followed by a savage encounter with a long, slender fish that seems to be all head and teeth.

TOO MANY, the common pickerel is considered a trash fish. But to those who know his sporting qualities, this small cousin of the pike and muskie is held in high esteem.

While most anglers agree on its dubious table value fish experts have no hesitation in praising the pickerel as a top game species.

Found in about half the nation, ranging from Maine to Texas, this bony-mouthed scrapper deserves more attention than it receives.

SINCE MOST pickerel run small when compared with pike, averaging only a pound or two, light tackle offers the most action. Like the pike, the pickerel is a hungry, pugnacious character and is susceptible to about the same artificial offerings —though in smaller sizes.

For top sport, fly casting with streamers and bucktails produces a brand of action that seldom can be matched —yet comparatively few anglers use this method.

Pickerel inhabit locations of heavy aquatic growth, making weed guards on lures almost a necessity. They usually lie concealed near the fringe of a weed bed, facing outward in the hope of grabbing a passing meal.

LURES RETRIEVED across the open edge or skittered over the weeds are the most productive.

If you get into pickerel waters, take advantage of the opportunity. Pickerel cease to be a "nuisance" when deliberately sought.

Fifty percent of proceeds from the sale of books will go to the Heart Fund. There is no time limit on when the book coupons may be used.

ANG Prepares For Possible Callup

(EDITOR'S NOTE—Spectator staffer Jack Wittenmeier, a member of the 121st Tactical Fighter Wing, Air National Guard, for three years, visited his old unit at their '66 summer camp training site at Volk Field, Wis., last week. Here is his "outside-looking-in" report on the local Guard unit).

By JACK WITTENMEIER

It wasn't much of a "homecoming."

Familiar faces were few and far between (only 167 of those vaulted to active duty during the Berlin callup were counted among the 121st's contingent of 815 at Volk Field last week).

BUT, HARD to swallow as it is, this 1966 summer camp gathering is a different unit, a prepared unit, indeed, better unit.

There was one thing that hadn't changed since my last summer camp with the ANG. Somewhere there, above the roar of the F-100s, was the uneasy threat of activation.

Five years ago, summer camp was afire with rumors that the late President Kennedy would better a worsening tension in Berlin by calling up National Guard units.

THREE MONTHS later, the 121st was setting up shop in Etain, France.

Headlines like "LBJ Given Power To Call Up Reserves" and "Push Reserve Callup" are posted around this encampment. But the rumors are sparse.

"The rumors about going to Viet Nam were pretty hot several months ago," one officer remarked, "but they've quieted down for the most part now.

"THE GUYS who were involved in the last callup 1961) just don't talk about it."

But speculation and rumors, as always, are easily initiated. There are those at Volk Field who will point to the 121st's recent arrival at the present 100 percent strength level.

Others point out that the introduction of the M-16 (latest individual combat weapon and "bread and butter" infantry weapon in Viet Nam) and the painting of the fighter aircraft (green and brown) are significant.

But the 121st Tac. Fighter Group Commander Lt. Col. Donald Griffith places the sources of speculation more in the category of normal preparedness than any solid indications that the Ohio ANG could be heading for Viet Nam.

"I get the word of what's going to happen to us when you guys (the press) put it in the paper," Lt. Col. Griffith laughed.

"THERE IS no indication of a unit callup at this time. I don't believe they want to call us for Southeast Asian duty.

"You know it's a big world and the military needs aircraft for other areas too. Right now, I believe our role is more of taking commitments of units called to Viet Nam, rather than going there ourselves."

Lt. Col. Griffith did point out that the 121st was classified as a "beef broth" unit (directed to build up to 100 percent manning capacity) a year ago. The unit stood at less than 75 percent strength just prior to the Berlin callup in '61.

ASKED IF the 121st's recent training had been geared toward Viet Nam involvement, Griffith commented, "Well, there'll be no training problem if we should be activated. We'll be ready to go."

Quizzed about the possibilities of such a callup, the commander replied, "If they keep shooting down planes over there, maybe they'll give us a chance to help out."

But, although the 121st could be classified as one of the state's top priority units, there seem to be just as many points "against" the possibility of activation as "for."

FOR ONE, the 121st does not contain a high ratio of planes for the number of men in the unit — a point certainly significant in a shooting war as opposed to the '61 "cold war tension" kind of callup.

The callup of individual reservists, rather than whole units, appears most likely at present and — Congress has never been one to act hastily in an election year.

One thing seems obvious, at least to this observer, the unit at Volk Field this summer is a better one than that which wondered about a Berlin callup five years ago.

LIKE WE said, it wasn't much of a "homecoming."

Talk about the '61 Battle of Berlin" is almost non-existant now. "It's like talking about World War I to most of the new fellows," one old crony of ours offered.

There was one welcome that was warmer than any other at Volk Field, last week, however.

M/SGT. LOREN Greer—one of the only two Berlin "veterans" remaining in my old chow hall stomping grounds — greeted me at the door of the dining hall with a cook's hat, an apron and an invitation to step once more behind the grill.

I gracefully declined.

For some unexplainable reason, my cooking was about as popular in 1961 as Georgia Senator Richard Russell (voted "Man of the Year" by the Ohio ANG this summer) is at this encampment.

INSTRUCTION in the use of the M-16 — basic weapon of military now serving in Viet Nam — was the order of the day for this group of 121st Tac. Fighter Wing Air Policemen at the ANG's summer encampment at Volk Field Wis., last week. The M-16, made by Colt, is much lighter than the standard M-1 due to its composition of fiberglass and aluminum alloy. Heeding breakdown of the M-16 by T/Sgt. Thomas Stark (left) of Moundville, W. Va., are (front, from left): A2/c Bill Chase, 2475 Ridgewood-dr; A3/c Tom Conaway, 180 E. Maynard-av, and A3/c Rod Lininger, 7706 Eastwood, Reynoldsburg. Standing are Capt. Eugene Neds of Marysville and A2/c Bill Rox, 2523 Sherwood-rd. (Staff photo by Jack Wittenmeier).

Here's Guide To Homework

"Turn down the TV, I'm trying to study."

Before school starts is the time to make sure that this plaint will never be heard in the home — by setting up a separate study center.

To make sure it's a real aid to at-home study, check these points. The center should have:

1. A flat surface on which to work — a desk.
2. "Storage" space — drawers, shelves, bulletin boards to keep a student's equipment ready for use.
3. Equipment — from basic pencils and pens to typewriters, tape recorders.
4. Books — for enrichment reading, and for reference—dictionaries, encyclopedias, atlases.
5. Proper lighting.
6. As much privacy, for concentrated study, as is possible in the home.

School Walls Coming Down In Favor of One Big Room

Educators are beginning to discard the partitions between classrooms in favor of schools without walls.

THIS tradition - shattering development, aimed largely at tailoring instruction to the individual pupil, is described in a recent report from Educational Facilities Laboratories (EFL). The report, entitled Schools Without Walls, describes a recent trend toward the design of elementary schools in which 100 or more pupils and their teachers are housed in a huge, open room rather than in four or five traditional classrooms.

Behind the elimination of interior partitions lie the efforts of educators to get away from the rigid educational patterns of the traditional classroom. In its stead, they favor less rigid patterns — nongrading, team teaching, or both — that permit individual pupils to learn at their own best rate.

IN THESE schools, the report said, "there are no partitions to fragment learning by dividing teachers, children, and subject matter into tight, standardized compartments. And there are no halls to funnel children from compartment to compartment at the arbitrary dictate of a bell. Each child finds his own place, creates his own path."

In other words, under a non-graded, team teaching program in a school without walls, a pupil may shift easily and unobtrusively from group to group, depending on his ability in the subject matter at hand.

The pupil may spend one hour with an advanced group in arithmetic, a second with an average group in history, and a third in a small, remedial group to bolster his reading ability.

HE MAY remain in any group for as many months as is required, without, if he is slow, the stigma of being "left back." If he is bright, he may move ahead at his own pace, avoiding the boredom and frustration of "waiting for the class to catch up."

THERE SEEM to be a few of the acoustical problems that might be expected in the open spaces. And those are all but eliminated if the spaces are carpeted. Moveable bookcases and screens can be employed if visual distractions become a problem.

AUG 1966

The Community Stage

BY CLAUDIA ELKINS

Joe Hietter of Prairie Players is the next community theatre president presented to you in this series. Joe joined the Prairie Players in 1963 and became very interested in the workings of community theatre. He began by helping out backstage, then progressing to acting. He has appeared in several shows including "Bell, Book, and Candle," "Four Poster," "Write Me a Murder," and "Mary." His next adventure was directing a one act, "Blue Concerto" for Prairie Players.

During the time he was actively engaged in production activities, he also held executive posts with the club. Hietter served as treasurer and promotion manager for two years. While serving in these capacities Joe instituted "Traveling Children's Theatre" that has brought considerable prestige and income to the theatre group.

Peoria, Ill., is where Joe calls home, and Bradley University is where he received his education. In Peoria Hietter was a disc jockey for WMMJ Radio. Married and the father of five children. Joe presently is employed by the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company.

One of the major highlights of Hietter's activities since joining Prairie Players was making commercials for a local television station. He and some other local actors made the Delgano cheese commercials which are still being shown on the Mike Douglas program. Joe was chosen for the job because of his ability to speak various dialects.

The new president's aims for the '66 and '67 season are increased membership, purchase of new lighting equipment and inaugurating a program that will attract teenagers and interest them in taking an active part in the club's productions.

Community theatre advocates like Joe Hietter and respect him for his accomplishments with Prairie Players.

Columbus Boasts Of First In Safety Education

Columbus can boast of an all-time first in the nation: The Junior High School Safety Program.

Since its founding two years ago, it has received national recognition and has established a blueprint for similar junior high organizations throughout the country.

The Columbus Board of Education, the Police Department, the AAA and Safety Council of the Columbus area are responsible for the establishing of the Junior High Safety program.

Each of the 19 junior high schools in Columbus has a safety corps headed by two students, a coordinator, and an assistant coordinator with the aid of advisor, Mrs. Jeanne Bray of the Police Department.

The organization produces outstanding programs throughout the year such as essay, poster, slogan, and scrapbook contests.

Students have written eye catching slogans on safety such as "Life is too short to take chances," "Safety first —second may be too late," and "If you smoke in bed the ashes you leave may be your own."

Projects have ranged from disabled dummies in locker cleanouts, windshield washing, discussion of safety rules for baby sitters, removal of snow and ice, distribution of safety bookmarks, and warnings not to run in hallways, throw things or walk in the street and more.

Many of these projects have won awards sponsored by the AAA which included prize trips to Washington, D.C., Dearborn, Mich., and Cedar Point for the winners.

Why institute a safety program on the junior high level? Elementary schools have intensive instruction on safety and traffic patrols, high schools have driver education but junior high schools throughout the areas were lacking in a permanent safety program.

Essentially this program was designed to fill gaps in safety education throughout the junior high level, and to safety on impressionable imprint the importance of minds.
